The spokesman further said much of the research for the series involved contacts with state officials who were supposed to have information on the effects of the poisoning and safeguards for humans. As recently as last week, the spokesman said top state officials were in Grand Rapids to discuss the PBB situation, but the officials had nothing new to offer.

"State officials have said there is no need for the public to become alarmed because no evidence has turned up that shows people have been harmed by possible PBB poisoning. On the other hand, since studies have not been completed, neither has any proof been shown that people have NOT been harmed," the spokesman said.

He said the Grand Rapids Press believes there is reason for the public to have the facts and be cautious until they have such proof.

The Food and Drug Administration in Washington said last week it has no evidence that Michigan meat, dairy and egg products contain illegal residues of the fire retardant chemical.

The FDA said it told Gov. Milliken that it also has been unable to confirm any case of human disease traceable to PBB.

Surveys by the FDA, the U.S. Agriculture Department and the Michigan State Department of Agriculture have failed to find any food in commercial channels containing more than .3 parts per million PBB in milk and meat and .05 ppm in eggs, the FDA said.

"Free to be You and Me" will be the theme of the annual Spring Show by the 600 students of the Elementary School appearing under the direction of Mrs. LaBlance. Students in the first through the fifth grades will appear in the event which will feature a skit by the first grade children.

As in the past, the show will be 'double cast' in the event of illness.

The students have also designed and made the scenery for the show as well as the posters advertising the event.

The dress rehearsal or matince for those who cannot attend the Thursday evening show will be presented at the high school gym at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday. The evening performance on Thursday is scheduled for 7:30 p.m.

Charlevoix County Townships Held Annual Meetings Last Saturday

By FRAN MARTIN

Townships in the Charlevoix area were among those that met Saturday for their annual meetings.

Budgets were adopted, incomes reviewed and, in several cases, special action taken.

As in the past, the Charlevoix township budget was the largest, $155,000.

Of this amount, $65,000 is earmarked for the extension of the township's waterline to Pine Point and $25,000 for roads.

Other proposed expenditures are $11,000 for the fire department fund including $5,000 to be placed in a replacement fund for new equipment; $15,000 for engineering on n proposed sewer line and $11,700 for salaries.

The engineering for the sewer was planned in anticipation of a $75,000 grant the township is seeking for sewer installation.

The township is seeking 2.0 mills for five years in a special election Monday. Mrs. Arthur Cunningham, township clerk, said the outcome of the election would determine how much would be available to underwrite the proposed budget.

Revenue Sharing

Anticipated revenues from taxes, state and federal revenue sharing and other sources will raise approximately $118,000 to meet budget needs. The two mills would raise approximntely $40,000 or enough to balance the budget. "If the millage issue fails, we will have to revise the budget" Mrs. Cunningham said.

Norwood Township residents approved a budget of $29,741 with the unjur part of this or $22,000 earmarked for roads. William Parsons, township clerk, said Norwood township in cooperation with Banks township of Antrim county and the Charlevoix County Road Commission plan to do some work on the treacherous Richardson road. The townships will each pay 25 percent with the Road Commission picking up the remining 50 percent.

Other funds are allowed for fire protection, ambulance service and salaries.

Anticipated revenues wns set at $17,962.

Hayes Township

In addition to adopting its budget for the year, Hayes Township adopted a resolution prohibiting parking on township roads at all times except in case of an amergency. Leo Burnett, Jr., township clerk, said the action was taken because cars, parked along the more than 58 miles of primary and local roads in the township, especially during the winter months, has created a traffic hazard. He ndded that the cooperation of the Road Commission and the Sheriff's Department would be sought in enforcing the action.

The township's proposed budget is for $103,900 with $60,000 earmarked for highways. However, at this time it is not known which roads are being considered. Anticipated revenue totals $95,339.

Ivan Parsons, Eveline Township supervisor, reported the proposed township budget as $48,471 and anticipated revenue as $47,542. The revenue would come from the one mill allocated which would bring in $19,000; state revenue sharing, $11,000 and Federal revenue sharing, $3,600.

The condition of Mountain Rd., Ridge Rd., Leu Rd., Bracey Rd., Ranney Rd. and Washington st. in Ironton were discussed by township residents present. They were advised that they would be given prime consideration by the County Road Commission.

Planning Commission

In other action, a zoning board was replaced by a township planning commission in order to broaden its response to the township and to maintain a more complete contact with the people. Dr. Arnold Bauer, Robert Stowe, Robert Gerry and Wayne Saunders, former members of the zoning board were named to serve on the new board. A fifth member, Kenneth Russell, was named to represent the township on the board. Members will receive $20 per diem. The group

Residents Should Consider Millage Proposals Soon

On the heels of a city election, Charlevoix residents will be asked to consider what we feel is even a more vital issue--the education of our children.

It was only last spring that the Courier asked residents to approve 6.5 mills of renewal levies for three years.

At that time we said we felt a yes vote on the issue was imperative and we feel the same way about the millage issue coming up on April 21.

When you go to the polls on April 21, you will be asked to approve a needed 2.75 mills.

In a recent interview with the Charlevoix Courier, Charlevoix School Supt. James McKimmy said our system is faced with severe cutbacks including elimination of almost all extracurricular activities.

We don't think the superintendent intended the statement to sound like a threat, but rather a statement of fact.

McKimmy says the schools have been rocked by 10 percent inflation and three percent less operating revenue this year to operate schools.

Sources of revenue used in the last two years to get by, such as from capital outlay and plant maintenance, must be replaced.

McKimmy says if the Charlevoix Public Schools don't get the current levy request, there will have to be staff reductions as well as withdrawal from the city recreation program.

It would be easy with the present uncertain economic picture in our community to say no on the proposal.

No one is sure what the summer will bring Charlevoix and because of that uncertainty there might be a tendency to vote the proposal down.

It is just as easy for a newspaper, such as the Courier, to encourage local voters to support the millage because it sounds like the proper course of action to take.

However, we have just as much at stake with our local schools as anyone else.

A successful educational experience for our youngsters may mean a difference in the success of our community in years to come.

Schools, like businesses are, beginning to be made accountable for their expenditures and benefits derived from actual investment.

Charlevoix Public Schools have demonstrated to us this year that they are not overspending and are faced with a true need for additional revenue.

Therefore, we support the 2.75 levy request being presented to Charlevoix voters.

In addition to the millage levy increase, the schools are asking voters to consider a $200,000 purchase proposal for the acquisition and improvement of a school site.

The board is considering several sites for construction of a new school.

Voters will also find a $1.2 million bond proposal so that additions can be made to the existing high school and minor improvements can be made at the middle school.

Additions to the high school include enclosing the area between the cafeteria building and main classroom building for more classrooms, creation of an all-purpose room and showers, enlargement of the band storage room and enclosement of the study hall to create an art room and 80-seat small auditorium.

We can understand the school's interest in improving both facilities.

We think the middle school, in particular, is in sorry condition and needs to be improved.

However, we feel these last two issues will have to be left for each individual taxpayer to consider after carefully looking at his own economic situation.

Would it be better for the community to reconsider constructing a new middle school facility and put an immediate halt to constantly remodeling the present facility or is it best to continue on this basis?

To avoid a long-term commitment, perhaps it would be best to just remodel the present facilities.

Voters have already indicated they are not in favor of building new facilities. We don't agree with that decision, but with the economic outlook shown at that time we could understand the feeling.

Something must be done and we think it would be short-sighted of the community not to either alter the present facility or build new buildings.

A decision should be made in support of one of the two alternatives.

Failing to support either the two bond proposals on the April 21 for remodeling the existing facilities or not endorsing the construction of new facilities at a later time will leave our schools in a sorrowful condition.

We encourage you to consider the alternatives very carefully and not be swayed by the present downswing in our economy.

We are supporting an affirmative vote for the 2.75 tax levy request and asking Charlevoix Public School residents to make a decision to either remodel the present high school and middle school plants or to build a facility.

Your decision will have a great deal of influence on the direction our schools are able to take in the future.

IT WON'T FLOAT FOR LONG

Students Thank Merchants

To the Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan

Dear Editor;

The teachers and students of the 6th grade wish to publicly thank the members of this community who have helped us in our drive to raise money for our trip to Greenfield Village. We still have a long way to go, but due to the recent upsurge of people willing to assist us, it appears that we are going to reach our goal.

Our special thanks goes to Mr. Dale Boss of The Village Milkhouse for his generous donation of money, and to Mr. Harold Thomure for putting his organizing skill and tremendous effort into the Lions vs Super Stars basketball game project. Other individuals and businesses, including your paper, have provided methods for 6th graders to earn their share of the cost.

Our trip is scheduled for May 8th, and we're confident that nothing can stop us now.

Sincerely,
The 6th Grade Class of Charlevoix Middle School

There's More to Peace

Letter to editor:

Peace means more than halting war. It means converting the war industry to peaceful means. . peaceful production.

The United States is number one among nations in military strength, but we're only number 18 in doctor / patient ratio; number 14 in literacy; number 14 in infant mortality; and number 25 in life expectancy.

Since the end of World War II, the U.S. has spent 1.3 trillion dollars on military force in the name of "national security". The result? We could be wiped out in less than an hour. So could the Russians.

Spending $1.3 trillion on weapons means less money and fewer resources for America. Investment in mass transit, better schooling and health, and development of new energy sources would mean more jobs. Building the B-1 Bomber aggravates unemployment. The Bureau of Labor Statistics has shown that 75,000 more jobs would be created by spending the money on needed hospitals and housing, not bombers.

The B-1 Bomber must be stopped and the policies and powers responsible for it challenged. Americans stopped the production of the AMB in 1969. We grounded the SST in 1970. Now, together, we can stop the B-1.

Write your Congressman, "No More Boondoggles, Ban B-1" Then send a contribution to "Clergy and Laity Concerned, 235 East 49th St. New York, N.Y. 10017 who is actively engaged in stopping the B-1 Bomber and National Peace Conversion Campaign.

Doris Schaller

Clockwise

For a world leader, Chiang Kai-shek, 87, slipped quietly, almost unobtrusively from the global scene over the weekend.

Newscasters mentioned his death almost in passing. And although Chiang rated front-page space in most newspapers Sunday, attention given to the passing of the leader of free China was minimal at best.

It is hard to imagine that a generation ago Chiang headed the most populous nation in the world. After battling the Japanese throughout most of the 1930's, it was sort of comforting to know that Chiang was an our side when we, too, were forced to come to grips with the Rising Sun in 1941.

But there were problems in Chiang's government, after the war problems as old as China itself. Furthermore, the 19th century feudalism into which Chiang was born intu didn't sit well with younger (and not so young) upstarts on the left.

For one thing, the country was too big, too overcrowded, too underdeveloped, too poor for Chiang to effect the changes that had to be made. Neither did he have control of the functionaries under him who abused positions af responsibility for their own gain.

When a communist take-over became imminent in the late 1940's, President Truman had no choice to deny Chiang's plea for assistance. China fell rapidly to the forces of Mao Tse-Tung.

At first the rest af the world listened respectfully to the old man. After all, he was Chiang Kai-shek, our old friend and ally, and he might just be able to pull off such a stunt.

But at the years went by, Chiang's boasts took on a hollow ring. There was n tremor in his bravado and we tried not to listen.

Now Chiang is gone and his successors reportedly have pledged to make Chiang's old dream come true.

But now no one is listening, and I doubt they ever will.

The members of the Beaver Island Bicentennial Committee have been selected and they are now busy establishing the priorities of their projects.

Barbara Beckers, owner of the Shamrock bar, says enthusiasm and participation are the highest the island has ever seen.

"People who haven't been involved in anything in a long time are becoming involved in the bicentennial."

They have also developed some new ideas for some of their prospective projects. They hope to preserve an old, cedar shake ice shed that was made on the island years ago and are thinking of making a commercial fishing and regional maritime history museum with it.

There is also talk of taking a hundred year lease on some township property that is within walking distance of their museum to create Heritage Park. They would like to relocate some of the old, historical buildings, such as Dr. Protar's farmhouse, in the park. Other buildings that can't be relocated will be reconstructed. One would be the first settleanent on the island of a fur trapper and another possibility might be the reconstruction of a livery stable showing all the equipment and tools necessary to maintain the business.

The Beaver Islanders have already collected $3000 of their $21,000 goal. They are still waiting for a reply from the State Bicentennial Commission concerning available funds.

Sounds like Greenfield Village is going to have some competition!

THIS IS TOO BIG A PIECE?

THE NEED FOR PROFITS

In any given year, 40 per cent of all U.S. companies fail to make any profit, after operating expenses.

The remaining firms, last year, made an average 5 cents profit on each sales dollar. Out of this, they had to find enough to help replace worn-out plants and machinery.

Perhaps this much-misunderstood word would be less maligned if we realized there really is no such thing as "profits"—only "costs."

Phoey on Mickey Mouse

By JIM FITZGERALD

I never feel more unAmerican than when in the presence of Mickey Mouse.

The family that reveres Walt Disney together is the family that stays together, prays together, and flees together from an "R" rated world. Everyone knows that.

But I never saw a Walt Disney film I didn't hate. I wouldn't insult my family by asking them to laugh at talking cars and Fred MacMurray bouncing over buildings.

Fact is, I like to take my teenagers to "adult" movies that would soil their minds if they weren't accompanied by a parent with a damp sponge. This is a satisfying way to thumb my nose at censorship, just as the censor thumbs his nose at freedom. Also, the kids might learn something worthwhile from these forbidden movies. One sex scene in technicolor is worth 1,000 words from a dumb father who learned it all from the rack boy at Curley Peloso's poolroom. By the time he is 18, I want my son to know the streets of Los Angeles are not paved with flubber.

So you get the picture. The CIA has probably been reading my mail for years. Any man who sneers at Donald Duck must have subversive connections. I tell you all this only because I recently spent some time in Orlando, Florida, and my wife said it would be a sin to leave without visiting Disney World. We'd been on the road several days, and I'd already used up all the sins allotted me for March, so...

The Disney people grab you while you are still on the highway. They come on your car radio and suck you through the gate. The 12,000-car parking lot is divided into sections named after dwarfs and the attendants warn you to remember the name of your section or spend the rest of your life on foot.

"We're in Dopey," my wife said.

"Certainly," I said.

After putting down $13, we entered the world's largest combination gift shop and hot dog stand. Everywhere I looked, someone wanted to sell me something to eat or something to take home to prove to my neighbors I'd been gyped.

The $13 bought us admission to 8 of the "special attractions," all of which were easy to find. Each one was at the Florida end of a line of people stretching to Utah. I wouldn't stand in a line that long if it led to Sophia Loren playing Snow White as a nymphomaniac attacking everyone parked in Dopey's section.

We did sneak into the theatre where life-size replicas of Cinderella, Mickey and the gang sang songs and told jokes. It's amazing how those inanimate dolls talk and move and appear just as human as the people in the audience (especially the zonked-out father with 3 little kids who has been looking for his car for 3 weeks).

It must cost a million dollars to make a 6-foot doll that can tap dance and sing "Some Day My Prince Will Come." Only a jerk would point out that a real live girl would be a lot cheaper and more entertaining. "You're a jerk," my wife said.

I came away from magic land with tremendous respect for the precision and efficiency of the Disney people. They handle gigantic crowds without wasting a movement or a minute. Endless railings keep you in line (Please don't sit on the rails; they are for herding, not comfort). Recorded voices continually tell you to face right, turn right, and leave by the exits on the right. I wouldn't turn left for fear a giant neon sign would flash "TILT" and I would be banished from the kingdom forever for plugging Mickey Mouse's digestive tract.

As we drove out of Dopey's section, the same sonorous voice was on the radio, still urging us to come to Disney World and telling us how tu park.

Disney won't be programmed to say goodbye until Mickey Mouse figures a way to freeze farewells on a stick and sell them for 50 cents a lick.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Lois Hodgson

Lois Hodgson has recently been donating her time and knowledge of the dance to local groups putting on performances. Here she tells the Courier a little about herself and her activities.

COURIER: How long have you lived in Charlevoix?

HODGSON: We came here about five years ago from Grosse Point. As you can probably tell from my accent, I'm originally from North Carolina.

COURIER: What is your training and experience in dancing?

HODGSON: I studied 12 years in various schools--tap, ballet, modern, every type. I played in summer stock, which was fun because New York ballet troupes taught us. In college I appeared in "South Paeific".

COURIER: What have you done in Charlevoix recently?

HODGSON: I have been working with Fran Tollns on the spring performance of students at the Middle Schaul which will be held April 15. It will be u band and vocal performance and I have been helping the sixth grade girls with some dance steps to accompany their songs. The music is ragtime of the Scott Joplin era.

COURIER: You helped with the Yacht Club's Las Vegas party, too, didn't you?

HODGSON: Yes, I helped with the choreography for the floor show. I'm also going to help with the floor show that will be part of the Grey Gables' bicentennial celebration coming up soon.

COURIER: Why is dancing important to young people?

HODGSON: Dancing develops muscles, and since Charlevoix is su sportsminded it's too bad they don't have sume dance elusses in the schools. Both boys and girls could benefit from them. I hope that if the millage passes some daneing can be offered in the schools. Also, since we have sa many cultural things in Charlevoix, dance elasses would be a nice addition.

COURIER: When should children start taking daneing lessans?

HODGSON: They should start as young as three years. They have a sense of rhythm at an early age.

COURIER: Du you have a family?

HODGSON: Yes, we have three boys. Richard is 12, Eric is 10 and Mark is 8.

COURIER: Would they take daneing lessuns if they were available?

HODGSON: They say they would. Yes, I think they would.

COURIER: What are your other interests?

HODGSON: Mostly we participate in Yacht Club activities. My husband Richard runs Walker Marine Ageney. I also ski and helong to the Woman's Club, af which I am a past officer. But my family takes up most of my time.

County Tax Collections Down

The County Treasurer's office reports that tax collections throughout the county as of April 1 are behind those of previous years. Below is a comparison of tax collections so far this year and those at the same time in 1970.

Perhaps one of the reasons for slower collections is the increase in amount of taxes levied - in some cases doubled and almost trebled in four years.

There is a three percent tax collection penalty ndded after the deadline of February 14 and a one-half percent additional penalty each month beginning March 1.

Charlevoix Schools Offer Property Tax Relief Hints

Charlevoix Schools Superintendent James A. McKimmy is reminding local residents that all property taxpayers in Michigan may be eligible for some relief of their property taxes.

The amount of relief depends upon income, amount of tax, age or handicap. The method of calculating and collecting this tax relief is often confusing, according to McKimmy, and it is important that each citizen understand the method of collecting so that all of the eligible rebate is paid to the taxpayer.

Persons in one or more of the following groups may be eligible for a property tax rebate: (1) Persons over 65 years of age, (2) persons whose property tax exceeds three and one-half percent of their income, (3) persons who are physically handicapped.

If income is under $3,000--100 percent of the property tax is rebated.

If income is from $3,000 to $4,000--100 percent of property tax less 1 percent of income is rebated.

If income is from $4,000 to $5,000--100 percent of property tax less 2 percent of income is rebated.

If income is from $5,000 to $6,000--100 percent of property. tax less 3 percent of income is rebated.

If income is over $6,000--100 percent property tax less 3.5 percent of income is rebated.

In the above schedule, 17 percent of rent is considered to be property tax and the maximum rebate or credit granted is $500.

In the second category, all Michigan residents, both homeowners and renters, are eligible on the fullowing basis: The amount of tax relief is equal to 60 percent of the excess of property taxes paid on the principal residence over 3.5 percent of total income from all sources.

For example, a family with an income of $10,000 and a house with a market valuc of $20,000 will pay property taxes of $500 (at the statewide average tax rate) and be entitled to a credit of $90. The calculation is made this way: First, subtract 3.5 percent uf $10,000 from $500; ($500 minus $350 equals $150). Then multiply $150 by 60 percent. This comes out to $90.

In the third category, the schedule is available only to disabled veterans and the blind who are homeowners. This schedule is similar tu the former Michigan homestead tax exemptions in that the amount of relief is equal to the same share of property taxes as the homestead exemptions provided.

The state equalized value exemption is the same as was provided in the former homestead exemptions - $3,500 for the blind and from $2,500 to $4,500 for veterans. This credit is also limited to $500.

The property tax relief will be received by taxpayers either as a credit against their state income tax liability, or, if the property tax relief to which they are entitled exceeds their income tax liability, they will receive a refund in the same manner as income tax refunds are now received. Those entitled to property tax rebates who do not file an income tax return may apply for their rebate directly on a form provided by the Michigan Deparment of Treasury.

We are determined to cater to the people of Charlevoix on a year-round basis. We have leased three stores in the Market totaling over 3500 square feet. There is a separate store for men, women, and children. The children's store will open in about thirty (30) days, however, we do have some merchandise now available.

Over fifty (50) percent of the store will be stocked in Wrangler products, such as: Mr. Wrangler, Lady Wrangler, Little Wrangler, and Wrangler Boots. We have found that Wrangler gives you your best dollar buy. Other brands we will carry are Campus, Fruit of the Loom, Red Eye, Frizzi, Jane Colby and Aileen, and the merchandise will have a complete guarantee. We plan to run a lot of sales and special promotions to help make your clothing budget stretch longer.

My name is JIM MABEE and my wife SUSAN, and I are the owners. We want to create a friendly family atmosphere in the store, so please feel free to stop in and meet us and browse around. We'll try to keep you up to date on the latest fads & fashions. I have had a good retail background, and come to Charlevoix from Oakland County where I was owner and president of a chain of seven similar stores.

Swanson K & D Take Tourney

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Swansons K & D are the Jimmy Bogart tournament champions!

Ending the long Charlevoix Independent basketball season with a thrilling 61-58 come-from-behind victory over Freedman Arteraft, Swansons richly deserved to be tournament champions. Both of Freedman's losses in the double elimination tournament came at the hands of Swansons.

Beautiful team balance was the key ingredient to the victory. Blending rugged rebounding with a patient offense, Swansons upset Freedman's tempo. The result was an awful second half for the usually fine shooting Freedman team.

Doug Winel paced the second half comeback as Swansons overcame a 36-30 halftime deficit. Winel hit for 10 of his 12 points in the second half and played a fine floor game along with back court mate, Randy DeYoung.

Up front Bruce Meggison, Dave and Kevin Swanson were, for the most part, controlling the boards. Dave Swanson, playing over a bruised shoulder, continued his excellent play of two weeks ago with 13 big points. Normally not a high scorer, he came on strong in the Bogart tournament.

Bruce Meggison was, as usual, superb both on offense and defense. Leading the Swanson offense with 16, Meggison repeatedly made big-plays which kept Freedmans from running away with the game in the first half.

In the second quarter, it looked as though Freedman's would run away with the game. With Bernie DeVries hitting for eight points and Roger Crain and Rick Donaldson 6, Freedman's looked unbeatable in the second quarter. But the team only hit for 11 points in the third quarter, and could not get untracked in the second half.

So the Independent basketball league is finally over with so many champions that it gets confusing. Wojan Aluminum won the Jimmy Bogart "B" Tournament. Charlevoix County State Bank was the Lake Michigan division champions as well as the overall B league champions. Village Milkhouse was the Lake Charlevoix division champions. Finally, the Town House took the coveted city league championship.

Now the 150 partlcipants in the basketball program will hang up their basketball shoes for another year (some might even hing them up for good), and get their arms loosened up for the softball season which is not as far away as you might think.

Men Honored

Salmonson Donates Equipment

Thanks to the generosity of Terry Salmonson, the Charlevoix Cooperative Nursery School has some new play equipment.

Teacher Ann Kelly says the school has needed some climbing equipment for some time since the old equipment collapsed, and Salmonson offered to build it. It took him about 50 hours to do so. It would have cost approximately $200 to porchase a jungle gym, according to Mrs. Kelly.

Now the nursery school children are climbing and sliding to use up excess energy instead of running around the rooms, Mrs. Kelly reports.

Earlier Salmonson donated a five-suled "house" which he had built for his own children while in Germany.

Grants

A spokesman for Northwest Regional Planning and Development Commission said there were 230 applications in the 10-county Northwest Michigan region for HUD funding.

The spokesman also said only six grant applications in the region were successful. Locally, only East Jordan and Harbor Springs were approved.

"Charlevoix's apparently didn't stack up as high as others," the spokesman said.

There are also indications that an application made by the Charlevoix Women's Club through the City of Charlevoix to beautify Park Avenue Beach along Lake Michigan will not be approved.

City officials say the proposal had been designed by the women's group as a bicentennial project to upgrade the park area.

Another proposal submitted by the Building Authority through the city for funds tu buy land for parking lias not received an affirinative nod yet either.

However, Hansen said HUD offiecs in Detroit had contacted him about the application so there apparently is some interest.

Meetings

voted to help finance the replacement of the chassis on tanker owned by five townships including two Antrim county townships; discussed the ambulance service offered by East Jordan including intensive carc service and the purchase of new office equipment. He also explained to the group the responsibilities of the newly-created Tax Tribunal.

Marlon Township

Marion township's proposed budget is $42,000 with $24,000 earnarked for roads according to Traey Curtis, township clerk. Anticipated revenuc is $24,000. Other monies will come from the 1.0 mill allocated to the townships, state and federal revenue sharing and $10,000 on hand.

The possibility of entering into a contraet with Charlevoix township for fire protection was discussed but no action taken on the proposal.

Work will also be done on the township park on Nowland Lake.

St. James township on Beaver Island, at its meeting, offered a 99 year lease on propcrty owned by the township for use as an Historical Park.,

The offer was made to the Beaver Island Historical Society for $1.00 and other considerations for usc as an "outdoor museum." The offer carries the stipulation that the property will revert to the township if no work is done on it in the next five years.

The property has 60 ft. frontage with a depth of 150 ft. and 180 ft. across the rear. It is hoped an authentic log cabin and other early American items such as a piece of rail fence and other such pieces can be placed on the property as a Bi-Centennial project.

The electorate authorized the towns township board to purchasc two parcels of property on the waterfront. One is adjacent to property already owned by the township and the other is next to the yacht basin.

Revenue to underwrite the townships' budget of $24,000 will come from one mill allocated and 4.0 mills voted for operational purposes. All revenue sharing monies are placed in a separate fund to underwrite the cost of building public rest rooms. Vivian Vischer, township clerk said.

Peaine Township

Peaine township has a proposed budget of $24,915 with anticipated income coming, in most part, from 1.0 mills allocated, 4.0 mills voted plus federal and state revenue sharing funds, according to Joseph Martin, township clerk.

Martin said that plans were made to purchase property as a site for a township hall. The present site is owned by an individual and leased to the township. Plans calls for moving the present hull to a new site and enlarging it, Martin said.

Martin said the airport budget, a joint venture between St. James and Peaine townships, will be discussed at a special meeting in April 15. Both townships levy special millage to underwrite the cost of operating the airport.

Ward visited the Antrim Council Dog Shelter and noticed that while the operation was well kept up, they could hear a dog barking from the outside.

Ward asked council if they had received an environmeotal impact statement, in addition to surveying neighboring property owners about the property.

The county commissioner said he had contacted some 35 families, who were equnlly divided over having the shelter on the jail property.

"I had a gut feeling that those who found it acceptable would like it elsewhere," Ward added.

"In regard to our neighborhood up there, I don't know how you could but turn it down."

After hearing several other objections from other residents abuut the noise potential and a promise from Richardson that the county would undertake a change in structural design if there were complaints, City Attorney Don Bertuge advised council of a letter he received from the county prosecutor's office

The county prosecutor's letter informed council that it was his opinion goverinmental units are not bound to local zoning ordinances when attempting to provide governmental services.

Councilwomao Jeannine Wallace said she did think the project presented an undo hardship and was nut in the best interest of the city.

After the meeting, Richardson said the city is going to have to start assuming some of its responsibility.

Presently, he said the city is expecting neighboring townships to take care of such things as the city's junk.

In other business, council:

--Reset the hearing date to consider a building permit for James Corbin to remodel a house into two apartments at 102 Ainsle to April 21, so adjacent property owners could be contacted by letter.

--Approved rezoning the Schleman parcel from Agricultural to R/2 on Stover Road for an athletic club.

--Referred a request from Great Lakes Charter Service for rental of a city dock to the Marine Committee.

Diamond Of Some Substance!

The richest man in the world is said to be the Mizam (prince) of Hyderabad, one of the states of India. His crown jewels alone are probably worth twenty-one million dollars. The Nizam's wealth is so extensive he even uses, nonchalantly, one of his larger diamonds as a paper weight!

Makes Trip from Holland

Former Exchange Student Revisits Charlevoix

Since graduating from Charlevoix High, Nynke has graduated from the University of Amsterdam, worked as a stewardess for KLM Dutch Airlines, and married a college professor.

In her seven years' work with the airlines, which she recently quit, Nynke flew to every continent and visited people and places in all parts of the world. She also had a three-month honeymoon in the Far East, camping out and visiting friends.

"They were the best years of my life," says Nynke, talking about such runs as Amsterdam to Anchorage to Tokyo and visits to places like Jakarta, Bankok, Manila, Sidney, Monrovia, Johannesburg, Caracas, Lima and Rio de Janerio.

Although Nynke and her husband Serge Daan, have been married for over four years, they have spent little time together since their honeymoon. While she has been flying all over the world, Serge has been busy doing research in his field of biology, first for two years in Germany and the last year and a half at Stanford University.

After the first of May both Nynke and Serge will be back in their native Holland where they have bought a farm. Serge will teach at a university and Nynke will become a farmer's wife, doing the gardening, caring for the animals, and spinning the wool and weaving the yarn for rugs for their new home. Nynke says she may also teach geography (her major in college) and hopes to have a family.

Her recent visit was Nynke's third to Charlevoix since graduating. She returned to visit the McRae's in 1965 and 1967. Mr. and Mrs. McRae visited her in Holland in 1963 and Mrs. McRae visited her last year.

Now that she is no longer a stewardess it won't be so easy for Nynke to return to the States but she hopes that anyone reading this article who goes to Holland will contact her and "come for a visit." It is a most sincere invitation. Her home is two hours by train north of Amsterdam and the address, written in Nynke's careful hand, is:

Skyligerwei 4
Village of Morra
Telephone 05183-523

While here Nynke spent most of her time putting together a scrapbook for the McRae's containing her letters and pictures. She also visited the high school to talk with some of her former teachers. One of her teachers was William Ratigan, from whom she took beginning Spanish. She liked the subject so much that she later studied it at the University of Amsterdam and the University of Barcelona. Being able to speak Spanish was a great help in her job, Nynke says, as were the French, German, English and Dutch which she also speaks.

Nynke has not only kept in touch with her American "parents" but with other Charlevoix High School exchange students. Perrti Sabuela from Finland, who was a student here at the same time Nynke was, visited her in 1972. Nynke and Mrs. McRae visited German exchange student Uune Kallmeyer in Germany in 1963.

Another Dutch exchange student, Ria Kroeze, married a KLM pilot and Nynke has seen her often. Ria will be returning to Charlevoix for a visit this summer.

"It's all going to be so simple," says Nynke of her future life, but it is easy to picture this adaptable young lady milking goats and making cheese and digging potatoes.

Build Economically

Converting a porch into an enclosed, year-round room can be one of the most economical ways there is to add needed living space to a home that has become overcrowded.

That's because the porch already has a floor, roof and one wall attached to the house. All that remains is to fill in the three remaining walls and install insulation and windows. If a porch enclosure is handled by a competent do-it-yourselfer, the savings in labor costs can be substantial.

The Western Wood Products Association says careful planning can trim costs even further. When selecting material for the project at the local lumber dealer's, discuss the various grades of framing lumber. You may be able to use a less expensive grade for part if not all of the framing and save on the cost and amount of lumber needed.

When you begin putting the framing together, space the studs at 24-inch intervals instead of the traditional 16 inches. In that way, less framing lumber will be needed.

Studs placed at 24 inches on center results in framing that is entirely adequate and is accepted by the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administartion when used in accordance with FHA Minimum Property Standards.

Labor costs for installing wall insulation can be reduced by as much as one-third over the narrower spacing, because 24-inch wide insulation batts are available to fit snugly between the studs. When windows are designed in modules to fit between the studs, the need for jack studs and cripples is reduced.

Whether you enclose a porch yourself or call in a professional, the use of western framing lumber spaced at 24-inch intervals results in tangible savings in the cost of materials, time and labor.

Treat the Palate

Serving dishes and platters often don't get the attention they deserve. Gourmets will tell you that people dine with their eyes as well as with their taste buds, yet many a kitchen cabinet offers nothing but a few platters and mis-matched bowls.

If your serving pieces need refurbishing, consider a little whimsey when you choose; not everything has to be a serious well-and-tree tray. Double duty cook-and-serve pieces come in a variety of imaginative and attractive shapes.

Baking dishes are molded in the shape of a fish, chicken or duck, either in white glaze ovenware or in porous terra cotta pottery. Vegetables can be served in lidded casseroles painted with their likenesses or actually shaped like a cauliflower or bunch of asparagus. Soup is fished out of a mushroom tureen, and banana splits can be enjoyed in banana-shaped and painted dishes.

The mood is lighthearted: what you see is what's inside! Do the same even with the wine you serve. A delicate white veiling is fetchingly draped over a delightful dry but fruity imported white wine called Wedding Veil, a pleasant, all-purpose answer to what to serve in your deep, all-purpose wine glass. Wedding Veil is a Liebfraumilch, delicate and dry but not at all puckery, the kind of wine you can serve with confidence to both novice and gourmet.

PIQUANT BAKED, STUFFED BASS

Wash and dry a split, eviscerated 4-lb. striped bass; sprinkle inside and out with salt and pepper. Saute 1 chopped onion, 2 tblsps. chopped parsley, ¼ lb. sliced mushrooms in 3 tblsps. margarine until onion yellows, then add mixture to 1 cup soft bread crumbs mixed with 2 tsps. fresh or dried mint. Season to taste. Stuff fish with mixture and close opening with toothpicks or by sewing. Cut several gashes into skin. Put 3 tblsps. oil in baking pan, add fish. Bake in pre-heated 350 degrees oven for 45-50 minutes. Makes 4 servings. Also good with weakfish, mullet and mackerel.

EXPERTS ESTIMATE that you can save as much as 50 percent on clothing by purchasing during off-season sales. After Easter is considered a good time for budgeters to save on clothing.

Fireplaces are in Everyone's Reach

Fireplaces, traditionally linked to higher-priced homes, are increasingly being included in all types of structures, even those in moderate-price ranges.

This newfound popularity of the fireplace has been made possible primarily because of the development of the factory-built unit. These fireplaces can take on a wide variety of period and contemporary designs and can be easily installed in both new and existing homes.

The Fireplace Institute, the major trade association in the field, expects a 10 to 15 percent growth in fireplace volume this year. However, the growth potential for manufactured units is close to 40 percent.

The metal factory-built units cost about $250 each, plus from $250 to $450 for brickwork, wood or other facing. This investment, the Institute finds, can help to increase a home's resale value by as much as 10 percent.

In talks with some architects, builders and buyers, the Institute has encountered some misconceptions about manufactured units. Some call the units "artificial" or "unnatural." However, the Institute counters that the units are not toys or baubles but hardworking amenities constructed of heavy-gauge steel and able to withstand extreme heat concentration.

Manufactured units come complete with their own flues and chimneys which are made for exact fit. This guards against fire hazards, escape of heat and smoke backup. Fireplace hearths may be flush with the floor, raised, cantileved or sunken.

Openings in manufactured fireplaces range in size from 28 to 42 inches, with the 36-inch model the most popular. They come with front, right-handed and left-hand openings, plus combinations of front and side openings for corner or high fashion placement.

To complement the basic unit, pre-packaged facings of brick, stone and marble are readily available, as are various mantels and hoods. The hoods may be hammered, sandblasted, etched or polished metals.

While Fireplace Institute studies show that fireplaces are nearly a necessity in single-family homes in the over $45,000 price range, the amenity is appearing increasingly in more moderately priced units, as well as apartments. In apartments new flue systems are being developed which not only make fireplaces practical but enhance the building's exterior styling. Even high-rise construction can include wood-burning fireplaces on the top two to five floors without adding appreciably to costs. And the higher rents or sales prices possible because of the amenity more than offset the extra construction expense.

SPRING CLEANING TIP

To remove rust stains from a bathtub, spread axalic acid on stained area. Allow to dry, then rinse if necessary. (You can find oxalic acid in local paint stores.)

ABOUT ANIMALS

PIG-TAILED MACAQUE

Pig-tailed Macaques live in the forests of Southeast Asia. They are one of the many kinds of apes from this region that do not have long tails. Their short tailed is often curled like a pig's tail. Pig-tailed Macaques are excellent climbers and are often taught to harvest coconuts.

Famous People in History

ALEXANDER GRAHAM BELL

Alexander Graham Bell was born in Edinburgh, Scotland in 1847. His father was a prominent educator who developed a method of visible speech for the deaf. Alexander Graham Bell came to the United States in 1871 as a teacher of speech for the deaf. In 1873, his experiments led to the invention of the telephone, which he patented in 1876. Bell also invented a machine called the photophone to transmit wireless telephone messages. He invented a recorder for Edison's phonograph and developed methods for the deaf to better communicate. Bell died in 1922 and was elected to the American Hall of Fame in 1950.

COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD

CHAD

Chad is an inland country in northern central Africa. It shares borders with Libya, Sudan, Central African Republic, Cameroon, Nigeria and Niger. Most of northern Chad is in the Sahara Desert. The capital and largest city is Fort-Lamy. Chad is primarily an agricultural country and cotton is the chief export. In 1969, the southern Sahara region began a drought that continues today. The economy of Chad has been severely reduced and many western countries supply aid in the form of food and money.

TANZANIA

Tanzania was formed by the joining of Tanganyika and Zanzibar to make one state. It is located in east central Africa on the Indian Ocean. The capital and largest city is the seaport of Dar es Salaam. Tanzania has shorelines on Africa's three largest lakes, Victoria, Tanganyika and Nyasa. Mount Kilimanjaro, the highest mountain in Africa, is also in Tanzania. The official language is Swahili, but English is common.

His & Hers Permanents

If you're a guy and would like a real change in hairstyle this spring, here's an exciting suggestion — why not try getting your hair permanented?

Debby Bellinger of Helen's says permanents for men are the latest thing and curly-topped guys are claiming that their new locks are giving them a new lease on life—besides, a permanent is easy to care for!

Before you start to scoff, consider this - more and more men are finding permanents a good solution to hair problems. If your hair is naturally thin and fine, curls will give it fullness. By the same token, if your hair is thick and unmanageable, a permanent will give it shape. Many men like a permanent simply because it is so easy to take care of - they don't want to be bothered with fancy hairstyles, and curly locks require a minimum of effort...just wash it, towel-dry and you're off and running!

Not only do the new permanents save time, men claim...they also save on electricity due to the fact that you won't have to use your hair dryer to style your hair each day.

There are many reasons why men are taking to the waves--perhaps the most significant being that men no longer feel restricted to traditional styles of dress and hair—thanks to Women's and Men's Lib!

SPRING CLEANING TIPS

To remove grass stains, work detergent into stain and launder, using bleach.

To remove grease, scrape off as much as possible, then sponge with liquid detergent. Launder as usual.

To remove egg stains, scrape off as much as possible, then sponge with cold water. (Never use hot water, or stain may become permanent.) Work detergent into stain, launder as usual

Spring Fashions in the Wind

Fashions are soft and relaxed this spring, bringing a mood of refined casualness to the season, says Bob Lieberman of Lieberman's.

While the most important silhouette is free-and-easy chemise, detailings such as accented waists, shirring, tucks, and gathers are in the fashion picture as well.

Sleeves take on new prominence this season with elbow-length puffs and trumpets, capelets and kimonos.

And with the warming of the weather, some dresses will feature see-through fabrics, laced-up bodices and bared necklines; popular among the sundress styles are pinafore and apron looks, plus peasant dresses.

Suits for springs have longer, fuller skirts and longer, looser jackets.

Separates continue favorites, ranging from pencil-slim silhouettes to the dirndl look, and pantaloons, culottes and shorts coming on strong in active-wear.

Making color news this season are exciting shades like peach, aquamarine, celadon green, mauve, yellow, red and purple. Other shades such as cream, olive drab and khaki also figure in importance.

The spring fashion feeling is one of softness and casualness...and through it all, a touch of femininity with frou-frou ruffles, flounces and lacy trims galore.

Springtime, when a man's fancy turns to diamonds...for himself.

John Reusch says there's a significant change of attitude that's a noteworthy trend in the man and his accessories. The peacock splendor of recent seasons has turned into polished elegance and it has been a rewarding and an educating experience. The diamond's brilliance no longer flashes with a "Women Only" intimidation. It can have a romantic ruggedness that appeals to the newly attentive male eye.

Rings are especially impressive. Not the traditional birthstone and signet styles; although those have felt the sring breezes of change. But rings with diamonds in settings of deeply textured gold in geometric, sculptured standouts, in channel settings that emphasize with antiquing, enameling, by repeating the diamond's shape.

Diamonds decorate his favorite stone rings: the tiger's eye, lipis, jade, and Linde star rings. They reflect his birthstone in a very special way. They turn his initials into bold graphics for his finger. They spotlight the unusual animal and character portrait rings. They give dashing poise to embebnatic and signet styles. Still other rings enjoy a classic simplicity and a diamond sparkle that are so successful a masculine or a feminine hand can wear them. A great idea for all those couples synonymous with spring.

Bracelets are easily recognized as part of his new charm. Und they have diamond dazzle, too. Ident jewelry that identifies his more deocrative nature will have a bolder link bracelet, be a cuff style, and with diamond dusted letters spell his first name, a word of personal significance, or discreetly flash his initials.

For around his neck and that open collared shirt, a thin chain dangles a single initial flecked with tiny diamond sparks.

Diamonds at his cuffs make the right connections at formal times. In chunky, nuggety gold settings they say STYLE with the unmistakable accents of spring.

Buy Some Pottery

They formulate and mix their own clays to be used on a potter wheel or by hand when making pottery.

They make a variety of functional and decorative pottery that include everything from mugs and casseroles to pie plates, vases and planters.

Their studio is open all year.

Whittle While You Work

Whittle off inches, that is! Physical fitness experts advise housewives to use housework as a means of getting exercise, says Dick Oestrike of Portside Sports.

When making beds, they suggest, tuck in sheets from a knee-bend position. When dusting large surfaces, they recommend working from the far side and stretching those muscles.

When sweeping, keep feet and knees together, bending kees slightly, pushing broom from left to right, while swinging hips and buttocks to left, extending arms to push broom. Reverse movenient for variation.

When washing walls, housewives can firm arm muscles by holding arms straight out, and pushing upward as high as possible.

Night Lights Help

Low-voltage lights can solve the dilemma of outdoor lighting for security and energy conservation this spring. A set of six uses less power than two 60-watt bulbs and is controlled by a safe 12 volts of energy. Even the most "unhandy" do-it-yourselfer can install them since touching a bare wire in a string of these is not even dangerous.

Used discreetly, low-voltage lights can avert an expected reaction to the energy crisis: an increase in residential burglary. Law enforcement officials generally recognize that a dark, quiet home or apartment is a prime target for burglars and prowlers when residents are away for the evening or for a prolonged trip.

Intermatic Malibu lights are low-key security devices. Soft lights glow at appropriate spots subtly highlighting walks or entrances to the home to prevent stumbling and also to discourage intruders.

Long a part of landscape enhancement in several areas nationally, these Malibu lights, which come in various shapes and heights, are creating a positive protective measure for homes.

Installation is simple, according to the manufacturer. Fixtures can go anywhere on cables and are attached by connectors that pierce the cable insulation. No splicing or taping is needed and lamps may be rearranged at will without damaging the cables, they explain.

Share this spring with a loved one, friend, shut-in—with the finest Holland bulb plants, daffodils, tulips, hyacinths, and crocus blooming for you now at our three locations in Petoskey, Charlevoix, and Boyne City. OR plant bulbs in your very own garden for a dream come true this summer. Our new Spring bulb stock is in our stores now, just waiting for your selection.

Inflation - Proof Tips On Buying Furniture

Today's economy-conscious homemaker, surrounded with vast furnishing choices, looks for professional advice to make up her mind when buying furniture.

To help resolve furnishing dilemmas, yet speed home redecorating this spring, furniture stylists at Babcock Phillips Co., have compiled a list of five tips for a good furniture buy. Each of the ideas keeps inflation from needlessly short changing decorating dollars. The experts say:

1) Select easy-care furnishings that you can clean yourself. Carefree vinyls or other washable fabrics endure seasons of family activity and require little upkeep.

2) Choose furniture that can be built-up. For example, some modular styles allow you to "add-on" pieces as your budget permits. One unit makes a chair, two a loveseat and three, a sofa.

Modulars, which are staging a timely comeback, allow the do-it-yourself homemaker to vary the look of a room by self-styling her own room schemes. A never-out-of-fashion style, modular furnishings conform to the shape of a room.

3) Made-to-move furniture is another inflation-proof investment. Durable, long-lasting additions that move easily from house to house and room to room are a perfect accompaniment for today's go-anywhere lifestyles. Hassocks on casters, for example, scoot from living room to den. Other ready-made movables are stack pillows and cushioned poufs.

4) Buy dual-purpose furniture that returns the investment two ways. For instance, a low-profile coffee table with handy seats tucked underneath not only serves up snacks or dinner but adds valuable seating to a space-pressed room.

5) Add color through furnishings, advise the Babcock Phillips stylists. An alternative to paint and paper remodeling, are colorful bright and bond furnishings which "paint" their environment. Color, which brightens and highlights, is an inexpensive way to give a room fresh zip.

Due to inflation's pinch, homemakers who once considered vast structual chianges to the premises are settling for a few dollar-sound furnishing investments instead. The furnishing pieces they are putting in their homes are staying put – and happily so – for years to come.

School Election Next Monday

Officials Explain Millage Proposals

By Fran Martin

Voters of the Charlevoix School District will go to the polls Monday to vote on three proposals...a 2.75 mill issue for three years for operational purposes, a $200,000 bond issue to purchase a site for a proposed new high school and a $1.2 million bond issue to underwrite the cost of improving the present Middle School and expanding the existing high school building.

In explaining the need for the 2.75 mills for operating purposes, Supt. James A. McKimmy said this amount would be necessary to meet the current cost of the present program.

He said that despite rising costs, the school is being operated this year on an austerity budget that is .3 percent less than the 1973-74 budget.

Thus, if the present program is to be continued, he said the 2.75 mills will be necessary to keep abreast of it as the result of rising costs.

Actually, the 2.75 mills will bring the Charlevoix school district up to the level that neighboring schools have been levying millage for some time. This year the district levied 21.7 mills including 9.2 mills allocated and 12.5 mills voted. The additional 2.75 mills will bring the total to 24.45 mills, a point reached by other area schools earlier.

The Cost?

Among the first questions asked regarding the increase in millage was "How much will it cost me in dollars and cents?"

The answer: If you have a home valued at $20,000 you are assessed 50 percent of true cash value or $10,000 which would cost you $27.50 more than you paid this year. Or, if you had a $40,000 home you would be assessed at $20,000 and pay $55.00 additional tax.

The 2.75 mills is needed to balance the proposed 2,021,248 budget necessary to maintain the present program.

The loss of the proposed 2.75 mills in Monday's election will mean the loss of a minimum of eight classroom teachers ($80,000), a recreation director in cooperation with the city ($5,000), the board cost of all programs outside the classroom for Kindergarten through the 12th grade ($35,000), wages and salary increases for administrators and all non-certified personnel ($29,000) and an assistant principal required for North Central Accreditation ($9,000) all of which would add up to $158,000.

He said this would leave the board with the job of finding ways of cutting another $34,500 from the budget.

$2 Million

How does the board propose tu spend its $2 million budget? Thusly, 63.6 percent for instruction; 2.3, special education; 6, summer school; .2, adult education; 4.4 administration; .2, health services; 6.6 transportation; 9.8, operation of the plant; 1.5, maintenance; 9.4, fixed charges including insurance, teachers retirement and other required payments; 1.0, capital outlay; .2, community service and .2, Voc-Ed tuition.

The proposed purchase of a site for a new high school and the expansion of the present high school and the improvement of the middle school were also discussed.

These two proposals together would cost the school district a maximum of two mills over a 16 year period with the millage decreasing as valuations rise, officials said.

The passage of this millage is encouraged because of the continuing growth of the school district. The school population at the opening of the 1974-75 school year was 1752. In less than six months it had increased to 1772 and two weeks ago it had reached 1795. This newest figure has passed the projected enrollment of 1790 for 1976-77 school year.

Continued Growth

Numerous persons present, in discussing the continued growth, agreed this is no accounting for new people in the area because there is no new industry and existing industries are not hiring. Several businessmen present said they had found the growth reflected in their businesses when other areas are closing classrooms and business is declining.

He asked those present to carry the message to others that the school district might have a successful election on Monday.

The polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. Deadline for voting by absentee ballot is 2 p.m. Saturday.

Councilman McRae Petitions For Charlevoix Mayoral Ballot Recount

Charlevoix County Board of Canvassers will recount last week's Charlevoix mayoral election on April 22, according to County Clerk Clarence Rabach.

The recount comes after mayoral candidate Ralph McRae filed a petition late last week April 7.

McRae, a Charlevoix City Councilman, had been defeated by incumbent Mayor Edward Hansen after the County Board of Canvassers awarded the mayor with 18 questionable ballots following the election.

Until the canvassers decision, McRae had received 623 votes to Hansen's 618.

Rabach said the board is expected to meet on April 22 at 9:30 a.m. at the Charlevoix City Hall with the State Director of Elections to recount the ballots.

McRae charges in his petition that the city election inspectors failed to account for all absentee ballots, properly identify candidates by given name, illegally assisted voters inside the machine and campaigned at the voting place.

Other charges include wrongfully using voting machines, incorrectly tabulating vote due to mechanical difficulties with voting machines, illegally accepting late registration of voters and failed to allow him to attend the County Board of Canvasser's meeting to certify the mayor's election, which he claims is in violation of the law.

McRae has asked all three of Charlevoix's city wards be recounted as well as absentee ballots.

Those serving on the Board of County Canvassers are Lois Wasoski, Charlevoix; Loeta Dunsmore, Boyne City; Beth Genet, Charlevoix; and Alma Swanson, Charlevoix.

Rabach said this is the last administrative step that can be taken to contest the election before going to the courts.

Board Sets June 9 Election Date

The Charlevoix Board of Education set June 9 as the date of the regular school election and approved bids for school buses before adjourning and attending a public meeting in the high school cafeteria Monday night.

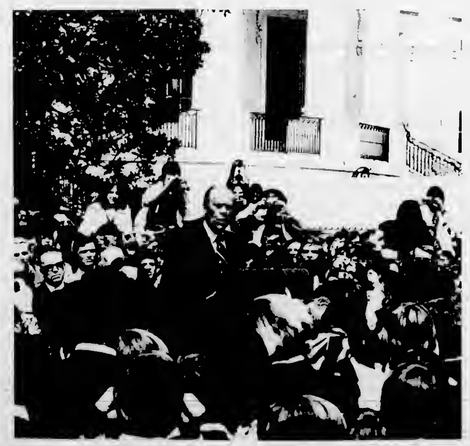
In approving the date for the election to fill one vacancy it was announced that May 12 was the final date residents of the school district could register for this election. The term of Charles Elzinga expires June 30. He will not be a candidate for re-election.

Bids for school bus chassis and bodies were approved but the purchase of any new buses is contingent on the outcome of Monday's millage election. The chassis bid approved was for a Ford vehicle in the amount of $8,600 submitted by Erber Auto Co. and the body bid of $6,690 for a Bluebird body submitted by the Great Lakes Coach Sales Co. was accepted. It was emphasized, however, that nothing would be done until after the millage vote Monday despite the fact that the school district presently has four 1967 buses on which it can no longer receive state aid after this year.

After having the Building Trades house in Hampton Village appraised, a sale price of $35,000 was set for the structure which has been constructed by the Building Trades classes at the high school. This price is to include sales expenses and the payment of the sewer assessment.

In other action, the board approved a White Elephant sale to be conducted in its behalf by the Band Boosters for the purpose of raising funds to support the band.

Accepted a gift of a tree to be planted at the high school site for Arbor Day from the Charlevoix Garden Club.



Washington Isn't the Same

What Does the Younger Generation Think?

by KEN WINTER

WASHINGTON--What's happening to today's generation?

Ask them and they'll probably tell you to "bug off."

A couple of years ago it might have been a rock through a window.

Four years ago, it took me five quarts of Quaker State Motor Oil and 10 hours of driving in my beat-up 1961 Chevy to make it to the nation's capitol.

Now all it takes is my American Express Credit Card and a quick Flight on United Airlines.

Last time, I wore a pair of blue jeans and Ban-Lon shirt and was filled with answers on how to solve all the world problems. All I needed was a semester at Washington's American University to take off a few of the rough edges.

This time, I had a tie and coat, as well as a brief case filled with questions and problems and not really a solution to anything. All I wanted was a few hours with some sharp people to see if they could shed a glimmer of hope on problems I had no solution for.

Even the White House seems different.

At about this same time four years ago, only a few could get a glimpse of the person they ask about most--the President of the United States.

You couldn't even get near the high black iron fence that surrounds the stately white structure because it was surrounded by buses and sand bags and nervous National Guard troops gripping bayoneted rifles.

Last weekend, tourists were allowed to roam the White House grounds and then go inside to view the mansion's public rooms. The White House was guarded by members of the Executive Protective Service, who instead of wearing the usual police uniform, had on gray slacks and dark blue blazers.

Before, students outside the grounds were yelling and screaming to end the war. Occasionally, a tear gas bomb was thrown to disperse the crowd if it was getting too large.

Then the placards would fall to the ground as hundreds scattered.

Now, the President lets hundreds of students from across the nation inside the White House to discuss their concerns about getting a job and becoming a part of a viable nation.

While a President four years ago made it known he was sitting inside the White House watching a Sunday afternoon football game and wouldn't bend to wishes of "a few" dissident protesters, the President now invites them into his Oval Office and starts shaking their hands.

Last week, the President shook more than 700 student hands and met with another 1,700 students for over an hour in the Rose Garden.

During the Senate Watergate hearings a former presidential aide said he would advise young people to "stay away" from government.

The President is now saying that was poor advice then and it's poor advice now.

While students before were piling into Washington by the car and busload to protest the war by marching around the White House, they're coming in now by the hundreds for seminars with politicians, bureaucrats, lobbyists, national newsmen and military teachers to learn how governments operates.

Instead of camping out near the Washington Monument and bathing in the Reflecting Pool, they're staying at some of Washington's finest hotels and setting up mock conventions to learn more about the political process.

What's happening to today's younger generation? It's hard to say.

When I ask, all I get is that funny look of "what difference does it make to you anyway?" Then I looked at myself and remembered my placard was gone.

MICHELINE BORG

Girl Attempts to Unite Relatives

A sixteen-year-old Charlevoix girl is trying to weave her way through immigration red tape to bring her two younger sisters to Charlevoix.

Micheline Borg, her mother and her sister Caroline, 18, came here about six and a half months ago from Malta. She says it took them over six months to secure their immigration papers but it is taking longer for her sisters to receive permission to enter the country because they have no one to help them.

They are natives of Cannda and Micheline hopes that now they have finally received birth certificates it won't take much longer.

Micheline won't be 17 until July but she was graduated from high school in Malta. Her step-father is Dave Anderson, who is a teacher's aide in building crafts at Charlevoix High School.

Charlevoix Music Departments Presents Last of Three Concerts

The music department of Charlevoix High School will conclude the series of three musical presentations by students of the Charlevoix public schools with a Band Concert next Sunday, April 20, 1975 at 3:00 p.m.

Participating will be the Charlevoix High School Concert and Symphony Bands. There will be no admission charge but the audience will be given an opportunity to make a contribution to the band fund.

The program to be played by both bands will include the music played at the recent district band festival, and will be the program to be played by the symphony band at the State Band and Orchestra Festival to be held on May 3, in Traverse City.

The program will open with the concert band, made up of ninth and tenth graders, playing the K.L. King March "Wings of Army", followed by the "German Masters Suite," a group of three short compositions by Haydn, Mozart and Beethoven. This composition was one of the required numbers performed at the February festival. Following this will be the "Overture for Winds" by Carter, a contemporary composition, and concluding the concert band portion of the program with Jerry Bilik's fine concert march "Block M".

The symphony band, preparing for participation in the state festival, will open their portion of the program with the festival numbers– "The Nutmeggers", by Osterling, the required "Festival Prelude" by Reed and the selected "Overture in B Flat" by Giovannini. Also included in the program will be a repeat performance of the march "The Sinfonians", Leroy Anderson's delightful "Song of the Bells", "The Mexican Hat Dance" and John Philip Sousa's March dedicated to the State of Michigan, "Pride of the Wolverines".

Odmark, who will conduct both bands, emphasizes that the program will last not over 90 minutes. There is no admission and all parents, friends and citizens of the area are urged to attend.

Breast Exams Still Available

There is still an opportunity for local women to take advantage of the breast examination clinic being sponsored by the Cancer Society and the Charlevoix Area Hospital.

The final two days of the clinic are today (April 16) and next Wednesday, April 23. The clinic is held at the hospital, with appointments being made for 12:30, 1:30 and 3:30 in the afternoon and at 6:30 in the evening. Those wanting appointments may make them by calling the hospital at 547-6531. The clinic is free of charge.

Sixty-two women were examined at the first two clinics and 12 of them showed "positive" results, which means they should have further examinations.

Enrollment Begins

Monday, April 21, will be E-Day, enrollment day, for the children of the Charlevoix School District who will be entering school for the first time in September 1975, Ralph Raymer, K-8 principal, has announced.

On that day parents of all children who will be five years old by Dec. 1, 1975, are asked to register the child or children at the elementary building located on Division ave. on the city's north side.

Parents are asked to bring only the child being registered and the child's birth certificate.

Mrs. Dean Davenport, school nurse, will be present to confer with each parent and to start each child's health record. She will also give an explanation of requirements of the State of Michigan relating to the child's health records. A date will be given for August when parents may return this information to school to qualify the child for entrance into kindergarten.

Parents of children whose last name begins with any letter from "A" through "K" are asked to register the pre-schooler between 9 a.m. and 12 noon.

Parents of children whose last name begins with any letter from "L" through "Z" should register their children between 1 and 3:30 p.m.

In announcing the annual "Kindergarten Round-up", Mr. Raymer urged parents of children eligible for entry into kindergarten in the fall to register the children at the designated times and to begin the health requirements as described by Mrs. Davenport.

Present kindergarten students will attend school on the date of registration for next year's youngsters.

Seven County Area Map Available Through AAA

A new, color map showing roads and highways in a seven-county segment of the northwestern Lower Peninsula on one side and a detailed map of Traverse City and its streets on the reverse is now available to Automobile Club of Michigan members.

Counties included on the new map are Grand Traverse, Leelanau, Benzie, Emmet, Charlevoix, Antrim and Kalkaska, states Fred Doelker, Auto Club Traverse City area manager.

This is the first time that Auto Club has published a two-color map of Traverse City, Doelker said. The Club is now in the process of updating its city maps and converting them to color. The Traverse City map is one of a series of 12 now being converted to color.

The 'Mom and Pop' Days

By PEG OHLE

To some they are known as "Mom and Pop" stores-those friendly little neighborhood groceries that are the delight of small children and a convenience to adults.

Charlevoix is fortunate in having three of these reminders of the past, where friends do business with friends.

Ken and Arlene Staley operate Staley's Market on Antrim Street. It has been in the family since 1922, first run by his maternal grandfather, Steven Smith, then his father, and since 1950 by Ken and Arlene. Staley's carries a general line of groceries and fresh produce augmented by beer and wine, magazines and newspapers, some drug items and other bits of merchandise like writing tablets, birthday cards, brooms, scrub pails, panty hose, needles and thread and sunglasses.

Party Store

Staley says his store is really a party store, selling a large volume of pop, snack items and beer and wine. It used to be mostly a neighborhood store, but now, because of the party store emphasis, customers come from all over the area seven days a week.

When Ken and Arlene took over the store there was a barrel of bulk brown sugar and a kerosene tank, and cold meats were sliced by hand. The turn-of-the-century building is now complete with a large cooler, freezer and other modern appliances. The Staley's are in the process of re-papering their walls with old advertising-type paper and putting in new flooring.

Grandma and grandpa wouldn't recognize it!

Maryallce Gebeau has been running her grocery store on Lincoln Street alone since her husband died almost ten years ago.

It is the type of neighborhood store that many adults will recall from their childhood, where parents sent them to buy a loaf of bread and rewarded them with a penny to buy a piece of candy.

Two-Cent Candy

Today this candy is two pennies apiece but the rewards are still being paid by local parents. When we were in the store recently a little brother and sister came in to buy a lunch item for their mother and clutching four pennies. "Soft candy for her and hard candy for me," was the brother's order.

Gebeau's has been in business since 1932, when Harry and Maryallce bought the building that still houses the store. The shelves are neatly stacked with canned goods, laundry supplies, cereals, crackers, cookies, bread, coffee, tea, pop, beer and wine and dozens of other items. There are also sundries such as razor blades, pocket combs, flints for cigarette lighters and shoe laces.

Mrs. Gebeau has arranged a window seat in the front of the store for young people to sit while they drink their pop and eat their chips and sweets. They are well behaved, too, Mrs. Gebeau says. She doesn't permit smoking, bad language or scuffling.

Past Reminders

There are reminders of the past in the Gebeau Grocery–a framed 1906 advertising calendar from the Grand Rapids Brewing Company, her grandmother's mantel clock bearing the inscription "Time Is Money" and a paper cutter and ball of twine used for wrapping purchases.

Mrs. Gebeau has a "living room" in back of her store furnished with upholstered chairs, tables, a television set and an antique barber's wash basin. Here she does her needlepoint work and watches her favorite shows when the little bell on the front door isn't ringing.

Eighty-year-old Mrs. Gebeau doesn't do a large enough business to have her merchandise delivered to her, so each weekend her son William comes over from Rogers City, where he lives, to deliver the stock he has picked up at a wholesale outlet.

"I have seen most of them grow up," Mrs. Gebeau says of her customers, and one can tell she enjoys them all.

Always Open

Store hours at Gebeau's begin "when the bread man comes" and continue through the dinner hour seven days a week. When Mrs. Gebeau has her hair done or errands call her out of the store, a friend takes over. They are long but not lonely days for her.

When Andy Essenberg opened his neighborhood grocery store on Garfield Street 23 years ago, most of the area to the south was fields. Now there is a subdivision and the headquarters of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Department.

Almost 50 Years

Essenburg's has been a grocery store, operated by several different owners, for almost 50 years. There have been many additions and changes in the building during that time but it still has the flavor of a store serving the needs of the neighborhood.

"Except for fresh meats and some produce our customers can buy everything they need here," Essenburg says. He sells all types of groceries and party items, including beer, wine and liquor.

"It seems funny," Essenburg adds, "but some of the kids I used to sell bubble gum to now are old enough to come in and buy liquor."

As with most neighborhood groceries, customers at Essenburg's are people he has known through the years. They are those who live in the houses around him and summer residents in resort communities like the Belvedere Club.

The store is open from 8:00 in the morning until 10:00 at night, seven days a week, and closed only on Christmas Day during the year. "We really give service," Essenburg says proudly.

Barbara Essenburg helps her husband with the store three days a week and they have other part time employees. Essenburg's is a visiting place for neighbors, "especially around election time", the store owner reports. Andy Essenburg is a former mayor of Charlevoix and maintains a lively interest in politics.

Women Recognize Volunteers

As part of International Women's Year, the month of April has been set aside for "doers" of the community – volunteers and voluntary service and auxiliary organizations.

Each month of 1975 has been designated as a special month to honor women in various fields of endeavor. International Women's Year is the outgrowth of a United Nations Commission on the Status of Women and is being celebrated throughout the world. Its objectives are three-fold:

–To promote equality between men and women.

–To ensure the full participation of women in all aspects of national and international life the United Nations calls it "integration in development".

–To recognize the contributions of women to the promotion of friendly relations and cooperation among nations and to world peace.

The United Nations Commission on the Status of Women suggests that these objectives might be briefly stated as "equality, development and peace."

Dave Fershee Named Judge

David Fershee

Gov. William G. Milliken announced last week the appointment of David W. Fershee of Charlevoix, as Judge of the Ninetieth Judicial District of Michigan for the Counties of Charlevoix and Emmet.

Fershee, 402 Antrim Street, a Charlevoix attorney, succeeds Arthur R. Reibel, who resigned, and will serve a term expiring January 1, 1977. He will have to run in the next general election to retain the position.

He is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law and is admitted to practice in the Michigan and Florida Courts and United States District Court, Western District of Michigan.

He is a member of the American, Michigan and Florida Bar Associations, the Young Lawyers Section of the American and Michigan Bar Associations, Vice President of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association, and Law Day chairman 1975, and member of the American Judicature Society.

Senate confirmation is not required.

Absentee Ballots Used in Elections

There were 380 absentee ballots cast in the last city election.

These absentee voters were taking advantage of a statute which permits such balloting for one or more of the following reasons:

(1) Absence from community on election day

(2) Physical inability to appear at the polls

(3) Appearing at polls a violation of religious tenets

(4) Working as an election inspector in precinct other than own

(5) Having attained 62 years of age or more

Reasons for casting absentee ballots appear on the applications for such ballots but a count of the various reasons is not kept separately, according to the City Clerk's office. However, they indicate that in most cases it is because the voter will be out of town on election day. They have no recollection of anyone asking for an absentee ballot because of religious tenets.

The right of senior citizens to cast absentee ballots was lowered from 65 to 62 about two years ago.

Editorials/Opinions

Charlevoix Could Gain Business

Strange as it may seem, it's not too late to be thinking about snowmobiling.

In fact, as summer resort owners begin making their sojourns back to Charlevoix we think now is the time to consider snowmobile trails.

Unlike many other communities in the area, Charlevoix doesn't appear to get as much direct benefit from the ski industry.

But even so, we think there is no reason why Charlevoix can't benefit from the thousands of people that flood Northern Michigan every winter to enjoy the outdoors.

Snowmobiling has been a major sport for the people of Northern Michigan and now some communities have been able to turn it in to a great economic stimulant.

While we don't particularly endorse snowmobiling as a recreational sport for ecological reasons, we do recognize that the vast majority of Michigan residents own and enjoy the vehicles.

Because of this interest, we see the need for more groomed trails that snowmobilers can use to have a safe and pleasurable time.

One community that recognized the potential growth of snowmobiling three years ago was the Upper Peninsula community of Paradise.

They realized that historically Northern Michigan tourist-related businesses close after color season and after that time it was also impossible to provide even basic visitor needs.

So no one did. And the only ones to really encourage people to come to Northern Michigan was the ski resort industry.

Residents in Paradise then began to realize that visitors, most of which traveled hundreds of miles, were greatly impressed by the natural beauty of the region, but were sadly disappointed in the availability of snowmobile trails.

So in the fall of 1972, Paradise residents contacted Michigan State University's extension service, who in turn began to study the possibility of developing a winter economy based on the snowmobile traffic.

After many suggestions on how to convert seasonally operated businesses to year around operations, the community established a trail committee and laid out a basic trail on paper.

Up to this time, the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, who control and manage thousands of aeres surrounding the community, had not been actively developing trails in the area but were closely watching the ever increasing demand.

After many stormy sessions, the DNR and townspeople were able to get together and build a trail between Paradise and Tahquamenon Falls.

The community even purchased grooming equipment and regularly maintained the trails because they soon learned that trails that are not groomed are not worthy much.

Now Paradise has become the "in" place for serious snowmobilers to make an annual deep snow vacation.

And a community that had to work hard in the summer in order to survive through the long cold winter has a year around economy.

While Charlevoix's situation isn't completely like Paradise because we are fortunate to have many year 'round industries, there are some parallels.

Perhaps some of the businesses now open only for a summer season might find some interest to remain open for a longer season if they knew there would be a reason to stay open.

And many of the businesses that do remain open might find it easier to operate knowing there would be more people going through Charlevoix.

We feel more business could be generated if Charlevoix was able to develop a snowmobile trail that entices more tourists to our area.

It might not even be necessary for Charlevoix to do the entire project itself.

Perhaps there would be a possibility to join in with other communities in the area and connect with already existing trails with Charlevoix perhaps being the starting point.

In addition to a direct economic benefit, we think a trail might encourage a more concentrated area for snowmobiling instead of tearing up the entire countryside and upsetting many natural habitats.

We would encourage the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce to explore the possibility of developing a trail.

During the next few months, when our resort owners return to the area, maybe the Chamber could check with them and see what their reaction to the possibilities would be.

At the same time, we encourage local snowmobilers to discuss it with their friends and through their associations to see if there is an interest.

We feel a trail to this area is possible and we urge local businessmen to consider the possibilities.

Children Upset Citizen

April 1, 1975

Dear Editor--

It's THAT time of year when public school officials begin badgering the voters for increased millage for school operations, frills or 'what have you'...Granted that Society has changed from the days of the little country school house--still there must be a happy medium between that happy day and Today's exhorbitant demands.

There's something woefully wrong when defiant pupils walk three abreast in roadways and refuse to step into single file to allow autos to pass by! The pupils seem unconcerned that approaching cars in the down lane or close-following vehicles in the up lane could maim or kill and young jaywalkers hurl profane insults at the motorists as though the drivers were trespassing.

There's something wrong when vindictive youngsters twist radio antennaes from auto moorings and trample them underfoot on their way to school or at play or at athletic contests in the local gym.

There's something wrong when teenagers saunter schoolward stinking like smoke-laden pool halls as they pollute the morning air with tobacco cigarettes--or worse.

Still parents of these young ingrates as well as school officials expect--even demand, that taxpayers (bachelors, spinsters, childless couples and senior citizens) support such Satanic behavior by giving sick kids more and ever more extra curricular advantages in the public schools.

Parents in West Virginia are calling a halt to the seduction of their young...It's high time Michigan parents and taxpayers say 'no more' until such time as discipline and moral standards are re-established along meaningful, virtuous lines in reading, writing and arithmetic.

Yours truly,
Overtaxed Taxpayer.

McRae Thanks Voters

The Charter Commissioners are already in action. It is hoped that they proceed quickly, but very, very thoroughly.

It would be a most wonderful thing if the recommended Charter change would be ready for the November election. There will be some controversial subjects. They should not be avoided, but should be brought to a final acceptance.

Most of the citizens of our city are not only uninformed, but in many instances they have been initially misinformed by politically motivated persons.

The Charter commissioners, besides doing their duty, must also sell the voters on their suggestions, as they go along. It would be a futile sacrifice on their part, if a good Charter was defeated simply because the public does not receive the proper information.

One thing is needed in our town and that is a citizen's group, organized to promote and sell the Charter.

Presently, there is no local citizen's organization that will get involved in civic issues. Unfortunately, too, not many individuals have stood up and publicly supported the Charter study.

In the recent election, I am sure I lost the Mayorality race due to the fact that many, many people did not vote for me because of my connection with the Charter. But, I was willing to take that chance. To me, the passage of the Charter Revision proposal was more vital to Charlevoix than the electing of a mayor for a single year.

Everyone of the 526 people who voted for the Charter should be very proud of themselves.

I will also take this opportunity to thank the 600 or more people who voted for me. I appreciate their confidence.

Ralph McRae

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

OK, call me a thief, because that's what I am. But it was worth it.

So many times this spring I've stood in front of the house wringing my hands as the Kiwanis sap buckets on the big maple tree out by the street filled to the brim and then overflowed, sending rivulets of maple sap onto the ground--sometimes for days ut a time.

When it happened again Sunday, I determined I wouldn't let the precious sap go to waste. I would make maple syrup.

So I hurried into the house, rummaged around until I found a cup, a sieve and a stainless steel pan and began dipping into our two overflowing pails. I didn't take much, mind you, because I'm not a very good thief, but I took enough to keep the pails from dripping for an hour or so.

In the process, I dipped my finger into the sap and tasted it. It wasn't at all sweet, but then sap never is.

A half hour later the sap was bubbling on the stove and the kids kept climbing up on the kitchen stool to watch. Danny thought I was boiling water and gave me some mighty peculiar looks.

After an hour, it looked as though I still had as much sap as I started with, although the kitchen was starting to smell like a sugar shack.

"This pan's too deep," I complained to Judy.

"Then why don't you use the canner," she said.

So I resurrected the canner from the nether regions of the pantry and poured the bubbling sap into its new container. It hardly covered the bottom.

I really didn't plan on taking more of the Kiwanis sap, but once you embark on a life of crime, it's hard to stop. However, church was over and traffic on Dixon-ave. was a lot heavier than it was when I lifted my first sap. A fellow can look pretty guilty standing under his maple tree with a two-cup dipper in one hand and a mixing bowl in the other. Folks are going to know he's up to something, particularly if they've just been to church.

So when the Willis Keisers came walking down the street I told them exactly what I was doing and they seemed sympathetic. After all, confession is good for the soul.

An hour later, I dipped a spoon into the old bubbly and tasted it again. This time the sugar taste was unmistakable. I made all the kids take a sip. Jennifer accused me of lacing the sap with sugar.

More hours passed. I tried to read but fell asleep. When I awoke, the sap was almost gone from the canner and the residue didn't exactly look like syrup. I poured the whole mess back into the original stainless steel pot so I could see it better. It wasn't brown like syrup should be, but instead had a faintly yellow cast. Then suddenly, just like that, the sap turned to syrup. The big watery bubbles turned to sappy little sugar bubbles and I turned off the heat.

The kids gathered 'round as I emptied the contents into the measuring cup. There were eight ounces exactly. One by one the kids each had a taste, and although they were puzzled at first by that faintly aerid aftertaste characteristic of maple syrup, they agreed that it is about the best syrup they have ever run into.

And it is. I was sort of sorry it didn't come out brown, but color isn't that important. After all, who says syrup has to be brown? It's the taste that counts.

In all fairness to the Kiwanis Club, I should mention that the club's big syrup collection truck drove on the scene about five minutes after I made my last sap heist.

I sort of expected the collectors to come storming up on the porch when they saw my buckets didn't have as much sap as the rest, but they didn't. Maybe they're just too polite.

To make amends, I would like to point out that the Kiwanis sap makes excellent syrup, and I ought to know. But why not buy some and find out for yourself?

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

At my last meeting with East Jordan, we set up the Heritage Committee and the Festival and Horizons Committees, and discussed a few tentative projects.

George Secord and the Heritage Committee are planning on composing an area history including that of the town and the Norwegian, Bohemian, and German settlements. They have already collected many pictures and soon will be putting it together.

Ginny Giacomelli and Betty Boswell have been working on the Heritage Committee to establish a museum. The garage out at Elm Point is being discussed as a possible location. Once their plans have become more definite, with estimated costs, they will apply for funding.

The Festival Committee is planning the biggest Fourth of July celebration that the town has seen in a long time. They are toying with the idea of having a bazaar with the ethnic groups participating and a flea market. They would like to hire some Country and Western entertainment. A parade and fireworks are in order. Youth and adult games, a costume judging contest, and a "Jail" for party offenders are brewing.

Jim LaDue and Gary "Buck" Chak have located $7,500 from the parks and recreation for the Horizons Committee. With this money they hope to put trees along the main street and develop their Memorial Park. The park needs to be cleaned up, some shrubbery removed, benches and tables put in, a sidewalk around the big rock, the waterfront needs to be fixed up by either removing the old docks or repairing them. A breakwall needs to be constructed to stop the erosion. They will be applying for funds shortly.

Nixon Needed a Dummy

By JIM FITZGERALD

It would have been a splendid thing for all involved if Richard Nixon had hired a Miami dummy instead of H.R. Haideman.

For $25,000, Haldeman appeared on CBS TV to show is home movies which revealed for the first time how fat John Ehrlichman looks in a bathing suit.

The 2-hour interview with Mike Wallace also provided America with its first sustained look at Haldemon's new haircut. When he testified before the Watergate committee last year, Haldeman had a tight brushcut and he looked like an army lieutenant in 1943. Today he wears his hair longish, expensively cut and blown dry. It's a good disguise, but the CIA reports he still wears khaki underwear.

Many thoughtful journalists, electronic and hand-propelled, have criticized CBS for "buying news." There is a great fear that an alarming precedent has been set. If an interview with Haldeman is worth $25,000, how much would Walter Cronkite pay for a few words with Richard Nixon?

When the last domino falls, the world may never hear it because Mike Wallace didn't have anything smaller than a $100 bill and Henry Kissinger didn't have change.

But back to Haldeman. The most interesting thing he said for $25,000 was that an important part of his White House job was to sometimes NOT do what Nixon ordered him to do.

Haldeman explained that Nixon sometimes wanted some weird things done (the noise you did not hear was the sound of millions of TV viewers not falling off their chairs upon hearing this non-news). Nixon would insist that Haldeman do this dumb thing immediately and Haldeman would say, "Yes sir, right away."

But then he wouldn't do it. Haldeman deliberately disobeyed orders from the commander in chief. "I knew he was just letting off steam," Halderman said for $25,000. A few days later Nixon would ask him if the dirty deed had been performed and Haldeman would say no and Nixon would say, "Good, I knew you wouldn't do it."

Haldeman did not say what he refused to do for Nixon. He probably figures such information is worth more than $25,000. In view of what he DID do for his leader, he is right. Some publisher would probably pay $2 million for blueprints of Nixon's aborted plan to drop a nuclear bomb on the Washington Post.

But I cannot help but ponder how different history would read if Haldeman had disobeyed EVERY Nixon order. Better yet, what if Nixon had left Haldeman in Disneyland and instead installed a Miami dummy as his chief aide?

On a few Miami freeways they are adding outside lanes reserved strictly for cars with at least 3 occupants. The ides is to encourage car pools and save gasoline. Policemen count the bodies as they speed by. Sneaky motorists who don't have 2 friends are using inflation to drive in the express lanes illegally. They inflate 2 life-size rubber dummies, put hats on them, and put one in the backseat and one in the front.

If one of those dummies had been anchored at H.R. Haldeman's desk, none of Richard Nixon's orders would have been obeyed. There would have been no Watergate coverup, Nixon would still be in the White House, spouting harmless steam at a rubber dummy, and Gerald Ford would still be playing football without a helmet. It would be a far, far better world for all. But...

Haldeman says he needs o job so he can pay his lawyers. His sad experience with Nixon has obviously taught Haldeman the great value of just sitting and doing nothing. Maybe there's a Miami driver with an opening for a dummy in khaki underwear.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Evelyn Seger

The month of April is Cancer Month, the month when approximately 350 volunteers are making the rounds in Charlevoix County to collect funds for research and to help care for victims of this dread disease.

Mrs. Evelyn Seger of Charlevoix is this year's chairman of the County Crusade. This week Mrs. Seger tells the Courier about the fund drive and gives some information about cancer derived from booklets supplied by the American Cancer Society.

COURIER: What is the money that is collected by the Cancer Society used for?

SEGER: Part of the money will remain in Charlevoix County to provide services, dressings and other material for needy cancer patients. The remainder will go to the American Cancer Society for continued research and cure of malignancies.

COURIER: What is the goal of this year's drive?

SEGER: The county goal is $11,750. Last year it was $11,100, and we took in slightly more than that. We have made our goal for the last four years and we hope to do so again this year, which will mean that about $4,650 will be available to help local cancer patients. Next fall we also hope to set up free Pap tests in the county similar to the breast examination program we have this year.

COURIER: What is cancer?

SEGER: It is a group of diseases caused by the runaway growth of useless cells that crowd out tissues needed for essential body functions, such as digestion, circulation, motion, excretion, etc.

COURIER: Why is detection and treatment of cancer important?

SEGER: Next to heart disease, cancer is America's leading cause of death (over 300,000 a year).

COURIER: What causes cancer?

SEGER: Basic causes of most cancers are still unknown, but scientists have discovered several conditions often connected with abnormal cell growth. These conditions are (1) Mechanical, such as chronic irritation of warts or moles, excessive rubbing of mouth tissue from pipestems, badly fitting dentures, etc., (2) Chemical, substances proved to to be "carcinogenic" or cancer-causing in animals: coal tars, irritants in cigarette smoke, arsenical compounds, some dyes, etc., (3) Radiation, prolonged overexposure to the sun's ultraviolet (tanning) rays and over-exposure to x-ray, radium, radioactive isotopes, etc. The key words here are "over-exposure" and prolonged".

COURIER: Is cancer hereditary?

SEGER: There is no proof that cancer is inherited--with the exception of a rare type of eye cancer that is highly curable in early stages. Tendencies to develop cancer or environmental conditions and occupations that may eventually lead to it, may run in families.

COURIER: Is cancer caused by a germ, is it contagious?

SEGER: No. Neither germs nor viruses have been found to cause cancer in human beings. Cancer does not seem to "spread" from one person to another.

COURIER: What about smoking?

SEGER: Experts generally agree that cigarette smoking is closely related to cancer. Heavy smokers have 10 to 20 times as much lung cancer as non-smokers.

COURIER: How does cancer begin?

SEGER: It begins with one or more abnormal cells, which grow faster than normal cells, and crowd them out, thus stealing their nourishment.

COURIER: Can cancer be prevented, and how?

SEGER: Since the causes of cancer aren't known for sure, 100 percent prevention is impossible, but you can reduce the possibility of cancer, and if it hits, it will be noticed in its early, more curable stages. There are two important ways to help prevent cancer: Don't smoke, and avoid over-exposure to the sun. It is also important to have a yearly physical examination because about 80 percent of the most common cancers can be spotted early by a simple, thorough physical examination. Early diagnosis is very important because early treatment of cancer is highly successful and often simple and inexpensive.

COURIER: How is cancer treated?

SEGER: Three ways--surgery, radiation and chemotherapy. Complete removal of cancerous tissue by surgery is the most common and effective method of curing cancer. Radiation treatment to stop cancer cells from multiplying is bringing an increasing number of cures. Certain forms of cancer can be cured with drugs and chemicals. An increasing number of agents can effectively prolong the lives of patients with a variety of cancers as well as provide relief from pain and other symptoms. Also, a combination of these three methods of treatment may temporarily control some cancers that one method alone can't.

COURIER: What are the danger signals of cancer?

Letter to the editor

Voter Against Levy

Editor:

It is time again to consider a "Yes" vote or a "No" vote on more millage for the schools and I'm sure that everyone in the Charlevoix School District is primarily interested in the best education possible for their children. I too want the best education for my children but I can't, by any stretch of my imagination, see where or how they are getting it with the system we have. I think the schoool administration and the school board would do well to consider how the educational process could be improved rather than just added to. The reason our kids are not, in many cases, getting a decent education is because we offer too many things and too many courses at the expense of giving a sound hasic education first and foremost.

In each of the last two issues of "The Reader's Digest" there are articles pointing out the alarming increase in the percentage of kids graduating from High School who can neither read nor write and how the colleges are having to lower their entrance requirements because applicants cannot pass the current minimum requirements in reading, writing, & math. This is a very critical problem in my opinion and I feel our own school system would give our children a much better education if some of these "frill" courses were eliminated and the staff cut down accordingly instead of asking for more millage for more programs.

Please don't threaten to or promise to cut out sports and band etc. etc. if the proposed millage doesn't go thru. Why not get rid of some of the courses which are more of a baby sitting variety than of much educational value? Don't promise or threaten to cut out sports, band, etc. if we don't approve the millage while promising new applicants new jobs, and new programs if it does go thru.

Why do we have a study hall supervisor in the $18,000 a year wage bracket? If such a teacher isn't capable of teaching or doing the job intended, why this job or this salary? Do we need a business manager? Aren't the various department heads capable of handling their departments and making their decisions? Why do we have an auto mechanics program and its expenses when the voters turned down the request for millage to set up an auto mechanics program a few years ago? Shouldn't the school board follow the wishes of the majority of voters? Why are there almost 300 athletic events to schedule with other schools in a 180 day school year? Wouldn't more intramural programs benefit more students at less cost? As an example, last winter we ran busses to Bernie Central for one sport and to Rudyard for another sport the same day, over 400 miles in one day and it goes on & on.

Why are we hiring more teachers aides? Because of federal or state programs it has been stated. Well the money for the federal and state programs may come from my left pocket instead of my right pocket but it all comes from the same pair of pants and the pants are wearing out. If we have teachers who cannot handle 25 to 35 kids for 180 day school year at the salaries we are paying, I think we should take a look at something besides more help. If private enterprise were operated on this basis, we wouldn't be able to make enough money to buy our necessities for a week because the prices would be so high.

Please, School Board and Administration, don't ask for more money for a lesser education, especially with the economy in dire straits and with so many Charlevoix people laid off. Instead, please cut the expenses by getting rid of the dead wood and give my children a good education not just a meaningless diploma. Cut 20 percent of the programs and jobs and let's lower the millage so some of the people out of jobs can pay their bills and at the same time improve the education offered.

Think about it and vote. Vote your convictions but for my child's sake, I'm voting NO!

CU-IRA

15% OF YOUR INCOME TAX FREE

NOW THERE'S GOOD NEWS FROM THE CREDIT UNION. IF YOU HAVE NO EMPLOYER-SPONSORED RETIREMENT PLAN, READ HOW WE CAN HELP YOU TAKE ADVANTAGE OF A NEW TAX SHELTER TO CREATE A SUBSTANTIAL RETIREMENT INCOME FOR YOURSELF.

• • • • •

Under a new federal law, millions of wage and salary earners can now set aside as much as $1500 of tax-free income annually for their retirement.

To help you take maximum advantage of this new tax shelter, your Community Credit Union now offers Individual Retirement Accounts -- special savings accounts that can multiply a surprisingly modest investment into a substantial retirement nestegg.

A DOUBLE TAX SAVINGS.

The boon of a Credit Union Individual Retirement Account is that both the money you put into it, and the interest your money earns while on deposit, are tax exempt until the time of withdrawal.

This means you can take a tax deduction on the amount deposited into your CU-IRA each year, allow the earnings to accumulate tax-free, then withdraw your money when you retire and are more likely to be in a lower tax bracket.

As you can see from our chart, this can mean a spectacular savings compared to an ordinary savings account.

1	$ 1,500	$ 1,125	$ 750
5	8,456	6,155	3,982
10	19,771	13,824	8,598
15	34,914	23,382	13,949
20	55,178	35,293	20,153
25	82,297	50,136	27,344
30	118,587	68,633	35,682

Example 1: $1500 of tax free income put into an IRA each year. Example 2: A person in the 25% tax bracket puts what's left of $1500 each year, after taxes, into an ordinary savings account on which the interest is taxed. Example 3: Same as Example 2, except the individual is in the 50% tax bracket. All figures computed on a conservative 6% annual interest.

WHO QUALIFIES.

Anyone who is not now covered by an employer-sponsored retirement plan, may open an Individual Retirement Account at the Credit Union.

15% OF YOUR INCOME, TAX-FREE.

By new law, you may put away as much as 15% of your annual earned income--up to a maximum of $1500--into a CU-IRA. This means that you earn the maximum return possible because the Credit Union will combine your retirement funds into regular savings and higher bearing Certificates when able. By contrast, our chart is figured on a conservative 6% annual interest.

However--there is a substantial interest penalty for withdrawal before maturity.

YOUR MONEY IS SAFE--AND AVAILABLE.

When you build a retirement income through an Individual Retirement Account at your Credit Union your money is protected by the federal government, and backed by the substantial assets of the Michigan Credit Union League Stabalization funds.

ACT NOW.

There has never been a better time to begin providing for a comfortable retirement than right now.

Interest rates at the Credit Union have never been higher. And now you can put this higher interest to work for you with tax free dollars.

Why not look into an individual Retirement Account today? The manager at your Community Credit Union will be happy to help. Call for an appointment to discuss this important benefit for yourself in private.

A NOTE TO EMPLOYERS. CU IRA may be an ideal way for you to offer your employees the benefits of a retirement program without the headaches of bookkeeping and administration. Our manager will be happy to assist. Please call for an appointment to be arranged for your convenience.

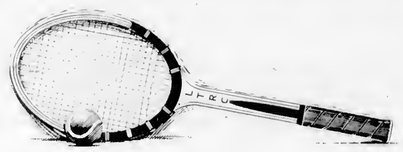
Hotel Owner Succumbs

Word has been received of the death of a former local hotel operator, Eugene L. Kramer, 74, at Tuscon, Ariz., on April 8.

Mr. Kramer was stricken with a heart attack two days after returning from a six weeks trip to Spain and died several days later.

A native of San Francisco, he had operated his own business in that city until coming to Michigan when he purchased the Beach Hotel from the late William Flynn in December 1945. He operated the summer hotel, catering to conventions, until its sale in 1960. Since then he and Mrs. Kramer, the former Irene Holecheck, had lived in Tucson. He was a member of the Masonic lodge.

Besides his wife, Irene, he is survived by a brother, Stanley, of San Francisco.



We're having our first sale, and are inviting you to share it with us.

Charlevoix Woman Enjoys Teaching

By PEG OHLE

An enthusiastic Charlevoix woman is teaching two courses at North Central Michigan College which have become very popular with students.

Mrs. Patricia Ratigan Ranger is offering a course in cultural Anthropology, the first Anthropology course taught at NCMC, and one in introductory Sociology.

"In the Anthropology class we learn about man, his culture and his environment and compare different cultures," Mrs. Ranger explains.

"Most students want to study our Indian culture, but we branch out into African cultures, the Negro slavery culture, and even the Pueblo Indian culture. And all of the students want to go on a dig," she continues.

"Through this study we attain a sense of respect for cultures other than our own. Vietnam war veterans in the class have made us aware of how important it is for people of different cultures to get along."

The Sociology course covers such issues as the changing concept of the family, sex rolls, women, youth culture, death and dying, and retirement. Mrs. Ranger says it is surprising what interest young people have in the role of older people in society. Given a choice on an examination to write about one of several subjects, many students chose the role of senior citizens.

There are persons of all ages and interests in classes at NCMC, both full time and part students. "The courses can be an enrichment process for those who are in school full time," Mrs. Ranger explains. She has had ministers, social workers and other professional people in her classes, and at least one minister has used material from his class in preparing sermons.

"The community college has a more relaxing atmosphere than a university," Mrs. Ranger says. "I wish more people in Charlevoix County would take advantage of North Central Michigan College."

Mrs. Ranger herself has been a student most of her life. She was graduated from Charlevoix High School, Sarah Lawrence College and the University of Michigan. While at Sarah Lawrence she spent her junior year studying at the Sorbonne, University of Paris.

Another time, when she and her husband and family lived in London, for a year, Mrs. Ranger attended the University of London. She also studied at Purdue University and was a teaching fellow at the University of Michigan.

Today, besides teaching, Mrs. Ranger is interested in environmental matters, especially the local shoreline of Lake Michigan. Her husband, Alvin Ranger, is a professional engineer and they have four children, Arthur, 15; Corinne, 14; Robert 13; and William, 11. With all this, she calls herself a part time housewife."

Water Well Permits Now Required

Persons drilling water wells in Charlevoix County now must secure permits from the District 3 Health Department.

Larry Levengood, local Health Department Sanitarian, reports that the new Sanitary Code requirement went into effect April 1. Applications are available at the Health Department offices in the County Annex Building, and permits will cost $10. Everyone, including home owners who do their own well drilling, must secure a permit.

The section on wells in the revised sanitary Code states that the Health Officer shall have the right to reject an application where the following conditions exist: (1) Where a publicly operated water system is available, (2) Where the property served lacks sufficient area to isolate well from premise sewage system, or existing sewage systems. (3) Where ponding or flooding are known to occur.

The Code further states that the Health Officer shall make such inspections at the site as he deems necessary. Failure to construct according to approved plan shall be deemed a violation of these regulations for which the driller or installer may be held liable.

HERE IS ONE of the early Ironton Ferry boats used to cross the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix.

Ironton: Old Ferries

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Ross Alexander, our Charlevoix correspondent, offers Courier readers another installment of the history of Ironton.

Mrs. Alexander has lived in the area for many years.

By MRS. ROSS ALEXANDER

Around 1876 passengers were ferried across the lake by Robert Bedwin in a rowboat at five cents apiece.

He owned the Village Store and had the Village Post Office on what was called for years Breezy Point Farm that was owned by Robert Stewart of Chicago.

During the Building of the Iron Furnace oxen horses and wagons had to be transported across the channel. A man named Arden Sheldon appointed himself ferryman and made a skow, eighteen by twenty four feet, large enough to take two team and a wagon. The skow was dragged along a half inch cable by hand powered windless which was operated by the ferryman and all the passengers.

By 1883 the Supervisors of the county decided that someone should assume the responsibility for a public ferry so Henry Sheldon was licensed and bonded to operate the ferry and was permitted to charge a toll fee. In 1885 the state authorized the supervisors to operate the ferry and in 1886 it was bought from Mr. Sheldon and it was operated toll free.

Mr. Robert Miller who was Eveline Township Clerk was the first county hired ferryman and was paid $1.25 a day. As time went on politics took over and they bid for the job in the spring election. Money and scarce and the bidding was low and the next ferryman Joe Tuttle got the job for sixty cents a day.

Around 1900 Sam Alexander became ferryman and operated it alone day and night. But as time passed and better roads built the old ferry that many of us remember with its large life boat at its right side replaced the hand operated one in 1912. In 1924 his son, Ross became his helper and was his helper eleven years but tourists and automobile had begun to arrive in this north country and would go out of their way to ride on this free ferry so the old skow had out lived its usefulness and was replaced by the present ferry. In 1926 Sam Ross with his tow barge and Ross Alexander brought it from Grand Haven where it was built. In 1928 Captain Sam and the Ferry were made famous by "Ripley's Believe It Or Not" the world over.

In 1930 Pete Bennett replaced Ross Alexander as assistant ferryman. But in 1942 Sam Alexander retired and Pete became Captain with Bud Gill as his helper but was replaced by Turk Jarvis in 1949.

By Charlevoix Students

PAM THORP of Charlevoix was one of many who attended the art exhibit held Thursday night at Charlevoix Elementary School. Projects displayed throughout the building were done by students from all three Charlevoix schools.

ART WORK of all kinds, shapes and sizes was on display for hundreds of local residents to view while walking through Charlevoix Elementary School.

NEED HELP?

The Bible is filled with examples of guidance, protection and healing that come through understanding God. It also offers encouragement in words like these: "God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."

Why not turn to the Bible for the answers to your needs? You can read, borrow or buy the King James Version here. And if you'd like a clearer understanding of the Scriptures, ask this librarian how Christian Science can help.

Stop in today, won't you?

Notice to Michigan Bell Telephone Company Customers

Michigan Bell Telephone Company has filed an application with the Michigan Public Service Commission requesting authority to apply charges for certain calls to Directory Assistance Service (Information).

Under the proposal, the service to the household of a person who cannot use the telephone directory because of a visual, physical or mental limitation would be exempt from such charges upon request. Exemptions for these persons would be obtained by filing a confidential form. Also, service provided such persons at a secondary residence, or a business location not served by a PBX, could be exempted.

Calls to Directory Assistance from coin and mobile telephones would be exempted from the charge, as would calls by guests from telephones in hotels and motels, and by patients from telephones in hospitals. There would also be no charge for Directory Assistance calls for numbers with a different area code. For example, a customer in Detroit (313 area code) would not be charged for Lansing numbers (517 area code).

Effect on Customers

Directory Assistance calls within the customer's home numbering area would be charged at 20¢ per call over the following allowance.

(a) An allowance of three (3) calls per month for each line is provided for the following services:
—Residence and Business Exchange Service lines or PBX trunks (excluding Centrex trunks).
—WATS lines (excluding INWATS) Toll Station Service or Toll Terminals —Centrex Service Residence Nonrestricted Dial Terminal lines.

(b) An allowance of one (1) call per month is provided for each Centrex Service Business Dial Terminal line.

A charge of 40¢ applies for each call where the customer places a call to the Directory Assistance operator via another Telephone Company operator. The allowance does not apply to such operator handled calls.

Notice of Hearings

The Michigan Public Service Commission will hold public hearings on the application of Michigan Bell Telephone Company to introduce a charge for Directory Assistance Service.

1. The first hearing will be held on June 9, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in Room 514, Veterans Memorial Building, 151 W. Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date. A further hearing will be held on June 11, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the Michigan Room, Don Bottom University Center, Northern Michigan University, Marquette, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date. Another hearing will be held on June 13, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the Auditorium, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

Persons desiring to testify or make a statement of position may do so at the above hearings or at subsequent hearings in Lansing without formal intervention.

2. Hearings will continue on July 7, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913 for the purpose of cross-examination of the company's witnesses. Such hearings will continue from day to day thereafter or on such adjourned dates as the Hearings Examiner may set.

Persons intending to petition for leave to intervene in this case shall file an original and 11 copies of a petition to intervene with the Commission on or before June 6, 1975. In accordance with Commission Rules of Practice and Procedure.

Subparagraph (2) of Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission (R 460.21) provides as follows:

(2) A petition to intervene shall set out clearly and concisely the facts supporting the petitioner's right or interest, the grounds of the proposed intervention, and the position of the petitioner in the proceeding so as fully and completely to advise the parties and the Commission of the specific issues of fact or law to be raised or controverted. (Emphasis added)

Persons filing such a petition to intervene may request from the Company a copy of its direct case. Persons filing petitions to intervene subsequent to June 6, 1975 will be required to take the case and schedule as they find it at the time of their intervention.

Michigan Bell Telephone Company filed copies of its direct testimony and exhibits showing the proposed new rates, with the Michigan Public Service Commission on March 19, 1975. Interested persons may examine that material during business hours in the offices of the Commission, Fifth floor, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 or at any business office of Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

If you have any questions regarding any of the matters contained in this notice, please call or visit your local Michigan Bell business office.

Heartworms Threaten Area Dogs

Heartworms produce a serious disease in dogs. The disease, caused by large, white, worms that fill the animal's heart, is often fatal if left unchecked, local veterinarians say.

Heartworms are transmitted by mosquitoes and the increase in incidence of heartworms is becoming a major problem in the United States.

The disease in northern Michigan, although nowhere near epidemic proportions, has been on the increase each year. Many local dogs have been diagnosed as having heartworms, thus making this an endemic area.

Several heartworm infestations cause damage to a dog's heart and other organs before visible clinical signs occur. Your veterinarian can diagnose the presence of adult heartworms through a blood test.

If the test shows that a dog is free of heartworms, he or she may be put on a preventative medication which is given daily through mosquito season.

This medication is given from May 1st until Dec. 1 or until two months after mosquito season ends. A dog must be negative on the heartworm test each year before you can start giving the preventative tablets or liquid.

Veterinarians say northern Michigan is a vulnerable area for increased incidence in heartworm disease since many of the tourists from higher incident areas travel with their dogs in northern Michigan during the summer months.

The heartworm test should be performed in April or May.

LUDWIG van BEETHOVEN

Ludwig van Beethoven was a German composer, born in Bonn in 1770. He received his early musical training from his father. He later studied with Mozart and Haydn. While studying in Vienna, Beethoven made many influential friends. He made his debut as a pianist in 1795 and performed his concerto in C major. He performed for the first time in his own concert in 1800. Beethoven suffered from bad hearing in his later years and became totally deaf shortly before his death in 1827. During his life, Beethoven wrote 9 symphonies, many concertos, 2 masses and many other pieces for instrument and voice.

SENEGAL

Senegal is located on the extreme western coast of Africa on the Atlantic Ocean. Although it is only about the size of South Dakota, Senegal surrounds the tiny country of Gambia on three sides. The capital and largest city is the port of Dakar. Although Dakar is an important seaport, Senegal has little industry and is dependent on agriculture for its economy. Peanut oil is a major export. French is the official language and most Senegalese are Moslems.

SOMALIA

Somalia is located on the eastern coast of central Africa. Inland, it borders Ethiopia and Kenya. Somalia has a long coastline on the Indian Ocean. It is about the size of Texas. Somalia has an agricultural economy with large deposits of undeveloped minerals. The capital and largest city is the seaport of Magadisku. Tribal languages as well as Arabic, English and Italian are common. Most people are Moslems.

ABOUT ANIMALS

Night Monkeys have tails that are longer than their bodies. They eat leaves and fruit that is found high in the trees.

By TOM DAMMANN

The Michigan Department of Health said this week it would investigate causes for an increased incidence of death from Leukemia in Charlevoix County from 1969 to 1973.

John Cook, chief of the Health Department's Information and Education Division, said the indepth study of possible causes would include radiation from Consumers Power Big Rock Power Plant just north of Charlevoix.

"Preliminary analysis of data from 1958 through 1973 indicates no increase in infant mortality in the five counties of Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego Counties," the statement said. "However, there is a small increase in numbers of Leukemia deaths reported from Charlevoix County as follows: 1969, one; 1970, one; 1971, four; 1972, three; and 1973, three. The Department said the increased numbers cannot yet be considered statistically significant and requires further study. The Department is now engaged in such study of the data to determine possible variables which might explain the situation. When these studies are complete a report on the finding will be made public."

Cook explained that in addition to radiation from the Big Rock power plant, such variables as the age of the lukemia victims, the type of leukemia, the medical history of the victims, and the length of their residency in the area must be studied.

Monitorlng

He said the Department has been monitoring the radiation from Big Rock for some years.

The study was inspired by a Petoskey and his wife, Dr. and Mrs. Gerald A. Drake, who first brought the facts of infant mortality, lukemia and cancer deaths to public attention several years ago and who have been recording them ever since, reporting their findings to the Department, the Atomic Energy Commission in Washington, D.C. (recently expanded by Congress into the Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) and Energy Research and Development Administration (ERDA)).

The Health Department statement, on the surface, at least, takes issue with a report by the Argonne National Laboratory, outside Chicago, which has specialized in atomic research since World War II.

Compiled by Douglas Grahn, formerly with AEC and now in Argonne's biological and medical research section, the report exonerates Big Rock of any responsibility for "changes in the frequency of infant mortality, cancer mortality and immature births," in Charlevoix County and other counties within a 50 mile radius of Big Rock reactor.

Low Emmissions

Reached by telephone at his offices outside Washington, D.C., Dr. Sidney Marks, ERDA Coordinator for Human Studies and Bio Statistics, said he was unaware of the Michigan Health Department findings and that ERDA studies of the Drake report are not yet complete.

"However emission levels are quite low from Big Rock compared to the doses that caused the increase of lukemia in Japan after the atom bombing of Hiroshima and Nagasaki," Dr. Marks said.

"On the basis of the effluence from Big Rock we would expect only about two one thousandths of an excess case of lukemia.

The exposure to radiation in Charlevoix County is about one hundreth of the natural background, one fortieth of what a person receives from a medical X-ray."

Dr. Marks said he would communicate with Michigan Health Department authorities immediately.

Dr. William A. Mills, Division of Criteria and Standard Office of Radiation Program, Environmental Protection Agency, Washington, D.C., said he advised Dr. Drake that the levels of radiation from Big Rock are not high enough "to warrant epidemiological studies."

Dr. Drake welcomed the State Health Department's statement that studies are being made.

Gratified

"I am gratified," he said. "I can't fault the Argonne Lab's findings. There are probably other explanations for the rise in infant mortality, such as an increase in illigitimacy, older mothers and various socio-economic factors.

"But there is evidence that there is some increase in the incidence of lukemia and lymphomia. It may mean nothing, because of their relation to age factors. More old people are moving up here, who know they have cancer and for one reason or another want to die here. Perhaps to be near the excellent facilities of the Burns Clinic Medical Center in Petoskey, or because they have summer homes here.

THIS IS ONE of the two feet that belong to 13-year-old Scott Voorhees of Charlevoix. He hopes both of his feet will earn $180 in a walkathon being organized by the Charlevoix Lions Club for Saturday, May 3. So far, Scott has more money pledged against his feet than anyone else. Each "walker" may pick up his entry blank at the elementary, middle or high school and then seek support for the organization he is walking for. Among the groups which will benefit from the Walkathon are the Big Brothers, Band Boosters, Sixth Graders (for their Greenfield Village trip) and sports teams.

Residents Approve School Levy

Voters of the Charlevoix School District gave their approval to a 2.75 mill operational millage by a slim 29 vote margin but turned down two other proposals in a special school election here Monday.

In announcing the results of the election, Supt. James A. McKimmy said that the passage of the operational millage would allow the schools to continue their present program and to re-employ the 12 teachers who earlier were informed they would not be re-hired if the millage failed.

The 2.75 mill issue for three years passed by a vote of 693 to 664 with eight ballots spoiled. A total of 1,365 residents of the school district voted.

In commenting on the passage of the operational millage, McKimmy said: "I am proud of a community that in difficult economic times will vote to keep its schools going".

Proposal No. 2 which would have allowed a $200,000 bond issue to purchase a site for a proposed new high school was defeated by a vote of 1,099 to 334 with nine votes spoiled and Proposal No. 3, a $1.2 million bond issue to enlarge the present high school and improve the Middle School went down by a vote of 839 to 519 with seven ballots spoiled.

The operational millage that was approved Monday will raise $192,500 toward the school's $2,021,248 budget which shows an increase for the 1975-76 school year for the first time since the 1973-74 school year despite the mounting costs of operating the schools.

Mayor Expects 10 Percent Budget Hike

Charlevoix residents can expect to find a 10 percent hike in their city budget if council approves expenditures now being considered.

The majority of those increases, according to Mayor Edward Hansen, will be for the repair of major and local streets along with cost of living salary increases for city residents.

Council is now considering a general fund budget of $581,400 for 1975-76 compared to this year 445,400.

But, Hansen says some $75,000 of the proposed budget is revenue sharing money that was not run through the general fund budget last year.

"The budget contains approximately a 10 percent increase in all categories," Hansen said.

The Charlevoix mayor said last year the city budgeted for streets, but didn't do all the work planned.

Proposed street projects for the upcoming year include Antrim, Pine River Lane, East Dixon, May Street and the road adjacent to the municipal tennis courts.

When asked whether or not he proposed eliminating the city recreation department, Hansen showed where the budget calls for a $5,000 increase over the current budget.

"We haven't funded the recreation director per say, but we have provided funds comparable to last year's budget," he said.

Hansen said the city would be unable to pay the present reereation director, the $11,000 salary he has asked for.

"Charlevoix is not that big of a town," Hansen said.

Hansen said there are no proposed cuts in either city personnel or staff in the budget that must be approved by June 1. A hearing is planned for sometime in May.

It is anticipated that the budget will be based on .009 mills with increases expected in the current property tax levy. This would generate $207,000 compared to this year's $186,580.

County Commissioners Support Shelter

By PEG OHLE

Despite objections and threats of an injunction by Charlevoix residents living near the county jail, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week voted to construct an animal shelter adjacent to the jail.

There was much discussion on the subject, during which Commissioner Oscar Ward, who represents the unhappy residents, warned, "Don't be surprised if you are hit with an injunction in this matter."

In later conversation, he said he had heard some residents were upset enough to seek court relief.

It took two votes to decide to build the shelter on the county property. First, there was a vote on whether or not to build a new animal shelter at all. After that proposition passed, a resolution was presented recommending the jail site. This resolution passed by a 11-4 vote, with the two south side commissioners, Ward and Lee Moerland, and Rudolph Florenski and Martin Paul voting against it.

Another resolution on the animal shelter question was offered later by commissioner Ralph Richardson. It read, "If either the design or operation of said animal shelter prove to be deficient and create a public nuisance by reason of obnoxious odors or noise, and upon receipt of notice of such nuisance from an authorized City of Charlevoix official, the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners shall no later than their next regularly scheduled meeting undertake whatever operational or structural corrections necessary to eliminate the public nuisance."

The corrections, according to the resolution, "may include but are not limited to more rigid sanitary control and the addition of interior paneling and additional insulation." This resolution passed by a 9-6 vote.

Asked if this last resolution would help pacify area residents, Ward said "not much."

Charlevoix Mayor Edward Hansen told the Courier that objections to the shelter are three-fold, fear of noise (barking dogs), psychological and aesthetic. He said that if a masonry building were constructed instead of the metal pole-type structure now being planned the noise and aesthetic objections could be eliminated.

"It would cost more," Hansen said, but it would last longer and look better."

The County Board of Commissioners last week opened bids for construction of a metal building. They are now being reviewed.

Charlevoix Hospital Approves Second Physician Building

By FRAN MARTIN

Construction of a second building designed to offer office space to six doctors will begin shortly, Richard Krueger, administrator of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, has announced.

The Chain O' Lakes Construction Co. of Bellaire owned by John Apfel was awarded the bid Thursday for $160,075. Successful subcontractors were Haggard Plumbing of Charlevoix and Davis Electric of Traverse City.

The new framed construction building will provide 5800 sq. ft. of space to be utilized for two solo practices and a group practice of four physicians, Krueger said. Occupants for most of the offices will come to Charlevoix this summer and fall to open practices here.

The entire project is expected to cost $185,000. This figure includes engineering and architectural fees and other related costs. Graheck bell Kline and Brown Co. of Traverse City and Marquette are the architects for the single level structure to be built south of the hospital on Park ave. west of the existing office building.

Completion date has been set for August 1.

In announcing the awarding of the bid for the building, Krueger said that eight bids for the work had been received. The bids ranged from the successful bid of $160,075 to $280,883. Other bidders and their bids follow: Goodin & Begelow Construction Co., Traverse City, $162,139; Omega Construction Co., $168,035; Sin-Bar Construction Co., Petoskey, $173,600; McRae Construction Co., Charlevoix, $189,000; M.P.S. Construction Co., $193,000; Gust Construction Co., Cedar Springs, $199,000; Progressive Construction Co., Boyne City, $280,883.

Board Rejects Variance

A variance request to remodel a house at 102 Ainslie into two apartments was soundly turned down by the Charlevoix Board of Appeals Monday night.

The denial came after James Corbin, a Charlevoix realtor, asked the board if he could remodel the master bedroom of his five-bedroom house into a one-man efficiency apartment on Charlevoix's North side.

Under current zoning regulations, the city can grant variances to allow older homes to be divided into two separate units.

Bar Association Offers Free Legal Day

Charlevoix residents will again be able to have their day in a lawyer's office for no charge.

Members of the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Association are offering free legal help in the form of 15 to 30 minute conferences on May 1 for Law Day.

"We received national recognition from the American Bar Association as a result of last year's program, and many local bar associations have implemented the program this year," says David Fershee, Law Day Chairman.

The Charlevoix lawyer and newly elected district judge said the local bar association was the first in the nation to try the program.

"It lets people into our offices," he said about the opportunity for people to enter a lawyer's office.

In addition to the free legal program, the bar association will honor a person who has strengthened the effectiveness of the American system of freedom under law.

The award will be given to a layman who promotes better understanding of government, as well as encourages greater respect for law.

The award will be presented in the Charlevoix County Courthouse at 4:30 p.m. on Law Day.

In addition, a presentation will be made to the winner of the Charlevoix High School Essay Contest.

The bar-sponsored activity will recognize a high school senior who has submitted the best essay based on the theme "Equal Justice Under Law."

Law Day was first established by Presidential proclamation in 1958 and May 1 formally set aside by Congress in 1961.

The nationwide activity is designed to advance equality and justice under law, encourage citizen support of law and foster respect for law and understanding of its place in the life of an American citizen.

Lottery Decides Chub Fishing Rights

By TOM DAMMANN

At a special lottery conducted at the Department of Natural Resources (DNR) Great Lakes Fisheries Station here, last Tuesday afternoon, five commercial fishing establishments won limited permits to fish for chub in Lake Michigan this year.

No other commercial fishing for chub in the lake will be allowed under a program worked out jointly by agencies of the four states bordering Lake Michigan and the Federal Government, according to Myrl Keller, Fisheries Biologist in charge of the station.

Chub are a fast disappearing species, Keller explained. The program wos fabricated to protect them from complete extinction.

"It was the decision of all agencies, from all the states, that border Lake Michigan, that limiting the take, over o period of say three years, would be the only way to replenish the supply," Keller said. "Perhaps at the end of that time, fishing could be brought back on a limited basis."

Permits Granted

Keller explained, that the permits granted Tuesday are not fishing licenses in the usual sense, they are permits for the purpose of assessing the condition of the chub population. Permit holders, therefore, will be required to use the same gear and fish the same locations each year during the research period, he said.

Locol fishermen, Jack Cross, Chum White and Gordon Peterson will be unable to fish for chub after the control program goes into effect. But there is some hope for white fish fishing for awhile, at least.

The shut off date for the use of large mesh gill nets for the taking of whitefish has been extended until June 30, Governor William G. Milliken's special assistant on environmental problems, Mark Mason, said In a telephone interview.

"It will be extended further if the compensation money is not in place," (money to help fishermen convert from gill net fishing to trap or impoundment nets), Mason said.' As for the chub fishing, it's the Governor's position that if the DNR is going to phaze fishermen out of it, it must provide other fishing opportunities for them."

According to John Cross, dean of the Charlevoix commercial fishermen, his son, Jack intends to convert to impoundment gear for the taking of whitefish, when the large mesh gill net ban goes into effect, "if the money comes through."

Nets Set

Meanwhile nets have been set in the Straits of Mackinac

Chum White says he will not convert and it is understood that Gordon Peterson won't either.

John Cross says there will be no chub in his market, but there will be whitefish and lake trout, the latter flown in from Canada.

Chub fishing under the permit is scheduled to begin June 1, but that is contingent upon what Wisconsin does.

"Indiono has already stopped chub fishing, Illinois is going to soon, and we understand that Wisconsin is going to start a program similar to ours nt the end of May, but we have no official word yet," Keller said. "If Wisconsin doesn't then we won't."

The DNR divided Michigan's Lake Michigan shores into five areas. In all 26 commercial fishermen qualified to apply for permits.

The lottery was run for each area. Under the program Michigan is allowed to catch a total of 160,000 pounds of chub yhis year.

The winners were: Area A, Upper Peninsula, Peterson Fisheries, Manistique; Area B, Cross Village to Leland (the Charlevoix area), Carlson Fisheries, Leland; Area C, Frankfort-Pentwater, Bjorkquist Brothers, Manistee ; Area D-1, Montague to Holland, Donald Slenk, Holland; and Area D-2, Saugatuck-St. Joseph, James and Lloyd McCash, South Haven.

"Nobody can win this," Bill Carlson, of Leland, Vice President Michigan Fish Producers Association, said at the outset of the drawing.

"This is not a right to make a living, but a right to conduct research" Carlson said. "Now I feel a responsibility to all the guys who lost."

CHUB FISHERMEN met last week in Charlevoix at the Department of Natural Resources Great Lakes Fisheries Station to learn whether or not they would be able to continue fishing chubs.

Antrim Residents Oppose Jordan Road Abandonment

BELLAIRE--Public opposition toward abandoning a major roadway through the Jordan River Valley drew sharp criticism from a Department of Natural Resources official Wednesday night.

Jordan River State Forester Bill Mittig critieized some 70 residents for objecting to the DNR's proposal to abandon three miles of Forest Drive following a public meeting in the Antrim County Courthouse on the Jordan Valley Management Plan.

"I think these people are wrong if there is a do-nothing attitude," he said after the hearing.

The DNR was also recommending that the Antrim County Road Commission abandon, Harvey, State and two unnamed roads north of the Pinney Bridge Road, including the Pinney Bridge.

Mittig said maintaining these roads have caused serious damage to portions of the 22,000-acre State Forest Area.

"At this point, the damage is significant and heading for disaster," Mittig said.

"Every time it is graded or more fill is added, you get some run off into the river."

The area forester said the Jordan River has brook trout spawning water of the highest quality and cannot take sedimentation.

However, Mittig said after hearing objections to the proposed recommendation, he doubted the DNR would go ahead with their recommendations.

Residents met Wednesday night to discuss the proposed valley management that is expected to go into effect in several months.

The plan calls for prohibition of undesignated camping on state-owned land within 400 feet of the river and 200 feet of its tributaries, while at the same time encouraging day hiking, backpacking, snowshoeing and cross-country skiing.

While off-road vehicles (ORV's) would be prohibited on state land within the Jordan Valley, snowmobiles would be allowed except within 400 feet of the Jordan River.

Hunting and fishing would be allowed, but emphasized on the sporting values rather than maximum game production.

The DNR said they would also like permit canoeing, but discouraged large groups from going down at the same time.

Those attending the hearing indicated they favored the plan, except for abandoning roads, especially the Jordan Valley River Road.

Most favored limited camping and encouraging day-use octivities, while at the same time allowing snowmobiles to travel through the area.

JORDAN RIVER State Forester Bill Mittig criticized residents who were opposed to the DNR's proposal to abandon portions of Forest Drive.

County Budget Soars 27 Percent

Unless the tentative 1976 budget adopted by the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week is pared down before next fall, when the permanent budget is made up, it is going to cost a lot more money to operate the county.

The new budget totals $1,536,744, up $353,888 or 27 percent from 1975.

Commissioner Lee Moerland, in presenting the budget, emphasized that it is strictly a working budget and much more study must be given to it. Budget figures for all departments of county government have been increased with the exception of Board of Commissioners expenses.

	1975	1976
Legislative (Commissioners)	$42,400	$ 42,400
Judicial	135,356	177,102
General County Govt.	397,821	528,530
Public Safety	240,236	297,227
Health	79,828	153,643
Welfare	16,333	188,878 +
Libraries	900	900
Parks & Recreation	12,140	14,070
Advertising	15,000	18,625
Employees Retirement	30,000	35,000
Ironton Ferry	11,000	14,000
Social Security	34,000	38,000
Capital Outlay	18,527	29,383

+ Contains $165,000 for child care and social services fund which in 1975 was listed under "other funds" for a total of $90,000.

The greatest part of revenue for 1976 will come from property taxes, listed as $1,016,104. Other large sources of revenue are revenue sharing, $200,000; income tax, $90,000; fines and penalties, $45,000; service fees, $25,000 and licenses and permits, $20,500.

State Urges P.B.B. Investigation

By TOM DAMMANN

An indepth study of the effects Poly-Brominated Biphenyl (PBB) has on humans is being urged by the Michigan Department of Health, but not just because of last year's accidental mixture with cattle feed.

The toxic fire retardant, which caused the death of thousands of Michigan cattle and poultry and fear among farmers who were exposed to it, is being looked at because of its use in commercial products.

"Because of its fire retardant characteristics PBB is heavily used in the plastics industry for the manufacture of such high use commodities as electric razors, typewriters, thermostats and the like, according to the State Environmental Review Board," Dr. John Isbister, Chief of the Health Department's Bureau of Community Health, said in a telephone interview last week. He emphasized that as of now, nothing is known about the effect on humans nor is it known what to look for, how to correlate symptoms with the presence of the chemical in the human body.

He said the proposed five-year study will begin July 1, if the legislature will appropriate necessary funds.

Dr. Isbister said the program calls for a controlled study of 6,000 people: 2,000 residents of farms where PBB is known to have been ingested by cattle or poultry; 2,000 farmers who ate meat or drank milk produced elsewhere; and 2,000 persons who have had no contact with the chemical.

Meanwhile, the Department is involved in a study of 211 exposed individuals, from contaminated farms, begun last summer, results of which should be made public by the middle of next month.

The human involvement was first made public by the Charlevoix Courier last February 12 with the report that traces of PBB had been discovered in the blood of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Warner, who operated a large dairy farm south of town.

Like many farmers throughout the state whose cattle had eaten poisoned food, their 273 head had been destroyed by the state last fall.

The Warners had asked their physician to have their blood tested after they experienced stomach cramps, fatigue and other "strange and uncomfortable sensations."

The PBB, a toxic chemical sold under the name Flame Master, was shipped by the Michigan Chemicol Co. instead of Nutro Master, an animal food supplement, to the Michigan Farm Bureau Services Inc., in similar bags. It was mixed and sold throughout the state, principally to farmers in Newaygo and Mecosta Counties, causing the loss of reproductive capacity, deformed births, weight loss and death among cattle and poultry that ate it.

At the time she learned that there were traces of PBB in her blood, Mrs. Warner asked to have a sample of her fat tested, since it is known that PBB concentrates in the fatty tissues of animals.

Last week she said arrangements to do that have only now been made after considerable delay by Health Department authorities who said they lacked the facilities to perform the test.

Now, special public service announcements are being broadcast by area radio stations stating "the Health Department will help local physicians in processing blood and fat samples from individuals that have been exposed to PBB."

Get Your Shots

The District Health Department is urging parents to be sure their children have the necessary immunizations (shots) to prevent serious illnesses.

Clinics are being set up in the area to give these immunizations to all children who need them. Each child in kindergarten through sixth grade should be immunized for hard measles, rubella and polio.

Hard measles immunization is recommended for all healthy children who have not had the disease, who have not had a measles shot after 12 months of age, and who have not had an allergy to chickens, eggs, feathers, or neomycin.

Rubella (3-day measles) immunization is recommended for all healthy children, eleven years or younger, who have not had a rubella shot, and who have no allergy to rabbits, ducks, eggs, feathers, or neomycin.

Oral polio immunization, which can be given at the same time as the measles immunizations, is recommended for all healthy children who have not had at least three doses of oral polio, even if they have had polio shots. If parents are not sure of previous immunizations, oral polio is recommended.

Clinics where these shots may be obtained are scheduled for April 29 in the Charlevoix Elementary, Charlevoix Middle, and Charlevoix St. Mary's schools, as well as the Ellsworth and Central Lake schools. On May 1 there will be a clinic in Bellaire.

County Animal Shelter Should Be Supported

We support the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners decision last week to construct a county animal shelter adjacent to the jail.

The move has caused heated debate and ended up overriding an earlier decision by Charlevoix's Board of Appeals not to allow its construction at the county location.

The city's decision to deny a variance came after residents neighboring the jail property told city council they were opposed to having a dog pound near their homes.

In addition to possibly lowering the values of their homes, the residents cited potential noise and odor nuisances as other reasons for opposing the move.

At the city hearing, County Commissioner Ralph Richardson told council and some 35 residents that the sheriff's property had been selected because of low operational cost potential.

The county has been operating a shelter in Boyne City, but has received numerous complaints over the condition of the operation from citizens and health officials.

Both Richardson and others have said one of the major problems with the Boyne City operation has been the inability to have a resident caretaker.

Until now, only a deputized county sheriff has made visits to the facility while making his rounds through the county.

Under the county's proposal, an animal shelter adjacent to the county jail would allow the attendant in the jail to operate the shelter and provide around the clock coverage.

Then, instead of people having to make appointments to rendezvous with the deputy sheriff to retrieve their dog, they could go to the county jail anytime.

County officials have said the shelter, which is expected to cost under $20,000, would also be cheaper to construct at the jail location because it could take advantage of existing water and sewage facilities.

While we can understand the objections some local residents might have about an animal shelter being built near their property, we feel the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners made the proper decision.

In a resolution passed by the Board, the county has guaranteed residents that if there proves to be a defect in the animal shelter design and it causes a public nuisance, they will undertake whatever operational or structural corrections necessary to eliminate the problem.

While we don't foresee any problems, we think the county has demonstrated to our satisfaction that they are concerned about any injustice that might be served on the residents of Charlevoix.

Residents are constantly asking and now demanding that governmental units become more frugal with their spending.

In the ease of the animal shelter, the county has shown that they could cut down on taxpayer's expense by locating it on the jail property.

We appreciate their sincere interest and hope others will support the county action.

Hopefully, the new animal shelter will end a series of problems the county has had in the past in attempting to operate the facility.

Justice Kavanagh's Death --A Loss to Michigan

The death of Michigan Supreme Court Justice Thomas M. Kavanagh Saturday struck a sad note for Michigan and the Charlevoix Courier.

The 65-year-old veteran of the state's highest court was instrumental in helping the Courier gain access to local District Court records early this year.

Kavanagh, who served 17 years in the court position, was an energetic activist on court reform, urging legislators and judges alike to revamp the state's system of justice to keep pace with the times.

Sometimes, it was a frustrating fight, he admitted.

"It's something like instructing a garage man to keep a fleet of cars running properly, but removing the hoist and other equipment and help from the garage that are necessary to do the actual work."

Last fall, when the Courier began to have difficulty with access to records in the local courts, Kavanagh took time out of his personal schedule to discuss the matter with the editor of this paper.

As a result, he sent his personal aide to Charlevoix to discuss the matter with the parties involved.

We feel more than almost any other public official, Kavanagh demonstrated the importance of the public's right to know.

His spirit and courage will be missed, but the frontiers he has conquered will be benefited by all for many years to come.

Student Behavior Lauded

Dear Editor:

This morning it was my privilege to attend the Musicale put on by the Brass ensemble from Northern Michigan University. It was an excellent performance and we were all proud of the several former Charlevoix High School students who are members of this elite group.

What pleased me even more, was the behavior of the some five hundred students assembled in the Middle School gym, to hear this N.M.U. group. They could not have been better behaved. I feel the faculty, parents, and students that group should be commended.

I'm sure anyone who attended must feel our young people deserve the best education we can possibly give them.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Carl Kohler

Garden Club Offers Aid

Editor:

The following information has come to the attention of the Charlevoix Garden Club through an article appearing in the April 1975 issue of American Forest magazine:

The United States Congress passed the Endangered Species Act in 1973 which included, in addition to animals, fish and birds, all threatened plant life. A report compiled by the Smithsonian Institute revealed that 10.4 percent of the estimated 22,000 species of plant life in the continental United States is threatened or endangered and in the Hawaiian Islands the percentage is an alarming 48.9 percent, either threatened or endangered.

The Smithsonian report has been passed on to Secretary of the Interior, Rogers B. Morton, in the hope he will implement the 1973 Act by publishing the list in the Federal Register. If this is done the legal basis is established for protecting our wildflowers, plants and trees. However, the feeling prevails he will "drag his feet" about taking such positive action.

The report emphasizes the need for protecting this part of our ecology if for no other reason than its potential, though as yet undiscovered, value to man. It asks where mankind would be today had the cinchona tree from which we derive quinine or the fungi penicillin been destroyed before man discovered their medicinal value?

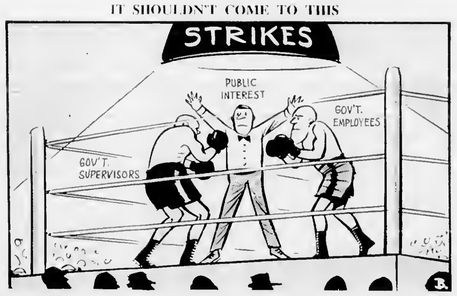
IT SHOULDN'T COME TO THIS



Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

Sometimes I think the federal government should levy an entertainment tax on the American people. Goodness knows, the antics of our elected representatives in Washington provide more merriment for the people than a convention of slapstick artists.

For example, take the government's delightful shenanigans to put the economy back in gear.

Instead of providing low-interest loans to private business and industry to put Joe Lunchbucket back on the payroll, the feds have come up with a scheme to hire literally hundreds of thousands of jobless workers in government jobs.

So what's wrong with a government job, you ask.

Since you asked, I'll tell you that government jobs are not the route to a healthy economy. Government jobs do not create products. They do not create wealth. A government worker who shuffles papers all day long, or one who sweeps streets or files reports is not adding one cent to the nation's prosperity.

Now don't get me wrong. Some government jobs are necessary. We need our teachers and our firemen and our policemen. We also need folks to send out our utility bills and sweep our streets.

But we already had as many government employes as we needed before the economy went into a tailspin last year. The last thing—absolutely the last thing we needed — was more people feeding at the public trough.

What we did need were more jobs in the private sector. We needed more people building things and providing services that could be sold for hard cash — products and services that would add to, not detract from, the national inventory.

I know businessmen who actually had to reduce their workforces last year not because the market for their products declined but because interest rates were so high they could not turn over their inventory fast enough to show a profit.

Yet did the government step in and say, "Hey, we can help you out with a low-interest loan so you can stay in business?"

Of course not. That's downright un-American.

But it did come up with billions of dollars for local and state governments so that they could pad their payrolls, which already were badly inflated in some cases.

No one has mentioned it publicly, but I know that many governmental units are having the devil's own time keeping their new federally-financed employes busy.

And hard feelings are running rampant, because more often than not the new federal employes are coming on the payroll at handsome salaries that local units of government cannot afford on their own.

Would it be wise for the federal government to get into the banking business?

Why not? As things stand today, the future of the free enterprise system is in the balance.

Unless something is done soon to help business and industry put Joe Lunchbucket back to work, American working men and women are going to demand radical changes in our economic system — changes most of us won't like.

Government jobs — which must be supported by private taxes — are not the solution.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Saturday, April 12, was an important day for Chandler Township.

Howard Lancour, chairman of the Michigan Bicentennial Committee, and Delbert Black, chairman of the Midwest Regional Bicentennial Committee, presented Chandler Township with a bicentennial certificate, flag, and a check for $500.

Both gave short speeches after the potluck supper held in the old school house explaining their interest in Chandler Township's development and their role in the bicentennial.

The State and Regional Bicentennial Committees are there to generate, motivate, and provide resources for the bicentennial happenings, Mr. Lancour further stressed that "we are not celebrating only 200 year old events, but what we have become and what we will be."

He also stated that Michigan was third or fourth in the nation with the number of Bicentennial communities. At present there are around 138 official organized communities in Michigan.

Mr. Black and the people involved with his committee said they were most impressed when they read Chandler Township's application. Chandler has no post office, no school, and no law enforcement except that provided by the county. Of the 125 people, all are totally involved and it was this very involvement that impressed their visitors. They are using their own resources, recognizing their cultural heritage, and looking towards the future by saving their records. All that is done will be submitted to a master file in the National Archives in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Black came to Chandler Township to personally congratulate the community. The whole framework of the bicentennial celebration is based upon grassroots communities such as Chandler's.

After their speeches, Chandler Township presented Mr. Lancour and Mr. Black baskets put together by the township people to express their thanks for their interest. Among the various assorted items were bottles of home made concoctions, home made bread, pictures, pillows etc. What had started out being a peck ended up being a half bushel basket each!

If it Fitz — Cats Beat Politicians

By Jim Fitzgerald

President Ford and Governor Milliken, 2 of Michigan's most famous products, have raised the phony art of baby kissing to a height lofty enough to give vertigo to an eagle.

I mean they make me sick. Sometimes I think I like cats better than most politicians.

This curious juxtaposition results from something I recently read in the newspaper plus something I saw on TV the same day.

I read about a new use for cats. Constant readers (Mother and Aunt Madeline) will recall I have always regarded cats as essentially useless creatures. Previously I thought they were good only for testing myths - do cats really have 9 lives and do they always land on their feet no matter how far you drop them? But now the manufacturer of a noisemaker has revealed another worthwile use for cats.

James Grice, the president of a St. Louis novelty company, is angry because the Michigan city has banned the sale of Snap-N-Pops. These are goober-sized-missiles that go BANG when you throw them against a wall or squeeze them between your fingers.

Troy city officials claimed the noisemakers are dangerous explosives. Grice said nonsense, they won't hurt a fly - or a cat. The issue is currently before the courts and Grice may call a cat to testify.

The Snap-N-Pops are laboratory tested by a cat, Grice said. 20 of the divices are set off simultaneously inside the moth of a cat without doing any physical harm.

So there is one more way for cats to earn their keep and keep out of burlap sacks. And I am glad for them!

Now what the world needs is a worthwhile use for those politicians whose reach has no limit when they are grabbing for votes. Perhaps their self-serving gyrations could be harnessed so as to produce a source of energy, something like a windmill.

When I saw on TV was President Ford alighting from an airplane he had just broadened, in his arms was a Vietnamese orphan. A few minutes later, on another channel, Gov. Milliken was performing the same chore - different plane, different orphan, but same war and same grandstand play for the votes.

Ford and Milliken were not adopting these unfortunate children. The orphans could have been carried off the planes by any Tom, Dick or Harry employed by the airlines. In fact, Vietnamese orphans have been flown to this country hundreds of times in recent years and Tom, Dick or Harry always carried them off the planes. But things are different now...

The anguished flight of refugees from collapsing South Vietnam has suddenly made war orphans big news. They are on every front page and every TV news show. This is the type of public exposure that makes many politicians drool.

Suddenly men like Ford and Milliken are great humanitarians, waiting at the airport to hug the poor little orphans. And don't get between them and the TV cameras or you might be trampled by 16 Secret Servicemen.

The plight of the war orphans has been desperate for years. Where were the bleeding politicians then? The orphan problem will be just as severe next month, and next year. But Tom, Dick or Harry will be back unloading the kids who will be adopted by marvelous people you never heard of. The politicians will be off somewhere else, preening for votes wherever the spotlight shines brightest.

Comparatively speaking, cats are fine. You could explode 20 nuclear bombs inside the mouths of 500 politicians without damaging one conscience.

Meet Charlevoix

Judge David Fershee

What's it like to be a judge? What goes through your mind when you find out you're appointed by the Governor of Michigan to fill an unexpired bench term?

Tuday, the Charlevoix Courier asks Judge David Fershee how he feels about being in his new position after being sworn in this week.

Fershee, a former Charlevoix attorney will serve a term expiring January 1, 1977, succeeding Arthur Reibel who resigned.

He is a graduate of the Detroit College of Law and is admitted to practice in Michigan and Florida Courts and United States District Court.

COURIER: Why did you decide to become eligible for the District Judge's appointment?

FERSHEE: Probably the first reason was although I enjoy the practice of law, somehow I thought I would feel more fulfilled by tackling something like a judgeship. I also want to play an important role in my community in leadership. I found I enjoy something like that and I'm working toward that.

Becoming a judge is an opportunity to serve my community in a capacity that is quite meaningful.

COURIER: What qualifications do you feel you have that will be strong attributes in taking over the judgeship?

FERSHEE: I would say that I enjoy a challenge. That I am basically an organized person. So I enjoy setting up procedures. I feel that if you approach this job from the point of view that you have to tackle the problems my youth will be an asset. Once you're appointed a judge you can take the position you don't have to work that hard, but I feel I can't approach this job in any other fashion but hard work. Ever since the announcement, and the little work I have done, already, I can see there is a lot of work to be done and new programs to try. I think my youth and vitality will be an asset. Also I think I am very conscience having just coming out of law school and opening my own practice, of things like ethics. When you are a new attorney you are sensitive. Consequently, you see things you would like to see in a judge, such as patience, an open mind and just a feeling that we get our day in court whether we win or lose. So, I hope to carry over that sensitivity as judge. I hope I will be more cognizant of those feelings. One goal is to insure that people feel like they got a fair hearing.

COURIER: How do you view your role as judge with the community? The Press?

FERSHEE: I want to be open and available. I want to participate in as many activities as possible in the community, bearing in mind at all times that in view of recent happenings throughout the state and country, often you're walking a thin line between that which is active participation and that which is in the area of the appearance of conflict of interest. It is very difficult for instance, I have gotten to like the young lawyers in the Bar Association. Does being judge mean I can't socialize with them. A former law professor said judges have to be like cesear's wife. I feel like Cesear's wife, I do want to maintain contact with the community without feeling there will be conflicts. Although I have no business conflicts, I will have to be careful about conflicts I might have with outside organizations. Yet I still want to offer myself to them in some type of helpful way. The frustration is that I am outgoing. I like to get involved, but I do have to be careful of conflicts. I have no predisposed attitude against the press. I expect to sort of roll with punches with the press. Obviously, I will have to develop a thick skin and sense of humor when it comes to being criticized by the press. I recognize that the press has a legitimate function to perform and as a citizen, as well as a judge, I think its function should be protected from any political or judicial interferenece. There are situations where the courts are forced to put restraints on a particular case from the press and public. But I think the press realized this. I want to be open. I'm not intimidated by the press and I don't feel they should be by me.

Charlevoix Honors Beta Sigma Phi

The Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, an international, non-academic, social, cultural and service organization for women, will celebrate the 44th anniversary of its founding on April 30.

In observance of the anniversary, Mayor Edward P. Hansen has proclaimed the week of April 27 to May 3 Beta Sigma Phi Week in Charlevoix.

Northern Michigan chapters of the organization located in Petoskey, Boyne City and Charlevoix will celebrate Founder's Day at a dinner and program at The Argonne on Monday, April 28. The Kappa Sigma Chapter of Charlevoix headed by Mrs. Paul Stephan will host the event.

Because the organization was founded in 1931, the '30's will be the theme of the program and members are being asked to attend in costumes of that era.

Mrs. Walter Ilufford and Mrs. Thomas Pence are co-chairman of the observance. They are being assisted by Mrs. Jack Uhrick as program chairman; Mrs. Dale McCandless, decorations chairman and Mrs. Edward Ditlow who is in charge of program books.

Mrs. Dennis Warner has been named to present a special message from the sorority's president at the international headquarters in Kansas City, Mo.

The sorority, in addition to being a social and cultural group, is a service organization. In Charlevoix the Kappa Sigma chapter operates the canteen for the Bloodmobile during each of its visits here; assists a needy family assigned by the Department of Social Services at holiday time and during the year; raises funds to support the Special Olympics, the City Tennis Court project, the Community Christmas project and others and manned the Lions Club 'Eye Check' booth during its recent visit here.

The Founder's Day dinner Monday will also launch the theme for the forthcoming Bi-Centennial year "Let Heritage Ring."

Ferry Has Brief Run

Because of last year's short operation, traffic on the Ironton Ferry was down by 2,383 cars in 1974 from the previous year.

Statistics furnished by the Charlevoix County Road Commission show that last year 28,708 cars were transported across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix on the ferry compared to 31,091 in 1973 and 43,550 in 1972.

Mrs. Helen Crichton, clerk for the Road Commission, says the ferry is "all ready to go" for this year's season, "just waiting for the ice to go out." Operation usually starts in April - April 7 in 1973 and April 26 in 1972.

Democrats Meeting in Boyne Falls

Charlevoix County Democrats will meet in the basement of the United Methodist church in Boyne Falls for its next meeting scheduled for Tuesday, April 29, Martin Paul of Boyne City, county chairman, has announced.

The program will feature the commissioners who were elected on the Democratic ballot in November who will explain their duties on and the functions of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners.

The meeting has been called for 7:30 p.m. on April 29.

BOARD OF APPEALS — APRIL 7, 1975 — 8:20 p.m.

The Board of Appeals of the City of Charlevoix met on the above date and time with Mayor Hansen presiding. Present: Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, and Timms. Absent: None.

A lengthy discussion followed regarding the "use variance" for the construction of an animal shelter on Grant and Garfield near the Charlevoix County Sheriff's department. Mr. Ralph Richardson was present at the meeting and stated that his project is not a part of the Humane Society. Several residents of the area were present to voice their opinion on the construction of the shelter and asked why this location had been selected. Mr. Richardson explained that the location had been selected because it is near to the Sheriff's department, the availability of water and sewer and gas facilities would all figure into the cost of the shelter. The building will be fully insulated for sound control, and windows will be for light only. Mr. Ivan Whitley presented a petition with 38 signatures from the objecting property owners, and many residents of the area voiced their objections.

Attorney Berlage quoted from a letter from the County Prosecutor, Harvey Varmum, which described the matter of what the law is in respect to Governmental units as regards to the freedom of municipal zoning ordinances.

Alderwoman Wallace offered the following motion and moved its adoption, supported by Alderman Selph, that the use variance be denied, on the basis of the present operation of an animal shelter would place undue hardship on the residents of the area and the land owners of the adjacent property, and that it would not be in the best interest to the people of Charlevoix. The motion was adopted by the following yea and nay vote. Yeas: Alderwoman Wallace, Aldermen Wood, McRae, Plumm, Selph, and Timms. Nays: None. Absent: None.

The Board of Appeals also took into consideration the Building Permit Application No. 106 from Mr. James Corbin to remodel a house located at 102 Amslie into a two apartment dwelling. Mr. Corbin stated that he could see no reason for the denial of this request as there were condominiums across the street and other houses in the area zoned R-2 with apartments and tourist homes. Council recommended that this request by Mr. Corbin be put into a Board of Appeals meeting Committee as a Whole to meet April 14, 1975 for further evaluation, and that a Board of Appeals meeting be scheduled for April 21, 1975.

The Board of Appeals adjourned.

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Anybody passing by the public tennis courts last week in the late afternoons, would have seen a ridiculous sight.

Twenty-five male and female high schools students spent the week desperately trying to shovel a foot and a half of snow off the courts. Cold weather, wet feet, broken shovels and broken snow blowers could not dim their spirit.

This unsurpassed enthusiasm seems to symbolize the dedication that this year's Charlevoix High School Tennis Team has. And it will take plenty of dedication. With 14 inter-school matches against the top teams in Northern Michigan, the second year team has set its sights high.

Whether the goals are unrealistic or not remains to be seen, but the team honestly believes it has a fighting chance to win the class C-D regionals held at Leelanau. That would be quite an accomplishment for any second year team.

The rapid rise of the tennis team in two short years further demonstrates how the "tennis bug" has hit Charlevoix and all of Northern Michigan. Every year new schools are adding tennis to their athletic plan. Outdoor and indoor courts are constantly springing up. Presently, Traverse City has 12 indoor courts in the area, Petoskey 4 and 4 being proposed right here in Charlevoix (more about that in future articles).

Thousands of people in the north are discovering that tennis is everything a person could ask for in a sport. Inexpensive to play, the tennis enthusiast not only gets an excellent work-out in an hour or two, but has a terrific time doing it.

Charlevoix's four outdoor courts are crowded throughout the outdoor tennis season and citizens are constantly hoping for more courts indoor or out.

The point is that the spirit of this year's tennis team is merely an extension from the tennis "boom" that has been sweeping Northern Michigan during the past couple of years. People who get involved with tennis automatically become extremely enthusiastic.

With this in mind, maybe twenty-five people trying to shovel a foot and a half of snow off four tennis courts is not so ridiculous after all.

Hurry up, Spring. You are long over due and the tennis enthusiasts of Charlevoix desperately want to get started playing outdoors.

★★★

The Rayder Racqueteers defeated Leelanau, the defending class C-D regional champions, 5-2 and class A Alpena 4-1 in a rain-shortened contest. The Charlevoix squad is in its second year of existence.

Brian Osterberg was a double winner for the week as was the doubles team of Mark Malpeli and John Greene. Osterberg won his matches 6-2, 6-3 and 6-2, 6-2. Malpeli and Greene won 6-0, 6-3 and 9-11, 6-2, 6-4. The three set win over Alpena was the pivotal one of the match.

Eric Lundteigen and Lisa Wiemer both won their matches at Leelanau and had their matches at Alpena rained out. Lundteigen won 7-5, 6-3 while Wiemer coasted 6-2, 6-1.

Rayders Take Forensics

By GAYLE BOSS

Those frantic forensic people were on the loose again-this time at District competition on March 20, in Petoskey.

The results were as follows: In Humorous Interpretation Darrell Clark placed 3rd while Ginger Packert was right behind in 4th. Jon Mays was 6th in Serious Interpretation.

Mary Jo Buday and Laura Glass were entered in the Informative Speaking category, and in Oratory, CHS' representatives were Tommy Wieland and Julie Wimmer.

In Extemporaneous Speaking, Dona Bellows placed 2nd with counterpart Linda Smith ranking 5th. Jan Boss and Mike Bogart were in Radio with Jan coming out 6th. Charlevoix's multiple, "Lisa Bright and Dark" was composed of Kim Carter, Laurie Helms, Lisa Wiemer and Louise Caldwell. In Storytelling, Denise Boss placed 2nd, with Kathy Britton right behind in 4th.

Those placing 1st and 2nd in their categories move onto Regionals, April 12, at CMU. This qualifies Donna Bellows and Denise Boss while Darrell Clark will be an alternate in his division for placing third.

Odmark Visits Festival For Final Time Here

By JIM MARSHALL

C.A. Odmark presented for the last time of his musical career, three students of Charlevoix High for the State Solo and Ensemble competition recently.

The location of this year's festival was Cheboygan, which on this particular Saturday seemed much farther than it really was because of the terrible road conditions.

Lisa Fiedler entered the first level of Proficiency and missed a first division rating by only three points. Proficiency is an examination of your musical ability, which is made up of a prepared solo and an etude, scales and sight reading. An 85 percentile is needed for a first division rating.

Lisa then played a flute and clarinet duet with Mark Gallagher. Their final score made them eligible for a second division rating.

Later Mark presented a solo, also in the first level of Proficiency and came through with a first rating.

Those who also deserve recognition piano accompanists Kay Currey and Reverand Johnston.

Leukemia

"But the problem requires study," Dr. Drake emphasized. "It has to be evaluated by competent bio-statisticians.

"As a concerned citizen, I think there are hazards with atomic power that we don't need to take at this time," Dr. Drake said. "There is enough coal to last us for another 400 years which gives us time to explore such other sources of energy as the sun and the wind.

Health Problems

"I am not quite certain, as a physician, that we can turn the health problems of people over to lab tests, monitoring equipment and computers to manage because sometimes people behave in unexpected ways. Some people may be affected by something that other people are not affected by."

Referred to as one of the most reliable plants in the nation, Big Rock went into operation in 1962, the third nuclear power plant in the nation and the first on the Great Lakes, according to Mike Blombach, General Supervisor of Public Relations Services, Consumers Power Co., Jackson.

It was shut down for maintenance repairs January 18, Blombach said this week, when it was discovered that several valve motor operators did not meet the qualifications set by NRC. New ones have been obtained and currently certified at the Franklin institute Laboratories in Philadelphia, Pa.

Blombach said no date for reopening has been set yet.

In 1969 Big Rock became the first commercial nuclear power plant in the country authorized to use Plutonium Oxide Fuel for experimental purposes. It was allowed to use 50 kilograms of the fuel and in 1972 the license was amended to allow the useage of 150 kilograms, which critics argued takes the reactor out of an experimental stage into the commerical.

Plutonium Opposition

Opposition to the use of Plutonium arose in both the scientific community and environmentalists groups around the nation, largely because of the lethal hazards involved in disposing of the waste after useage.

The Grand Rapids based West Michigan Environmental Council sued to enjoin the first unloading of Plutonium at Big Rock in March, 1973. It lost and is now trying to stop the conversion to commercial operation because no public hearings on the amendment to the license were held.

According to Blombach "the question now is whether or not an environmental impact study has to be made by NRC on the use of Plutonium Oxide at Big Rock.

"This is a question of concern to the entire industry, because Big Rock is the first plant to use Plutonium," Blombach said.

Meanwhile, Big Rock has 38.9 kilograms of Plutonium Oxide fuel on site, less than the 50 kilograms originally authorized, Blombach said. He would not say whether more will be delivered.

Variance

"I have only one child at home now and what I propose to do is rent the master bedroom," Corbin told the board.

Corbin said since people would probably use a hot plate, he thought it would be best to make a studio apartment.

He said there would be no alterations to the outside of the building and pointed out that several other homes in the neighborhood already had minde a similar move.

But, the proposed move drew sharp criticism from several neighboring property owners who submitted a petition signed by some 12 residents objecting to the move.

They chlimed the venture would change the character of the neighborhood and lower property values.

"After all the argument is over with, why devalue the neighborhood so a person can make a few extra bucks," said Drew Young of Charlevoix.

Council, who acts as the board of appeals, denied the request with McRae casting the only negative vote.

In other action, council:

--Referred bids for a new city ambulance, tractor and mower attachment to committee with power to act.

--Approved expenses up to $2,000 for the Charlevoix Charter Commission.

--Heard the city would not get Department of Housing and Urban Development funding for Senior Citizen Housing.

--Decided to indicate that revenue sharing would go towards the parking lot on Clinton Street.

--Rejected a request by councilman Ivan Whitley to send a letter to the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners criticizing their decision to put the county animal shelter adjacent to the jail in the city limits after the city had rejected the request. The mayor voted against the request on a tie vote, along with Timms, Woods and McRae.

Miss Sylva Ann Ruble Marries Robert Lucas

Miss Sylva Ann Ruble, daughter of ENC and Mrs. Fred L. Ruble, U.S.N., of Michigan Shores and AIC Robert L. Lucas, U.S.A.F., Bay Shore, were married April 19 at the Zion Lutheran Church in Kalamazoo.

Pastor Hellwege of the church performed the double-ring ceremony before 250 guests. The altar was decorated with baskets of yellow and white gladiola and pom poms.

The bride's gown was of Chantilly lace styled with a Sabrina neckline, long fitted sleeves, Basque waistline and chapel length train. She carried a white orchid on a bible with streamers of love knots and stephanotis.

Attending the bride were Mrs. Roy Nickerson, matron of honor, and Mrs. Nathan Ilienbauch of Charlevoix and Miss Linda Ruble, bridesmaids. Flower girl was Laura Suzanne Oom and ringbearer was Wayne Bernard Oom. All of the bride's attendants wore floor length gowns of nile green polyester knit with high collars.

Rusty Wade Lucas served his brother as best man and ushers were Thomas Ruble and Fred Lyons Ruble of Charlevoix.

A reception followed the wedding, hosted by the bride's parents. Following a wedding trip through northern Michigan, the bride and groom are at home at 308 West Garfield, Charlevoix.

Miss Sonia DeVries Weds Jack Vanniman Recently

The Rev. Roy DeVries, pastor of the Stockdale, Ohio Church performed the ceremony for his sister and brother-in-law.

Approximately 200 guests were present as they spoke their vows before baskets of gladiola and lighted candelabra.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore an organza gown trimmed in Alencon lace and carried a bouquet of white carnations and pink roses.

Miss Marcia DeVries was her sister's maid of honor.

Miss Cindy Vanniman, sister of the groom, and Miss Pamela Kowalk were bridesmaids, and Debbie Willet served as flower girl. They all wore inint green floor length gowns. Robbie Essenberg, nephew of the groom was ring bearer.

Allan Vanniman, brother of the groom, served as best man and Larry Essenberg, his brother-in-law, and Jack Drenth were groomsmen. Ushers were Terry DeVries and Dale Vander Slik, cousins of the bride.

A reception following the ceremony was hosted by the bride's parents in the Ellsworth Community Hall. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Eunice Coolman, Mrs. Gerrit McDowell, Mrs. Walter Hurty and Mrs. William Petter.

Drain Commissioner Claims He'll Sign No More Plats

Large-scale development could come to a screeching halt in Charlevoix County if its drain commissioner fulfills his promise not to sign land plats after May 1.

Charlevoix County Drain Commissioner Ron Geer said he will refuse to sign plats after that date because he has used up all the funds allotted him to make on-site property inspections.

This move, according to several county officials, could stop development because plats must be signed by the drain commissioner in county's with over 15,000 population.

"It's illegal as hell," the $2,675-a-year drain commissioner said.

"I expect people to sue me."

But, Geer says he will only maintain the Wednesday office hours required by now and will reject all plats given him because the county will not give funds to make site inspections.

The drain commissioner says his signature is required before any new subdivisions, condominiums or shopping centers can be constructed in the county.

Geer, 41, says that five years ago when he was first deputy drain commissioner, only three plats a year had to be inspected.

"Now three plats a month have to be checked and I can't afford to do it on my own time," he said.

Geer's proposal has apparently caused a stir with the Charlevoix County Commissioners, who control the elected officials salary.

County Commission Chairman Harry Griffin of Walloon Lake says the county has already begun to investigate whether Geer's claim for more money is accurate.

"When he took the job it paid $500 and we gave him $2,500 and now he wants a full-time job," Griffin said.

Griffin said he thinks the drain commissioner is getting involved in areas that perhaps are not his responsibility. Instead of being concerned just with drainage ditches, he claims the drain commission is also taking the responsibility of checking streams and rivers.

Another county commissioner involved with the investigation, Clyde Cunningham of Charlevoix, says that out of 83 Michigan counties only 41 even have a drain commissioner.

"Our drain commissioner has been trying to give the county commissioners a hard time because he wants a full-time job," Cunningham said.

Cunningham said the county commission is trying to be fair with the drain commissioner's claims and will be sending out questionnaires to counties with similar populations to see what they do.

"Why all of a sudden, after years of having a drain commissioner in name only, does the drain commissioner feel the office requires a full-time job?" the county commissioner asked.

"I don't have any personality conflicts with the drain commissioner, I just want to know what his obligations are."

While Charlevoix County commissioners question the drain commissioner's need for more money, Charlevoix Register of Deeds Grover Geneit supports Geer.

"I feel it is very necessary that the drain commissioner be funded so the man can operate and do the job he's suppose to be doing," Geneit said.

Geneit said there's much work that goes into checking each plat and that the drain commissioner must certify them before they can be approved.

"I can't blame Ron at all for what he is doing," Geneit said.

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Harvey Varnum said he had no idea if the drain commissioner could legally take such action and would have to check the law to see what the commissioner's duties are.

Admiral Smith Selected As Commencement Speaker

Admiral Willard J. Smith, U.S. Coast Guard (Ret) will return to his alma mater, the Charlevoix High School, on June 1 to deliver a Commencement Address to the 1975 graduating class Vane H. Smith, high school principal, has announced.

Adm. Smith, Commandant of the U.S. Coast Guard from 1966-70, now resides his Leland with his wife, the former Harriet A. Lary of Los Angeles.

ADMIRAL SMITH

After his retireinent in 1970, he was Assistant Secretary, Safety and Consumers Affairs, Department of Transportation in Washington and, after returning to northern Michigan, was Special Assistant to the President of Northwestern Michigan College for Maritime Affairs and in 1972-73 was Acting President of the college.

A native of Suttons Bay, Adm. Smith is the son of the late Captain Oscar Smith, officer in charge of the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station for many years and the late Mrs. Smith. A 1927 graduate of the Charlevoix High School as salutatorian of his class, he attended the University of Michigan from 1927 to 1930 when he entered the U.S. Coast Guard Academy, graduating with a commission as Ensign in 1933. He received his wings after completing flight training at the naval Air Station, Pensacola, Fla., in 1940 and later attended the Armed Forces Staff College in Norfolk, Va.

After the usual assignments for young officers and various duties during World War II including assignment to the staff constructing the Air Station at San Francisco; anti-submarine patrol duty; aerinl mapping of Alaska and Aid to the Commandant, Smith served as Commander, Coast Guard Air Station at Traverse City; Commander, the icebreaker Mackinaw; with different departments at the Coast Guard Headquarters in Washington; Commanding Officer, Coast Guard Depot, Guam Island; Commander, Western Pacific Station; Commander, Marianas Section; Commandant of Cadets and later Superintendent at the Coast Guard Academy and Chief, Operations Division, 13th Coast Guard District, Seattle.

Elzinga Seeks Re-Election

Charles Elzinga

Charles Elzinga, a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education for the past four years, has announced that he will seek re-election to another four year term in the June 9 election.

At the same time, Larry Warner, a member of the board of the same length of time, announced his resignation from the board effective at once.

This will leave two positions to be filled in the forthcoming June 9 election.

Elzinga said he was announcing his candidacy for re-election at this time because it had been announced earlier that he would not be a candidate. In making the announcement, Elzinga said that with Warner's resignation that he felt obligated to seek re-election for it would leave the board with no member with more than three years of service. "This is a job you learn only through experience. I do not feel right about leaving the board at a time when my four years of experience may be needed," he added.

Elzinga, who operates his own insurance agency, has served on various committees of the board during his four years as trustee.

Warner, who was elected to the board to fill a two-year vacancy in 1971, has served two years on a four-year term to which he was elected in 1973. He has plans to return to college full time later this year when he and his family go to Mt. Pleasant where he will enter Central Michigan University in December. However, he said his schedule at North Central Michigan College, beginning in June, would not allow him time to attend evening meetings.

He said that his chief reason for resigning at this time was to allow residents of the school district to elect a trustee rather than having a vacancy filled by appointment until the next election.

KITCHEN FACILITIES are second to none at Grandvue Medical Care Facility. With a full-time staff, the kitchen provides meals for its local residents.

GRANDVUE RESIDENTS have an opportunity for sewing projects in the day room under the supervision of a trained staff.

Grandvue: More Than A Place for Old Folks

By PEG OHLE

There comes a time in the lives of many people when they must place older loved ones in medical care facilities.

This is often done with feelings of sorrow, apprehension and guilt.

"If those placing relatives or friends in Grandvue were better acquainted with our facility they would not have such deep feeling," says Hilda Watkins, administrator of Grandvue Medical Care Facility.

Grandvue is the 73-bed skilled nursing home operated by the Charlevoix County Department of Social Services. It is located in Eveline Township among the rolling hills that reach down to the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix. Started in 1949, Grandvue has grown through the years, with the latest addition having been built in 1968.

Mrs. Watkins, a registered nurse, has been with Grandvue since it opened. She recalls the early days of opening in an old building with peeling paint on the windowsills, of begging and borrowing equipment and of obtaining basic medical supplies such as a stethoscope and sterilizer.

Modern Facility

Today Grandvue is a modern, fully-equipped building complete with recreation rooms, physical therapy facilities, patio, dining room and a bright and shiny kitchen. Entering the building one gets the impression of quiet, efficient business and of utmost cleanliness.

The staff is carrying on its daily routine of care and feeding and recreation and handling the patients in a manner showing real concern for their well-being.

It is a birthday party day and women from the East Jordan Presbyterian Church are treating patients to an old-time Charlie Chaplin movie and refreshments in honor of all April birthday celebrants.

The dining room tables are set for dinner, which this day is "porcupine balls" (hamburger, rice and mushroom sauce), scalloped corn, spinach, mashed potatoes, coconut pudding, bread and butter and beverage. The meal is served cafeteria-style to all who can come to the dining room — walking, in a wheel chair, or using a walker.

Good Eating

"We encourage the patients to eat in the dining room because we feel it is good for them to get out with other patients and they eat better with others," Mrs. Watkins says.

Serving cafeteria-style also makes it possible for patients to select the food they want and the quantity they want within their dietary restrictions. Those unable to go to the dining room are served meals in their rooms or in a recreation area with the help of staff members.

The physicial therapy room provides exercise and treatment for tired and hurting bodies and the diversional therapy room contains equipment for hobbies and other leisure time activities.

There is a beauty parlor where volunteers come three days a week to "pretty up" patients who are expecting an important visitor or who just want to look nice.

Volunteer Workers

The volunteers are members of the Grandvue Auxiliary, an active group which does much for the patients at Grandvue. Through their annual tag day, bake sales, book sales and card parties they have raised money through the years to buy therapy and other needed equipment for the facility, and to build a patio. Last year's tag day sales amounted to over $2,100.

Auxiliary members also spend time at Grandvue, putting up seasonal decorations, helping with parties, working in therapy, marking linens, mending and just visiting.

The Rev. Arden K. Barden of the East Jordan Evangelical Lutheran Church is chaplain of Grandvue. He conducts a service each Wednesday afternoon and other Charlevoix County ministers conduct services on Sunday afternoons. The Rev. Joseph Lima says mass each Friday morning.

Many other groups do things for Grandvue throughout the year, presenting entertainment and helping to cheer the patients. When asked what readers of this story might do to help, Mrs. Watkins said, "Now that it is getting nice, we could use people to take the patients for short rides or just for walks outdoors."

Occupancy at Grandvue runs high. Last year it averaged almost 98 percent. Because it is county-operated, Charlevoix County residents are always given first chance for beds. In fact, patients from other areas are not admitted unless there are at least three empty beds at the Facility, and as of last week all patients were county residents.

Revenue Sources

The main sources of revenue for Grandvue are Medicaid, Medicare and payments from private patients. Last year it cost the county slightly over 26 cents per patient per day to operate Grandvue.

It is becoming more and more difficult to find homes for patients who are ready for release from Grandvue because there is a shortage of adult foster homes and many cannot live alone. With this problem in mind, the county has been trying for some time to secure funds to build an addition to Grandvue for supervised residential care. It would be for patients who need only minimum attention. Architectural plans have been drawn up for such an addition and building awaits only funding from a governmental agency.

Two East Jordan physicians, Dr. John H. Savory and Dr. Jerrian VanDellen, are on the Staff of Grandvue. They work alternate months and one of them is always on call. Dr. Robert G. Martin of Charlevoix fills in as "utilization review" physician and Dr. Richard W. Mansfield of Boyne City has just agreed to assist him.

In all, there are 62 full time and 15 part time and relief employees at Grandvue. Many of them have been there almost as long as Mrs. Watkins. Kay Peck, licensed practical nurse and Harold Ruckle, janitor, head the list with 25 years' service. Ella Tousley, laundry supervisor, has been at her job 24 years, Pearl Tousley, nurses' aide, 22 years, Maryanna Drenzy, cook, 20 years, Pauline Arndt, nurses' aide, 18 years, and Rose Trojanek, nurses' aide, 17 years.

Employees

Other long-time employees are Rose Nemec, therapy supervisor, Alice Cooyer, licensed practical nurse, Maxine McCallum, licensed practical nurse, Linda Fulton, licensed practical nurse, Vera Tousley, licensed practical nurse, and Flora Chubrier, food service supervisor.

The Charlevoix County Social Welfare Board helps to administer Grandvue. It is made up of two members appointed by the Board of Commissioners and a third recommended by the county and appointed by the State Department of Social Services. Present Welfare Board members are Vern Whiteford of East Jordan, chairman, the Rev. Hulett Johnson of Charlevoix, and Mrs. Jewel Bryan of Boyne City. They supervise county money and set policy as it pertains to Grandvue. They meet once a month or more often at the Facility.

It takes a lot of people, a lot of money and a lot of work to maintain this home for the older people of Charlevoix County but everyone acquainted with Grandvue agrees it's worth it. Mrs. Watkins and other members of the staff invite you to become acquainted with them and their work.

Registered nurses on the staff, besides Mrs. Watkins, are Betty Robertson, nursing director, Marian Sutliff, in-service director of nurses (part time), Marcia Breakey, Ruth Bell, Marian Hansen (part time) and Elsie Golkee (part time).

After Last Week's Recount

Hansen Named Mayor Officially

Edward P. Hansen will continue to serve as mayor of Charlevoix for a fourth term but by one less vote than was at first reported according to Clarence Rabach, Charlevoix County Clerk, following the day-long recount at the City Hall by the County Board of Canvassers.

The final tally was 635 votes for Hansen and 623 for Ralph A. McRae, Republican nominee for the office in the Primary Election.

However, the investigation of alleged irregularities in the General Election on April 7 will continue according to both Rabach and Harvey Varnum, prosecuting attorney.

Five remaining allegations in McRae's recount petition will be reviewed again by the Board of Canvassers. They include:

Possibility of violation of law by election inspectors campaigning at the polling place.

Possibility of violation of law by election inspectors informing and coercing voters to vote for a candidate by name.

Wrongful use of voting machines.

Assisting voters contrary to Michigan Statutes Anotated .1751-6,1757.

The possibility of illegal and wrongful assistance to voters inside machines by inspectors.

The allegations were made at the time McRae and his attorney, Frank Hoffman, requested the recount. Hansen's attorney, Michael Gibbons, has demanded a complete investigation of the charges.

McRae advised that he is prepared to present affidavits supporting his allegation at the May 1 meeting of the Board of Canvassers.

Robert Jorgenson, state elections inspector for northern Michigan, also was present at the recount. Commenting later on the recount, he said he found no evidence that anyone "stole" the election. Neither did he find any evidence that anyone, other than the voter, had marked the ballots.

He went on to say that the allegations of wrongdoing probably stemmed from the highly emotional tone of the election.

Jorgenson also said that there was nothing illegal in a member of an election board actively campaigning for a candidate up to the date of the election.

Hanson, adamant about serving a fourth term, staged a write-in campaign to defeat McRae by a 12-vote margin to gain his goal.

Student Views Discipline

According to a recent gallop poll, Americans believe that discipline is the number one problem in public schools. The lack of discipline has brought about parental neglect, enforced idleness and the lowering of educational standards. Aecording to the results of three national aptitude tests, classroom learning has declined since 1962, with the students' scores following lower each year. Aecording to a Michigan State University study, good grades are easier to get than they were 15 years ago. It is also believed that that faet is destroying the whole concept of excellence. The average grade at 250 colleges and universities was a B or better--not the usual C. What's the answer? Is there any answer? I really don't know what the answer is, but I do know there is a definite problem somewhere along the line. In the response to the aptitude tests, people answered a Detroit Free Press Soundoff poll, 72.5 perecnt did believe students are now learning less. "Instead of learning the three R's of reading, writing and arithmetie, they're learning the three S's of sex, smoking and selfishness..." How do we rid CHS of the unwanted? Does CHS prepare the graduate who is going on to college? Why are there so many high school dropouts within the graduating class of 1976? Is education truly on the decline? This is a question that must be answered in the near future. Can we really afford not to educate our young? Is it important? Where are we going to get our leaders of tomorrow?

What's the answer? One expert suggests the use of the daily newspaper in all classes; whether they be history, seienee, social studies, or eivics--even in math classes, the daily media is used effectively. I believe our answer is in the upgrading of study and research faeilities along with materials in the community of Charlevoix and its schools. Do most students respeet teachers? And do most teachers respect students? This relationship of respect is essential for all in obtaining a good educaton. Do American schools edueate as well as their foreign counterparts? I don't think so. Just look at any foreign exchange student, and there is living proof that in some way, other countries are doing a better job of educating their young. The exchange students are better prepared, and have a better attitude towards their own edueation. They are more advanced than others in their own class. I truly do believe that edueation is suffering in Ameriea. Is it going to be better edueation, or are the purse strings going to be drawn even tighter in this time of economic and worldly erisis? Are we to suffer from edueational malnutrition or are we going to be educated in a gourmet manner? This is a decision many people will be faeing. Do your part and support the edueational proeesses and institutions of our community.

What is justiee? Many wise men have attempted unsuceessfully to define what it is. The nearest they have come is to say that justiee is what the right minded members of the community believe to be fair. That is not the product of the intelleet but of the spirit.

Our nation's first Chief Justiee of the Supreme Court of the United States, John Jay, deelared in 1794, "Justiee is indiseriminately due to all, without regard to numbers, wealth, or rank".

This high ideal -- equal justiee under law for all -- has been, and continues to be, the eornerstone of our eountry's judieial philosophy. While the goal has not been fully realized as yet in all areas of social coneern, great strides continue to be made toward attaining this worthy purpose.

It is fitting, therefore, that the theme selected in recognition of the 18th annual nationwide observance of Law Day USA on May 1 is:

Ameriea's Goal -- Justiee Through Law

Law Day 1975 will be direeted toward fostering great public understanding about the law, and its institutions, what the role of law is, how the ideal of equal justiee fares, and what changes in the law are needed to help aehieve justiee for all.

We eommend the American Bar Association, and especially the Emmet-Charlevoix Bar Associations, for their joint public serviee efforts in bringing the message of Law Day '75 to the nation's 92 million young men and women and every other eitizen.

It is indeed a speeial oeeasion. A unique opportunity for all Americans to learn more about the rules and role of law and its essential plaee in the life of every eitizen.

In Charlevoix, we are fortunate to have a speeial eommemoration and thank our local bar for their efforts.

Resident Supports Shelter

Dear Editor:--

The home owners of the Westport subdivision as well as the State street residents concern regarding an animal shelter on county property in their area is understandable.

However, a modern, insulated and well-cared-for shelter is a far cry from some of the barn-like structures of the past...In actuality the state approved shelter is not only noise proof but odorless as well and much to be preferred to many privately owned dog houses at private homes where dog owners pay little or no attention to their animals other than food and water.

Affluent residential neighborhoods on both the North side and the valley are plagued by barking dogs that makes a good night's sleep an impossibility in summer when windows are open. There are some owner's kennels where even the food and water is sporadic and sanitation neglected.

Complaints to either city or county officials go unheeded. In each case the trouble can be pin-pointed but the owners of the animals defiantly ignore warnings and their dogs continue to annoy entire neighborhoods year in, year out.

From Meadow Lane subdivision to Lake street on West end and Southside has its share of noisy dogs that bark day and night. While they cause sleepless nights for the neighbors the owners seem immune to the plague. Sick and ailing residents find even the day barking an annoying hard to endure. To date the only sanctuaries are the private clubs where pets are forbidden residence and insofar as these clubs are closed to localities, Charlevoixans can only hope to escape to a quiet Shangri La.

Insofar as hunting dogs and house pets have been a way of life in our own household we know the noise can be abated. Easily alarmed animals can be brought indoors at night. Personally, I would be happy to settle for a well-regulated shelter in your neighborhood in lieu of our own neighbor's barking mongrel. Other residents agree.

Dear Bob;

Me and thee sure con agree that at times our elected representatives in Washington do provide entertainment for us, and at times it would appear that we are somewhat of a captive audience, with a form 1040 as a theater program.

A free enterprise system of economics such as ours does, however, have the built in ailments of inflation, recession, & depression.

How these ailments are cured seemingly would at times indicate a capricious whim on the part of the Congress, but often os not, very careful thought is brought to bear on the stability of the economy.

All one needs do is go to any foreign land which does not have a middle class of people to find many who die of disease or starvation. I look with no small amount of pride at a United States of America, where no one need starve, and where we do have a strong middle class.

Certainly there is an amount of speculation as to the eure of the ailment in the economy. Bob, I feel your idea on low interest loans to those who build or provide services that could be sold for hard cash is an excellent one, but the point I pose is, why not a two prong attack on what ails the economy? Why not both low interest loans in the private sector, and some public employment? Not a massive amount of such employment to be sure, for if a massive number of people were shunted off to the public sector of our economy, not only would the country be without a free enterprise system, we wouldn't have any system, for those supplying incentive would cease to exist.

But there is the other side of the other side of the coin. No one at the grass roots level of public employment is by that means wealthy, and very few even approach affluence further up the line in such programs.

The ability to crente meaningful employment of any kind in public or private areas is indeed a vital asset, for this requires great vision, but the most valuable asset of all in this country are just plain human beings, with job skills.

Certainly there is an amount of speculation as to the eure of the ailment

Yours,

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

The problems attendant to the big switch to Daylight Saving Time are just about over for another year.

A few of us missed church Sunday because of the change, and a handful of laggards among us showed up for work late Monday. But now the miseries are over until next October when the entire nation, like a giant calisthenics class, will take one step backward.

I guess Michigan will return to standard Time on schedule, although you never can tell. Fur the past two months we have been the only state in the union on Standard Time. The other 49 states moved their clocks ahead in February under the mistaken assumption that America will burn less energy if dawn comes at 6 a.m. instead of 5 a.m.

Of course, there a lot of headaches in being out-of-step with the rest of the country, even for two months. Travel schedules are upset, television and radio programing turns into a shambles and out-of-state friends telephone you at all hours of the day and night on grounds they don't know what time it is in Michigan.

To be frank about it, Michigan is a geographical freak su far as time zones are concerned. The entire state actually lies closer to the Central Time Zone than the Eastern Time Zone, but you can't tell that to Detroit, which lies far enough east to have a legitimate claim to Eastern Time.

And since Detroit is our center of influence, the rest of the state must tag along, although the sun rises as much as an hour later in these parts than it does on the East Coast.

Can you imagine the people on Beaver Island waking up and yawning at the same time as their brothers in New York City? It's incredible, but they do.

Such wasn't the case in the 1940's when the question of time was pretty much left up to local option. Anyone traveling from Detroit to, say, Ontonagun in the Upper Peninsula might find himself in any one of four time zones -- Eastern Standard, Eastern Daylight, Central Standard or Central Daylight.

Sometimes time boundaries ended with the city limits, meaning farmers operated on one time and town dwellers on another.

Oftentimes you could high-tail it out of town when the bars closed and find yourself with another hour of legalized drinking on your hands.

But those days are gone, fortunately.

There has been some sentiment lately toward putting all of Michigan on Central Time, with Daylight Time during the spring, summer and fall. Others are campoigning Eastern Standard Time year-round, regardless of what the rest of country does.

One thing is for sure: Whatever happens timewise, someone is going to be unhappy.

Ad Found Distasteful

Dear Editor,

It was ironic that the ad talked about missing the news. The person responsible for the subscription appeal in the April 23 Courier has apparently missed all of the Women's movement.

The ad is completely offensive:

1. It is guilty of perpetuating the myth that because a job does not carn money it has neither value nor dignity. What is more important than raising a child?
2. The idea that women are uninformed is ridiculous.
3. Although we were spared the usual advertising image of swishing through housework in high heels and a dress, NO ONE smiles while doing housework.

The next time an ad with this type of stereotype comes around try reversal - put a man in the position ur statement. And then change it.

Help Senior Citizens

To the Editor:

The past few years I have become very concerned also but my being able to vote in the School Elections, and the thought came to me that probably many of the older folk, and especially those that are confined to their homes, would like to know how, and what to do to secure these absent ballot, rights,

I know what must be done, In a City election, and our City Clerk had an ad inserted in the March 26th. Courier, but Where Was The Ad Placed? On page 6, at the very bottom uf the page AND on the inside column. I had overlooked it.

As for the schools, three years I had asked the election board, how to obtain an absentee voters ballot, and no one knew how to inform me. This year, I asked again, and this time Mrs. Edna Mae Miller gave me the answer and asked a young lady to show me where to apply. She took me to the building, but Mrs. Cnrr informed me that I was too late. The closing date was past.

The thought came to me, that it would be most kind and really worth while to Charlevoix, if the Courier would carry an article, a week or so before ANY election, in which detailed information be given as to just how each individual could apply for the absent voters ballot, for that election.

Something like that might help the Senior Citizen feel they were a part of our City, yet.

Sincerely yours,
Walker A. Miles

If it Fitz — Golfing with the Pros

By JIM FITZGERALD

As a fellow tournament golfer, I find myself swinging in the same groove as Jack Nicklaus. (He's that big blonde guy who is on TV a lot. You know who I am.)

After he won the Masters, Nicklaus explained that the terrible pressure of playing tournament golf against the best pros in the world is really "a lot of fun." I agree.

Nicklaus said it really pumps him up to hear the crowd yell and applaud when he walks up on the green after splintering the pin with his approach shot. I know just how he feels.

I recently competed in the Tony Lema Memorial Golf Tournament on Marco Island, Florida. All the guys were there. I teed off right behind Sam Snead and just ahead of Bobby Nichols. Other touring pros present included Homero Blancas, Larry Ziegler, Dale Douglas, Ray Floyd, Ken Venturi and dozens more. Nicklaus didn't show up, obviously fearing the embarrassment of being beat by a Michigan amateur who doesn't have time to play much golf because my real gome is tennis.

This was a celebrity-pro tourney, for charity, and I was rubbing elbows with such personages as Jackie Gleason, Mickey Mantle, Joe DiMaggio and Garo Yepremian. I had a long talk with Gleason. I said "hello" and he said "quit rubbiug my elbow."

You are probably wondering what in the devil I was doing in this tournament. (Nuts to you.) Was it because I am a great golfer, or a great celebrity? Or was it because the tourney is sponsored by the Deltona Corp, Florida's leading housing developer, and their asst. vice president for public relations is Chuck Werle who used to work for me?

When I heard about the tourney I wrote Chuck, telling him my column now appears in the Devils Lake World in Devils Lake, North Dakota, and didn't this make me famous enough to play in the Lema tournament? In the same letter I reminded Chuck of some of the stunts he pulled as a young man in our hometown, adding that a copy of the letter had been given to my lawyer to be forwarded to all Florida newspapers in the event of my death or nonappearance in the Lema.

An invitation was quickly forthcoming. As the man hanging from the cliff said, it is handy to have friends in high places.

I'll admit I was slightly worried about my ability to hit the golf ball in front of the thousands of people who paid $7 each to see such people as Snead, Gleason and the columnist for the Devils Lake World. But I whiffed only once and it wasn't my fault. As I went into my backswing, a thing of fluid beauty, a voice in the gallery hissed: "Tuck in your shirt." I knew it was my wife because my mother wasn't there. Under such conditions, Nicklaus would have whiffed.

My most magnificent moment came on the 9th green which always draws the biggest gallery because it's nearest the bar. My playing partners, including touring pro Frank Wharton, hit decent approach shots, all between 10 and 30 feet from the pin. Then I flew my approach over a tree. It hit on the front of the green rolled within 5 inches of the pin. The crowd roard its approval and continued to applaud as I strode onto the green and performed a humble curtsy, spreading my shirttail ala Shirley Temple. ("That'll show her!")

As Nicklaus said, the pressure was fun. All I had to worry about was someone telling my adoring gallery that it had taken my partner 2 shots each to get on the green and it had taken me five.

It is comforting to compete before an audience that sees only your finish. I am going to run in the Boston Marathon next year and take a cab all except the last 2 blocks.

Onward and Upward, and niwys whisper to the scorekeeper.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Ivan Whitley

Ivao Whitley was reeeatly elected Alderman frum the Seeond Ward oa the Demoeratie ticket. As far as be koows he is the only Demoerat ever elected to the city counell. He is also the only new member of the counell this year.

This week the Courier asks Whitley about how he will represent his ward.

COURIER: What is your aim as a council man?

WHITLEY: I will try to keep my people informed. I will try to inform them on current issues that will be affecting them, before all the final decisions are made. I will then know a little of how they feel, making it easier for me to speak for them. I believe in investigating an issue. When I receive an agenda I will investigate and inform myself on any issue that is new to me before the council meeting.

COURIER: Why are you opposed to the county Animal Shelter being built next to the Sheriff's building?

WHITLEY: At first I wasn't opposed to it. I was at the council meeting when County Commissioner Ralph Richardson presented the plans. It sounded real good. Then Oscar Ward and I went down to Bellaire to see the shelter there. The noise of barking dogs changed my mind. I don't think they can insulate it enough to solve the problem. I don't want to give the idea that I'm against the shelter. I'm not. I know we have to treat the dogs in a humane way. I think there are hundreds of spots in the county where it could be built. The economics of the matter don't over-ride the nulsance angle.

COURIER: What should Charlevoix do about a recreation director?

WHITLEY: The City of Charlevoix alone is not big enough to justify the salary of a full time recreation director. Since residents of the Township don't want a Little League ball park in their area, they don't seem to want to go along with us. This year we are not getting the $5,000 from the schools that helped pay for a recreation director. We should probably hire a part time director.

COURIER: Will you support the Charter Commission?

WHITLEY: Yes, the people voted for it, although the Second Ward didn't. However, I'm going to watch it close. I did not vote for alloting them $2,000. It was the only negutive vote.

COURIER: Whnt is your stand with the City Administrator?

WHITLEY: I'm waiting for the council to say what they want. I'm ready to make a motion to make Bob Wexstaff a permanent administrator.

WHITLEY: Our streets need repairing and we also need catch basins that are not hooked into sanitary or storm sewers to take care of spring run-off. I also want to work on the tree program to take care of the trees we have and plant new ones, with Campbell's advice. The cemetery bank needs some work done on it to prevent it from washing away. Parking is nlso a problem. I think we're going to have to cut some of our green area fringes for added parking spaces. I think the business men should take some interest in the parking problem. Maybe they could get together and come up with some ideas. The parking authority isn't doing it.

COURIER: Now that you've attended one meeting, how does it feel to be a council man?

WHITLEY: Having been a spectator at council meetings for three years, I had it figured that a council man's job was no easy task, and I can tell you I wasn't wrong. But I've always enjoyed a challenge and I'm sure this will be a big one. We get into tough situations and have to make up our minds -- make a choice on the issues. Until I attend a few more meetings and get better acquainted with procedures I can't say too much.

Charlevoix's New Alderman

Erma Bombeck

The awards system has gotten out of hand in this country. (Excuse me, I get a cookie when I get the lead to my story down.)

There're the Oscars, the Emmys, the Tonys, and the Grammys, not to mention statues of gold for the best commercial, funniest person, entertainer of the year, best dressed, worst dressed, Miss America and her comical sidekick, Miss Congenitality, Mother of the Year, the all-stars of everything and the best use of Pillsbury.

It would be hard to find one person in this world who isn't walking around with an acceptance speech in his pocket with the exception of children.

It's strange. We all start out raising children with the reward system. We reward them for burping, eating, sleeping, knowing which one is the room is Da Da, and the growing and losing of teeth.

The ultimate in rewards continues through toilet training. I was a guest in a home one evening where the hostess was summoned by her toddler to the bathroom to catch her performance.

The mother emerged and said to me, "She wants you to see what she has done." Reluctantly, I peeked into the bowl, gave her a V for Victory sign and returned to my seat where the hostess said, "Well?"

"It far exceeded my expectations," I said.

"But what did you give her?"

I returned to the bathroom and gave her a standing ovation.

Then suddenly, the praise and rewards end. Personally, I have seen an awful lot of originality among children that should not go unrewarded. Why not a night to honor children who are outstanding in the following categories?

FOR THE MOST ORIGINAL STORY by a teenager of why the keys are locked in the car in the cemetery with the lights on.

FOR THE MOST LOGICAL EXPLANATION of why it takes three boys to carry a note to Miss Lewis in the girls' gym.

FOR THE MOST CONVINCING PERFORMANCE by a son that wearing boots to school will destroy a human life.

MOST OUTSTANDING SPECIAL EFFECTS AWARD to a boy's bedroom that makes your eyes smart.

MOST AMUSING MONOLOGUE by a daughter claiming, "I got to be me" when she is wearing your entire wardrobe.

Excuse me. I get another cookies when this space is filled.

'We're not in the nursing home business.'*

Nor should he. Gordon is in the business of retirement — he's resident counselor at Burcham Hills Retirement Center in East Lansing.

There, retirees 65 and over — many of them former professional members of the Michigan State community — continue life in their own style with independence and privacy.

The new five-story Center is located on a beautiful hilly 60-acre site in the northeast part of East Lansing convenient to town and campus and all that makes the university community an interesting place to live at any age. (Although many Burcham Hills residents maintain their own autos, the Center provides its own regularly scheduled bus service to downtown).

Twenty-one different size apartments are available ranging in size from 286 sq. ft. to 728 sq. ft. — an indication of the key to life at Burchom Hills: Flexibility.

Moreover, the facilities available in the beautifully appointed Center surpass those of even the most complete home. For example:

- The library which includes several publications printed in over-size type.
- A den (including a pool table) and the music room (complete with organ).
- A hobby room (your own equipment is welcome).
- Beauty and barbershops.
- Automated commissary with everything from soup to ice.
- Laundry room with dryers and ironing equipment.

In addition, each living level contains its own lounge, storage lockers are provided with each apartment, and the Center also houses its own post office and gift shop.

Two sittings are scheduled for all three meals to insure maximum flexibility, plus private dining rooms may be reserved when you wish to entertain family or friends at a luncheon or dinner.

The Life Lease prnvides residents with guaranteed lifetime care — even in case of illness. The Center contains a fully equipped health care facility (including dental equipment), and a professionally trained nursing staff is on duty 24 hours a day.

No, Burcham Hills isn't in the nursing home business. But if retirement planning is a reality for you, consider the independency and privacy of life at Burcham Hills . . . plus the interesting friends and stimulating ideas you've always enjoyed in the university community of East Lansing.

For complete details, send for our free packet of information about Burcham Hills. Included is a full-color brochure, detailed floor and apartment plans and the answers to 50 questions about the Center. Tennis Team Wins

The Charlevoix High School Tennis Team ran its record to 4-0 with wins over East Jordan and Boyne City last week. The scores were 3-2 and 7-0.

The 3-2 win over East Jordan was a thriller in which Ted Lass and Mark Hosmer won the deciding match 6-2, 8-6. The number two doubles team was behind 3-5 before pulling the second set out.

East Jordan, plagued with injuries and suspensions, still managed to make the match close when Bill Gravel defeated Brian Osterberg 8-6, 6-2 and Burrows and Malpass defeated John Greene and Mark Malpeli 8-10, 6-2, 6-2.

Charlevoix held un, however, as Larry Smith won easily 6-0, 6-1 and Erik Lundteigen powered his way to a 6-2, 6-2 victory.

The Boyne City match was Charlevoix's first breather of the year. Boyne had just been practicing a few days and were not really ready fur the more experienced Rayders. The Ramblers have vowed to make it a better match when they meet Charlevoix later in the year.

Winners for Charlevoix were: Erik Lundteigen, Larry Smith, Lisa Wiemer, Steve Berlage, John Greene and Mark Malpeli, Ted Lass and Mark Hosmer, and Dan Engstrom and Eric Slone.

The Rayders have three matches this week. Today, the team travels to Grayling. On Thursday it goes against the powerful Northmen of Petoskey and on Friday the squad hosts Leelanau.

Girls Track Goes To Central Meet

The Charlevoix Girls Track and Field team was among 46 entered in the first Chip Relays girls meet held in connection with the annual Chip Relays for boys at Central Michigan University Friday.

Three relays and two individuals were open to the girls according to Charlevoix Coach, Mrs. Marie Osterberg. However, points were not given the participating teams. Charlevoix was entered in Class C-D.

Charlevoix placed second and fourth in the high jump; fourth in the mid-distance relay and fifth in the 440 relay.

In the mid-distance relay (880-440-440-880) Charlevoix (Terri Hufford, Maurine Cudd, Tina Klama, Denise Boss) placed fourth with a time of 7:47.4.

Charlevoix (Ginny Eby, Teri Novotny, Leena Kajala, Jodi Alger) captured a fifth in the 440 relay with a time of 54.4.

Other events in which Charlevoix participated but did not place were the sprint relay (Cudd, Carole Osterberg, Nuvotny, Klama) and the 100 yd. dash (Alger and Corrine Ranger)

This event marked the first meet of the season for the Charlevoix team whose meet with Petoskey was postponed because of snow on the track and with Grayling because of rain.

Charlevoix will host Rogers City here Thursday and travel to Rudyard Invitational meet Saturday.

Malpeli Named To GVSC Team

ALLENDALE--Faith Malpeli, currently a freshman attending Grand Valley State College, has earned a position on the women's tennis team.

Faith, a 1974 graduate of Charlevoix High School, participated in skiing and tennis during her high school years.

In the Laker's home opener against Hope College this week, Faith teamed with Barb Maass at the number 2 doubles position, where they dropped a 6-1, 3-6, 5-7 close decision to Dutchmen opponents Carol Fret and Ellen Ziegler. Grand Valley relinquished the match to Hope, 3-6.

...Part of a Past Era

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Fish nets drying in Round Lake Harbor; tugs, once a dozen at a time, docked or chugging in and out of the Pine River Channel; a Charlevoix famed for its fresh fish dinners in every restaurant, are all part of a past era.

Three fish tugs now work dwindling catches of chub and whitefish, where once a buyers choice included trout, white fish, perch, and chub.

By June there will be only one Charlevoix fisherman in the commercial business. His haul will be limited to the whitefish he can catch in pond or trap nets, for him a new type of net under new conditions.

The fish tugs Eagle and Hazel W.'s futures are hazy. Owned by father-and-son team Gordun and John Peterson, and Jake Chum White, respectively; these two boats and owners will no longer be beensed to fish chubs, as of the DNR lottery, April 15.

Since neither the Petersons nor White see an economic future in switching from the outlawed gill nets to pond or trap nets, they no longer fish whitefish.

Intends Switch

John "Jack" Cross, Jr., intends to try the switch to pond nets, and, thus, be the only commercial boat still working out of Charlevoix. Jack is the last of a famous family fishing dynasty.

A yellowing, unidentified and undated, clipping in the Cross family scrapbook catches part of what fishing once meant to Charlevoix:

"Charlevoix has known fishing since its beginning as the Village of Pine River back in the '60's (1860s), and has learned to respect its several generations of commercial fishermen for the courage and enterprise which has built their calling into the cummunity's 2nd largest industry."

Tourism and commercial fishing go further back than the 1860's. If Michigan State University archaeologists are accurate, Indian summered here to fish and hunt from 2000 B.C.

Today's three Charlevoix fishing families smile at the thought that for the Indians, at least, there is a glimmer of hope they may win their fight to fish beyond the reach of DNR regulations.

In the perception of all the local commercial fishermen, the demise of their trade began as university educated biologists working for the DNR, applied their theoretical learning to the ecological problems of the Great Lakes.

DNR Boodlers

The late Jake White disparagingly called the DNR "boodlers." He felt that the experience of fishermen, over the years, was more accurate than the "book learning" of the university graduates.

When Chum White returned from World War II to join his father the lake trout were depleted.

According to White, "By the late '30s the sea lamprey had got all the trout in Lake Huron. By the '40's the lamprey had hit us here in this part of Lake Michigan.

"We cut our crew to two, my father and myself, because of the shortage of fish."

The demise of the lake trout is one part of the debate between the fishermen and the DNR. The fishermen place all the blame on the sea lamprey (a parasitic blood sucker, which attacks trout), while DNR spokespeople say a combination of the lamprey and overfishing wiped out the trout.

The federal government, working with the DNR and agencies of Canada and other Great Lakes states, instituted a trout restocking program, simultaneous with programs to eradicate the lamprey in its river spawning grounds.

Lake Trout

To protect the planted trout, the Michigan DNR banned the commercial fishing of trout in Michigan, and strictly enforced regulations as to where the commercial fishermen could place their nets, as well as the size of the mesh of the gill nets.

Until recently, trout have been available in area markets and restaurants partially because some were caught incidentally in the course of whitefish netting. Now, according to Gordon Peterson, incidentally caught trout may not be sold, but must be given to the DNR which is supposed to distribute them to the poor.

In further efforts to protect the hatchery reared trout, which don't appear to be able to reproduce naturally in the lakes, the DNR has imposed the large mesh gill net ban. DNR spokespeople point out that gill nets kill fish, but trout accidentally caught in pond or trap nets can be freed alive. Thus only fishermen who will switch net types will be able to go for the whitefish.

The net switch will involve considerable expense for Jack Cross. Both he and his father, John, say their switch is contingent upon receiving the up to $30,000 compensation allocated by the state to help fishermen.

Even with the compensation, the Petersons and White say they do not intend to continue fishing, both arguing that it isn't enough money to compensate for the losses they'll suffer.

The Switch

Basically a switch from gill to trap or pond nets involves all new equipment – boats to net to anchors.

White wonders, too, if there is much future in the new style whitefish fishing.

"Most of the good grounds are already being fished by other men with trap nets." White says. "And I worry the DNR will even regulate that out of business."

Thirty days from the receipt of a notice from the DNR, Gordon Peterson, age 59, will leave the trade he loves and knows well. His son John, 35, worries about his own future. Fishing is his skill.

White's maternal grandfather, Charles, father of John Cross, founded the fishing clan which dominated much of Lake Michigan this century. Jack, Jr., another grandson, will try to keep a romantic and hardworking tradition alive. An uncle, Ralph, is presently fishing from Cross Village, but whether or not he'll make the change is unclear.

John Sr., overseeing the family enterprises from his Charlevoix market and Jack carrying on the traditions of the family on the lakes, will probably see the last of the Cross fishing story, if not all commercial fishing on the lakes.

But until Jack's last net is hauled, it appears he is determined to carry on the tradition in full: Last week he rescued three fishermen stranded in a small boat in the ice off Fisherman's Island.

"It took a lifetime to build to where I am now. But I'm afraid I'm sick of the whole thing. It's gone sour.

"But, I get excited all over again to go fishing in the Spring," he looked out from his tug's birth in Round Lake.

"The original fascination is still there, when I hear those seagulls screaming."

Charlevoix tennis players have finnlly been able to take their racquets out of the closets and begin to play tennis outdoors. Many have been playing indoors all winter at the Little Traverse Racquet Club in Petoskey.

Whether you are just starting to play after a five month lay-off or have been playing all winter at the Racquet Club, there are several things you should keep in mind when playing outdoors for the first time in months.

The Racquet Club has done a fantastic job in its first year of operation. Its ideal playing conditions, reasonable rates, and friendly atmosphere combine to make it the best-run indoor tennis facility I have seen.

Obviously, the first year club has had some problems, but they have been handled honestly and efficiently. My heartiest congratulations to the Little Traverse Racquet Club and its staff.

Now, back to playing outdoors.

The natural elements make it difficult to pick up your game where you left off last fall or even where you left it last week at the indoor courts.

First, spring winds are extremely severe and make the ball do all sorts of funny things. Hit against the wind and it is hard to get the ball over the net. Hit with it and it is easy to hit the fence with your shot. Even a hard cross-wind creates problems. Balls will curve rapidly and throw your rhythm off.

Playing in a wind takes a lot of patience, concentration, and adaptability. You have to learn to wait for the ball to come to you while at the same time not getting your feet too set. As the ball curves and comes in different speeds, you have to adjust your position.

Second, the temperature affects the bounce of the ball and the "liveliness" of your strings. Until the temperature gets into the 60's your tennis balls will not bounce to their full potential. Likewise, your strings will not have the full spring to them until the weather warms up.

Your adjustment to the cold weather should be to move up on the ball as it comes to you. Waiting for the ball to take its full bounce will result in double bounces which are obviously not desirable in game conditions. Your strokes should be full and fluent to get the maximum action from the strings.

Finally, it takes some time to adjust to the sun. This affects the indoor player a great deal as he is not used to any glare as he plays. The only way to adjust as through good position when hitting and the utmost concentration on the ball.

These natural elements make it difficult to get your game together. When beginning to play outdoors, make sure that you start very slowly. Do not try to hit mid-season form your first time out. It is not possible. Concentrate on making good contact with the ball, watch-

Elected as officers were Glenn Cunningham, president; Ed Hold, vice-president; Terry Blissett, treasurer; and Jay Mosoryak, secretary

Named to the board of directors were Bill Joy, Bill Supernaw, Jim Willis, Dave Novotny and Scott Blanchard.

Ellsworth

Mrs. Anne Osterbaan
Phone 588-2433

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kooyer returned home Wednesday from a 2 months visit to Hawaii. They report they toured the 4 Islands and liked the warm weather but were glad to return home, even though there was some snow left. While there they stayed with Mrs. Kooyer's nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Jake Hoeksema and their suns Jakie and Joey, who were loathe to see them go home.

Mr. Hoeksema is with the United States Army.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gaunt and children Tracy, Jerry and Barry were Tuesday supper guests of Anne Osterbaan. The one thing unusual about this was it was a birthday supper for Mr. Gaunt and daughter whose birthdates were January 28 and fur various delays and reasons, it finally came to pass buesday.

Mr and Mrs. Wesley VanderArk of Holland and Rev and Mrs Ibery Vander Ark of Jenison were unexpected visitors here Friday evening. A get-together was held that evening as it's been some time since the Vander Ark brothers, Pete and Willard of Ellsworth had all been together. The Wesley VanderArks were overnight guests of Peter and wife and the Harry VanderArks were guests of her sister, Elsie Timmer.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard VanderArk are happy with another grandson, who was born to the Daniel Vander Arks of Holland, Sunday, April 20. The young man has been named Jonathon Daniel and weighed 9 lbs., 4 oz. Dan and Jody now have a family of two daughters and two sons.

Do you believe the old saying, when there is thunder and lightning storms in spring, the weather will be colder and there will be snow within 10 days?

Mrs. Fanny Visscher of Fremont was a Friday overnight visitor of her sister-in-law Helen Jansen and her son Engbert Visscher and wife were guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Dreuth.

Lee Dinner Termed Successful

The dinner held last Friday evening to raise funds to help Cathy Lee through her approaching heart surgery was a real success, dinners and workers agree.

Mrs. Lee, wife of Coast Guardsman Richard Lee, is facing the surgery following the birth of her second child, which is due toward the end of May. She has been in the hospital since mid-March.

To help the Lees pay for hospital expenses and to bring Mrs. Lee's mother to Americo from Scotland, five Charlevoix women's groups joined together to prepare and serve the potluck dinner.

Members of the Coast Guard Wives, the Air Force Wives, the Charlevoix Woman's Club, the Kappa Sigma chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and St. Mary's Little Flower Guild participated in the undertaking.

Residents Protest Rec Director Firing

FIRED RECREATION Director Curt Kipke listens to complaints over his dismissal.

Charlevoix City Council is expected to meet tonight (Tuesday) in special session at 6 p.m. to reconsider its decision to fire the city recreation director.

The decision to meet came after some 35 residents packed council chambers Monday night to protest the dismissal of Curt Kipke, effective May 9.

Kipke, 29, was pink slipped nearly two weeks ago after council apparently decided they couldn't meet Kipke's demand for a salary increase from $9,500 to $11,000. He received no increase last year.

The protesters, - lead primarily by Bill and Sam Supernaw of Charlevoix, argued that the city had caught many residents by surprise and did not give anyone a chance to consider alternatives.

"It caught many of us by surprise," Bill Supernaw told council at one point during a lengthy oration with councilmen.

"We would like one more year to regroup."

The Charlevoix Township resident and radio newsman said residents can identify with the city recreation program more than any other service the city provides and suggested residents be given at least a year to find alternatives.

"I do think there is something more here than money," added Robert Hoffman, a Charlevoix lawyer.

"We are talking about the children of our community."

Hoffman said if the city abandons its present full-time program, it will be difficult to get it back later.

Councilman Ivan Whitley promised residents that the recreation program would not be dropped. Rather, he said, it is a question of whether the city needs a full-time director to run the program.

Although not taking a stand, Councilman Ray Wood said after hearing the arguments presented he would like to reconsider the decision.

At one point during the meeting, Councilman Ralph McRae had moved to rehire Kipke at $10,250 a year, but was soundly defeated by council, 5 to 1.

McRae said it was important to realize the number of people the program involved both durring the summer and winter.

"I think we should reconsider it," McRae urged.

He said Kipke had organized some 25 new activities for local residents since he was hired two years ago.

"My personal feeling is that the job doesn't warrant a full-time person," said Councilman Bob Timms.

"I think a part-time person can take care of it quite nicely with less cost to the city."

Throughout the meeting, Sam Supernaw suggested the council give residents another year so that they might be able to form a community recreation program for the entire school district.

Supernaw explained that even though the Charlevoix School District had been unable to give the $5,000 contribution towards the recreation program this year, as it did last year, there was still a good chance the community recreation program could be formed.

Although the school district had been unable to meet its commitment this year, School Supt. James McKinney said in an earlier interview it would look like they would be able to do it for next year.

In other action, council:

--Approved Charlevoix Agency's bid of $5,563 for public and institutional insurance.

It's Time to Clean Up

Tuesday, May 6, marks the beginning of "Clean-up Fix-up" weeks in Charlevoix.

The City has set up a schedule of free rubbish collections for the three wards.

This week collections will be made in the First Ward, north of the Bridge, on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Next week, beginning on Monday, May 12, collections will be made in the Second Ward, west of the bridge, and continue through Wednesday.

On Monday, May 19, and Tuesday May 20, collections will be made in the Third Ward, East of the Bridge.

Rules set up by the city for pick ups are as follows:

(1) All trash must be out for pick up BEFORE the starting date in each area.

(2) Place all rubbish on streets in back of curb on all paved streets with curbs and, on streets without curbs, place off traveled portion of the road.

(3) Mark containers "SAVE" if you want them returned.

(4) Large objects do not have to be placed in containers.

(5) Brush and tree limbs do not have to be placed in containers, but should be placed for easy loading.

(6) No regular garbage.

After Wednesday, May 21, it will be illegal to place rubbish at the side of streets in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Township will conduct a free trash pick-up Saturday beginning at 9:30 a.m. and continuing until 4 p.m. Oscar Stroud, township supervisor, has announced.

Stroud asked that residents of the township have their trash at the roadside by 9:30 a.m. stating that the trucks would make only one trip through the township.

The work will be done by volunteer help, he added.

Valuation Sliced 10% By County Commission

By FRAN MARTIN

The Equalization Committee of the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners recommended Friday that the county's equalization figure be set at $165,708,894 or 10 percent less than the assessment totals for the county.

The surprise recommendation, after some discussion, was approved by a vote of 14-1 with Donald Meggison of Charlevoix casting the dessenting vote.

The Committee recommendation came after a review of the 1975 equalization figures, unit by unit, by Ms. Joan Blanchard, Equalization Director, and a heated disscussion in which commissioners and township assessors had participated.

Delbert Ingalls, chairman of the Equalization Committee, said his committee was recommending that real property in the county be equalized at a value of $135,444,965 as compared to the $152,015,794 on the assessment rolls and that the personal property be equalized at a value of $30,263,989, as per the assessment rolls, for a total county equalized valuation of $165,708,894. This is $16,570,889 below the figures on the assessment rolls as submitted by the certified assessors in the county's 18 units.

It was explained that the across-the-board decrease could be applied to real property while personal property, which in many instances includes inventories, should not be cut. This meant decreasing the figure of $152,015,794 for real property to the lower overall figure of $135,444,965 or an overall 10 percent cut.

In submitting their assessment rolls, assessors in each of the units had stated that they had assessed their respective units at 50 percent of True Cash Value.

Melvin Niswander of East Jordan then asked of what constitutes "True Cash Value".

In response Ms. Blanchard passed out to all those present a copy of the statute as set by the Legislature which defined "Cash Value" as the actual selling price at the place where the property to which the term is applied shall be at the time of the assessment, being the price which could be obtained for the property at private sale, and not at forced or auction price.

Harry Griffin, chairman of the board, then declared that the assessments in Charlevoix county were "too high."

At that, Roger Srigley, supervisor and assessor of Melrose township where Griffin also resides, said, "'Too High' is a relative statement. Too high to what? If you mean to Emmet County's assessment figures, Charlevoix county is too high."

He said his assessment rol, was done at the 50 percent of cash value figure as were the other assessors' rolls.

Joseph Topolinski of Boyne Valley Township backed Srigley's and he felt the rolls were probably a little less than the 50 percent figure.

Other assessors, defending their assessments, voiced similar opinions.

Carl Skornia of Bay township said: "I had a greater increase than any other unit and I assessed at the 50 percent figure."

Lee Sneathen of Hayes Township asked why the townships hadn't been made aware of the proposed 10 percent decrease before they set their budgets. "We get little enough without cutting it more. In my township that 10 percent represents $1,600", he added.

After the discussion cooled off, the board of commissioners, by a 15-0 vote, approved a resolution requesting 6.13 mills from the County Tax Allocation board to meet its budget needs. Earlier the board had asked for 5.58 mills to underwrite its $1,016,104 tentative budget for 1976.

Yacht Club Plans Market

The Charlevoix Yacht Club will launch its 1975 season with a Water Safety Show and Floaters Flea Market in East Park in downtown Charlevoix on Saturday, May 17, Dick Donaldson, Cruiser Fleet Captain, has announced.

The event will begin at 10 a.m. and continue until 4 p.m. with the Safety Operations demonstration scheduled for 1 p.m. off East Park in Round Lake.

Purpose of the Floaters Flea Market is to give boatmen an opportunity spring clean their boats and offer for sale all the 'extras' they might find.

Local businessmen, especially with nautical gear, are urged to put their offerings on display at this time.

"This has not been a good year, economically speaking, so these people should use this chance to display their wares in public," Donaldson says.

The Water Safety Show, in cooperation with the U.S. Coast Guard and the Coast Guard Auxiliary, will begin at 1 p.m. on Round Lake and will feature Man overboard Rescue Operation, and proper Towing Procedures of Disabled Vessel and, in East Park, an actual Fire Extinguisher demonstration and Flare Gun demonstration.

The event will conclude with a free boat inspection by the Coast Guard Auxiliary.

For those who have only one or two small items, there will be a consignment booth where, for a small percentage, you can sell your offerings, Donaldson said.

Grants Ok'd

The Michigan Water Resources Commission has announced that both Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township will receive preliminary funding to construct and improve sewers in both communities.

Richard Emerson, chief of the Water Quality Division, said the initial funding would be to pay for planning and engineering costs.

He said additional grants would have to be awarded for plans and specifications of the project, as well as construction.

The Environmental Protection Agency will be 75 percent of costs with the state paying five percent and the city paying 20 percent.

Charlevoix's entire project is estimated at nearly a half million dollars for sewer separation, while the township's $750,000 project is to construct sewer lines throughout the township.

Despite Local Protests

Hayes Township Supervisors Support Road Construction

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The controversy over whether Stolt Road in Hayes Township should be improved, brought some 50 residents to the township Board of Supervisors meeting Monday night.

After listening to more than an hour and half's debate over the question of widening, grading and preparing Stolt Road for eventual black topping, the township board maintained its unanimous April decision to improve the road at a cost of $25,000 of township and state funds.

Township Supervisors were surprised that the issue was controversial.

Prior to the meeting, Lee Sneathen Jr., stated it was the first time he had ever heard of people not wanting a road improved.

The Monday night meeting ended the efforts of Todd and Vicky Warner, who live off the road, to maintain it in a more natural state than proposed.

The Warners moved to the area two and a half years ago to establish a sculpture business in their studio-home.

Most of the section of Stolt Road, between Murray and Maple Grove Roads, runs through a climax forest of northern hardwoods – elm, ash, maple, ironwood, basswood, and beech, according to Forestry Analyst Lee Ekstrom.

Using Ekstrom's expertise, the Warner's expressed fears that the type of improvement planned would seriously endanger large stands of trees, as well as other plant and wildlife.

Irv Sturm, Engineer for Charlevoix County Road Commission detailed the standards governing any road improvement using county funds.

The Warners and their supporters argued that County Standards which mean a widening of the road up to 66 foot right of way, to accommodate both road bed and necessary ditches, as unnecessary to render Stolt Road safe for traffic.

They emphasized their desire to see the road improved, but hoped for a compromise on the extent of improvement.

As of now the road is from 12 to 20 feet wide.

Sturm explained that different conditions require differing widths for the right of way, stating that 66 feet is a maximum, not always required.

A major point of contention between the proponents and opponents of improvement has been the size of cuts necessary to make hills passable.

Sturm acknowledged that plans call for the "flattening of the long grade along the road," which means, "taking materials from the top down into the valleys."

Jacob Deschermeier, Jr., owner of "a couple 40 acres," was emphatic in his desire to see the road made safe for school buses, snow plows and the mailman.

Cole said, "I'm willing to sacrifice trees to improve the road."

Tom Hamlin, owner of an 180 acre dairy farm, signed a petition to have that part of Stolt Road designated "a "Natural Beauty Road" under Michigan Public Act No. 150 of 1970.

As a "Natural Beauty Road" the road could be maintained and improved to make it safe, but strict limits would be placed on the types of improvement.

Faced with the lack of support from fellow property owners, the Warners have decided to drop the petition drive.

However, Warner made it clear he would be vigilant in seeing that road construction crews do not take out any more trees than necessary, as well as maintain their promises to seed banks and prevent additional erosion from the construction.

Forester Ekstrom stated that he was concerned upon "stabilization of the cuts on tops of the banks."

He worried that increased drainage from the road would bring sediments, especially fine sediments, around the base of trees remaining after the right-of-way swath was established.

"Any fine sediment is very detrumental to large trees. Anything over six inches up the base of a tree will kill the tree. Coarser sediments, if compacted over a foot will also kill the trees," Ekstrom told the meeting.

Detailing the extent of ecological change which could occur beyond the initial cutting, Ekstrom spoke of the danger of exposed root systems of trees left standing.

"The crown of a tree dies in proportion to the root damage," he explained "If half the root system is killed, half the crown dies. If a quarter of the root system dies, a quarter of the crown dies. This exposes, trees to infestation by disease."

Appreciates Adult Education

I would like to give my thanks to just a few teachers in the Adult Education Program; Mrs. Barry Pierce, Mrs. Leah Green and Mr. Murray. If all the teachers in the Charlevoix School System are anything like these few, we have a lot to be grateful for. I'd also like to thank Mr. Hoy Fortin who had had a tough job arranging everything. With all their help, I and others will graduate this year, as it's never too late to be educated.

Calling Saigon Isn't Easy

It's 2:00 o'clock in the morning and I tried to get a hold of the Detroit Free Press to make a constructive criticism of their headline which read "Victorious Reds Seize Saigon" or something of that order.

I felt that the headline should have read "Saigon Fell" however in my effort to contact them I ran across something that might be of interest to you as a news.

I tried to call them on the phone, but was unable to reach them, but I then tried to telegraph them and was told that the mmilagram system would not reach them until Friday. Western Union operators then told me, and this is the news item for you, that there are people in this country who are attempting to telegraph Saigon with congratulatory letters to the new regime that is there.

I don't care for this particularly and you don't yourself, but the Western Union operator says that since there is no contact with Saigon at the present time that all these "would be" congratulatory telegrams to the new regime are now being returned back to the senders perhaps with a ten dollar fee taken from them, I thought you ought to know that this is going on despite the fact that the North Vietnamese generally in this country understand that are somewhat of a hostile power.

C.E.T.A.--A New Name But Same Old Program

Back in the thirties, they called it the "WPA."

Franklin D. Roosevelt used it in his New Deal Administration to conquer the Great Depression.

In those days, the Works Progress Administration provided work for some 8½ million Americans out of jobs.

The names have changed, but apparently the problems of solving the nation's economic ills haven't.

Now instead of calling it WPA, it's called "CETA."

While the WPA was concerned with building highways, streets, bridges, parks and other projects intended to have a long range value, CETA provides temporary jobs to solve immediate problems.

County Clerk Clarence Rabach looks at the CETA program as a temporary solution to the area's tight job market.

"We're becoming more and more industrialized," he said. "We don't have any large farms or small shops to create the jobs we used to have."

Now that more is being produced by machines, Rabach says, we have a problem of what to do with the people out of jobs.

The county clerk, who is the program administrator, says he would rather see people working under CETA and doing something to benefit the taxpayers than just being able to collect welfare.

"We're paying him anyway, so why not get some work out of him," Rabach says.

The county clerk says there's nothing basically wrong with the program. It even costs very little to administrate.

Charlevoix County presently has 100 employees working for the county, townships, cities or schools under $439,207 in federal grants.

Helen Phillips, who assists Rabach with administering the program, says it allows the county units of government to do projects they normally couldn't afford.

Other officials are critieul of the program because they say it is only prolonging the unemployment problem without providing any solutions.

Some say the aim of the program is good, but if the economy doesn't pick op, they ask how long the federal government will he able to continue financing CETA.

Forty-year-old Charles Baer has been with CETA since September after moving to Charlevoix earlier this year and being unable to locate a teaching job.

"I wanted to get a full-time teaching job here," he said.

"So I got myself on some of the substitute lists here, but there weren't enough calls that came in to make n living."

Baer, who now microfilms for the county, says he heard about CETA through the Michigan Employment Security Commission.

The Charlevoix resident said ulthough his job is routine, there are some interesting things with it.

He says the program is very worthwhile and he has learned some skills for future employment.

Michael Bonar began working for the county in Febroary after he was laid off from a local engineering firm.

As a draftsman, he is now updating township and municipal maps that have been in bad shape for some time.

"I would rather be busy doing something like this than doing nothing," he said.

Bonar says he has met u lot of new people and has increased his knowledge of land use by working with the job.

Throughout the county there are people working as laborers, teacher aides, clerks and park rangers.

Aerosol Can Controversy Sprays Michigan Legislature Next Week

EDITOR'S NOTE: Much national attention has recently focused on the effects aerosol cans may have on our environment. Now, even Michigan legislators are probing the problem. James Warner, a former Charlevoix resident and journalism student at Michigan State University, examines what state leaders have to say about the potential threat.

By JIM WARNER

Fearing the effects freon in aerosol cans may have, some 35 state representatives are proposing to ban its use through legislation.

The legislators, who are backing House Bill 4340, say they developed the bill because of increasing evidence that propellants used in spray cans are breaking down the ozone layer that lies 10 to 15 miles above earth.

A public hearing on the bill is scheduled for May 12 at the State Capitol in Lansing.

Ozone Layer

"The ozone layer of oor atmosphere protects us from highly dangerous ultraviolet radiation," says Perry Bullard, D-Ann Arbor, a primary sponsor of the bill.

"An immediate effect of the destruction of this layer would be an increase in the incidence of skin cancer."

The propellants are used in cosmetics, paint and insecticides dispensers, automotive products and other substances, but not in food products or shaving ream.

The Atomic Energy Commission estimates their use is increasing 10 per cent a year. "Continued use of Freon would add to the future problems we have already created," Bullard says.

"The total-diffusion effect is estimated at 25 years, so the Freon we have already released will not have its peak destructive effect until 1990."

Propellant Growth

He says recent evidence shows that the projected growth of the use of such propellants could result in 100,000 to 300,000 additional cases of skin cancer a year within the next 25 years. The global effects could be as high as 1.5 million cases annually.

Another possible negative effect, according to Bullard, is a rise in average temperatures which could lead to substantial shifts in global weather.

"With more than 60 per cent of the Freon escaping into the atmosphere coming from aerosol spray cans, our society can do without it," Bullard said.

Before 1961, just roll-on and pump spray containers such as those used on dispensers of window cleaning fluids were used. He said a return to these types of containers might be a possible substitute for the aerosol spray cans.

"This bill will be considered on its merits, not on the vested interests of a business group," says State Rep. Raymond Hood. "The committee hasn't heard from any special interest groups. We will study the bill carefully as an answer to the possible health risk we are facing."

Harry Hall, president of the Michigan State Chamber of Commerce said his chamber feels the bill has been prematurely introduced without sufficient evidence to justify a ban.

"We're not opposed to just this bill bot the whole principle of banning the aerosol cans," Hall said "We feel that there should be much more study of the situation before we take such a drastic measure."

Hall said the information which was originally released about the propellants is based on what he feels is incomplete evidence.

"The two California professors who released the first information about the possible health hazard did much theorizing," Hall said. "The bill makes the problem out to be more drastic than we feel it actually is at this pout Much more solid evidence is required before we could support such a measure," said Hall.

Mike Novak, of the Clean Air Movement (CAM) in Detroit, said that much public concern has arisen since the evidence about the propellants was first publicized.

Scared Public

"The public is scared," Novak said. "This is not a typical environmental concern. People can see the possible effects of continued use of these cans and it frightens them."

On the national level, Congressman Marvin Esch, of Ann Arbor, has co-sponsored a bill calling for the investigation of aerosol cans and their effects on the atmosphere.

This bill would place the power to ban propellants within the Environmental Protection Agency.

RON STAFFORD'S a WINNER. He estimated almost to the hoor when the Lodge's Ice Tower would melt to a twelve poond piece. Jack Uhrick, manager of The Lodge Motel of Charlevoix, Michigan, hands over $100.00 and a weekend for Ron and his family, who is an employee of Consomer's Power Co.

Billee Falting Wins Law Day Competition

Billee Falting was the winner of the Essay Contest on the theme "Equal Justice Under Law" sponsored by the Charlevoix-Emmet County Bar Association in recognition of Law Day.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Falting and a senior at the Charlevoix High School where she is among the top 10 students in her class.

Her winning essay, for which she was presented a plaque by District Judge David W. Fershee during the Law Day program at the county building on Thorsday follows:

EQUAL JUSTICE UNDER LAW

Before writing this essay, I looked up three essential words: Equity, Justice, and Law. I found that Justice, in its governmental relations, is "...the giving to every person exactly what he deserves, not necessarily involving any consideration of what any other may deserve."; that "equity....is giving everyone as much advantage, privilege, or consideration as is given to any other...."; and that law, in its ideal, is "...the statement of a principle of right in mandatory form, by competent authority, with adequate penalty for disobedience."

In essence, then, the title of this essay is saying that everyone in this United States, no matter what color, no matter what religion, no matter what his or her political stands are, whether rich, or poor, or middle class; receives the same advantages, privileges and consideration under the law. It is saying that if anyone broke or disobeyed the law, he or she would receive a fair trial, due consideration, and adequate punishment--without being "penalized by his or her origin.

Is this possible? Is it even probable? As of now, there is no such thing as equal justice in our country. Too often, people have been deprived of rights and/or privileges simply because they did not understand the laws, or could not afford a good lawyer. Too often, people have received additional privileges or have been able to "beat the rap" because they had money, power, or position.

The words 'adequate punishment' are important words which are often ignored. Many people who are in a "distinguished position" have received lesser sentences, probation instead of punishment, and have even been pardoned from the crime altogether. Is that justice?

All through my junior and senior high school years, I have been told how unfair our court system can be. When our government and courts were discussed, that fact was never passed over.

Is there something we can do to rid our government of "favoritism?" Will our future generations ever be able to say that our government really is equal justice under the law?

Editorials/Opinions

Senate Bill Threatens Public Right to Know

A grave injustice is about to be served the residents of Charlevoix County unless the Michigan Senate takes immediate action.

Last week the Michigan House passed a bill that would no longer require publication of county expenditures and receipts by boards of commissioners in local newspapers.

If the bill is passed by the Senate and signed by the Governor, county boards would only have to publish the minutes of their meetings.

We feel this would be a tragic mistake and urge all residents to write State Senator Robert Davis and ask him to oppose this move.

Recent national and state events have demonstrated to us time and time again that there is a need for more public watching of governmental activities.

These events have shown us that there indeed must be a check on what governmental activities take place. One major way for the public to watch those activities has been through the publication of their expenses in a local newspaper.

Although the proposed law would require counties to continue making these lists available through the County Clerk's office, we feel that is not enough.

It is impossible for many Charlevoix County residents who work during the day to be able to go to the Clerk's office during the time they work.

In addition to those living in the area, there are many property owners who live in other parts of the state that now are able to check county expenditures through newspaper publication.

But what concerns us more is the precedent this could set in eliminating the publishing of all government activities.

The Charlevoix Courier could be viewed as opposing this bill because they have a vested interested in the revenue derived from legal advertising published in the newspaper.

However, the publication of county expenditures and receipts have appeared in another publication in this county for two years.

Our primary concern is that Charlevoix County residents have every opportunity to know what activities their county is involved with.

Fortunately, we have a county in recent times that has been open with it's activities. However, there are other counties who have not operated in the same manner.

Present law guarantees every Michigan resident equal access to county expenditures through their local paper. We feel this must not change.

We were disappointed to read last week in the Petoskey News-Review that the Emmet County Board of Commissioners unanimously passed a resolution in support of making the publication optional.

They further stated that if publication is made optional they would not print county expenditures.

Commissioner Ann Smith, who proposed the resolution, said the intent of the Board is to save money. We strongly disagree with Mrs. Smith and her fellow commissioners.

The manner in which the county spends public money is a concern to every resident in that county.

We feel it would be imperative that especially Emmet County be required by Michigan law to publish their expenditures.

It was only two years ago that the Petoskey News-Review had to take Emmet County Clerk Harriet Kilborn to court in order to view minutes of a public meeting.

This action alone demonstrated to us that a county should not have the option to decide whether or not lists of expenditures should be published.

We commend both House Representatives Charles Varnum and Ralph Ostling for voting against House Bill 4378. We now ask Senator Robert Davis to take similar action.

We urge you to write Senator Davis at the following address and encourage him as we have done, to vote against the bill when it appears in the Michigan Senate.

His address is:

Senator Robert W. Davis

Leave Jordan As Is

May 1, 1975

Dear Sir:

Recently at a hearing regarding restrictions on the use of the Jordan Valley the closing of certain roads and campgrounds and the regulation of canoeists was recommended, but screams resounded when it came to forbidding snowmobiles.

It is true that education in the proper use of snowmobiles is conducted by interested groups, but there are always those who pay no attention, and in any case on certain terrains the snowmobile can be a destroyer. Being a geologist, my husband one also, formerly with the U.S. Conservation Service, we know that a river valley is a sensitive area where erosion is concerned. There is also the question of litter and the disturbance of wildlife.

There is a poignant area in my wishes for the good continuance of the Jordan Valley. Near the turn of the century when the upper river was reached only by wagon, my father, Charley Bush, fished the river when the native trout (not put-and-takers) came up like thunder from their lairs beneath the timber-falls. Then it was fishermens' paradise. The only adverse element was mosquitoes.

By all means let the Jordan, a limited and fragile system, be disallowed to campers, snowmobilers, all motorized vehicles. Let them go where the topography is fit for them. Leave the Jordan to fish, fishermen (and women), and nature-lovers, and if necessary do it by means of barricades that can't be vandalized. There was an editorial in the Detroit Free Press titled "Off-Road Vehicle Rules A Travesty For U.S. Forests". Let's hope it's not true for Conservancy Districts.

Yours Truly,
Louise B. Beutner

Ellsworth Education Association
Ellsworth, Michigan 49729
April 21, 1975

Mrs. Martha Drenth, Secretary
Board of Education
Ellsworth, Michigan 49729

Dear Mrs. Drenth:

The Ellsworth Education Association would like to take this moment to praise the Board of Education for their courageous stand in remaining firm amid the present court battle with those who seek only to deprive the district's children of a quality faedity and education.

In instances such as this, we all should realize that an integral part of the opposition's strategy is to prolong the issue through litigation hoping to create a feeling of apathy. Also, our community is filled with rumor upon rumor questioning the intent of our Board and Association. We believe this to be a blatant, feeble attempt to undermine the morale of both the Board and the EEA to the point that we'll both simply give up and stop fighting.

The Ellsworth Education Association recognizes the enormous pressures which are brought to bear upon duly elected officials and members of the teaching profession when they choose to fight ignorance and stand up for the truth. To this end, the Association conveys to the Board its continued, unanimous support for its position taken on the school bond issue.

Educationally,
Jack D. Gebott, Jr.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

For an easy-to-take history lesson, I'd like to recommend Merle Miller's new book on, Harry S. Truman. "Plain Speaking."

True to its word, the former President not only speaks plain, but he reads plain as well, thanks to an unusual question-and-answer format that brings the former President, his neighbors, family and cronies right into your living room.

For the first time you'll meet the real Mrs. Wallace, Bess Truman's aristocratic mother who was convinced her daughter could have done better than marry a dirt farmer like Harry Truman. Even when Bess was First Lady, Mrs. Wallace continued to object to her marriage to anyone who would listen.

I never knew that Harry had to put up with a mother-in-law like that. And the fact that he did only gives him a little more stature in my book.

You'll also read all about Margaret and the music critic, the long friendship between Truman and political boss Tom Pendergast (who never bossed Harry), the Whittaker Chambers-Alger Hiss trial, and a down-to-enrth assessment of world figures — all through the eyes of a country boy from Missouri.

Published during the Watergate scandal last year, the book came as a timely reminder that great men have walked among us in the not-too distant past — and one of the greatest was probably Harry S. Truman.

Author Miller recreates with authentic detail the agony most of us experienced that April day in 1945 when the world learned of the death of Franklin D. Roosevelt. The late-afternoon news came as a particularly striking blow to young people like myself (I was 16) who could remember no other president than FDR.

The following day — during English class — the teacher turned on the public address system and we all listened aghast while someone with a high, nasal twang took the oath of office of President of the United States.

Not one out of ten people could have told you the day before who the vice president was. It was some little fellow from Missouri whom Roosevelt had picked to succeed Henry Wallace.

Now that little fellow from Missouri was President.

Young readers (anyone under 47 or young) are advised that Miller's book captures the "mood" of the late 1940's and early 1950's so perfectly that it is like watching re-runs on TV for those of us who lived it.

The fall of Europe. The atomic bomb. Japan's surrender. The rebuilding of Europe. The fall of Chiang Kai-Shek. The invasion of South Korea. The firing of Gen. MacArthur. It's all there — seen through the eyes of someone who was as much a part of it, Harry Truman.

Before picking up the bonk, I had almost forgotten that Truman accomplished what he did against a background of recriminations from a broad spectrum of the voting public. Right-wingers, led by Sen. Joe McCarthy of Wisconsin, considered Truman an out-and-out Red. Even after he sent American troops to Korea, that bunch was against him because he refused to attack Red China. "Didn't I tell you he was a pinko?"

The Eastern Establishment didn't like him because he was a country yokel. And a lot of others just didn't like the guy because he wasn't FDR.

But I'll tell you one thing: We knew Harry Truman was president. And just about every time he made a decision, you might not like it — but you knew deep down he was right; or awfully close to being right.

Truman relates with obvious relish the firing of General MacArthur, commander-in-chief of American and United Nations forces in Korea. The President was afraid that MacArthur's reckless actions and un-solicited statements might precipitate World War III and was convinced he had to do something to stop him. So he fired him.

MacArthur came home, the maligned hero, and played his sand song on the heartstrings of the American people, who welcomed him as no one has ever been welcomed before. But it didn't take us long to see through the play-acting and phony veneer that Harry Truman had known was there all along.

If you like American government, you'll enjoy "Plain Speaking." Even if you just like a good story, well-told, don't miss "Plain Speaking."

And please don't let Harry's earthy language scare you away. You've seen worse epithets serawled in grade school privvies.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Cosmetics have fascinated mankind since the beginning of time, and American men and women have played their share in the role.

Being a woman, and a member of the gender that is reputedly an active participant in the field of cosmetics, I found the history of male cosmetics to be quite incredible and involving much more than I had ever imagined.

The American Indian when encountered by the first explorers were much absorbed in ornamenting their bodies with paints. A chief could spend up to eight hours painting his body for a special occasion!

They also used various animal fats to protect their skin from the cold and insects. It was not long before they discovered that paints applied over these fats were much easier to remove. Though the Indians learned how to make their dyes more lasting, they never developed a method for preserving the fats. Hence, the Indians were enveloped in a highly pungent scent.

The colonists followed England in the trends of cosmetics, using many of their own home concoctions as substitutes for the unavailable beauty aids.

When the wenring of wigs became popular in the seventeenth century, the American men and women had their heads covered with mounds of curly hair reaching to their shoulders that make them look like shaggy lions. They also used perfume to overcome the tobacco smell that clung to their clothing.

The eighteenth century American dandy usually owned a dressing-box that contained his razor cases, scissors, combs, curling-irons, oil and scent bottles, powder puff, brush, and soap. Most gentlemen had a special room in their homes called a powder closet. A gown was first put on and a paper cone was held over the face while flour or starch was sprinkled over the wig. The powders came in various tints ranging from light brown, blue, grayish pink, violet, or white. Gray was used only for mourning.

Men also had the custom of wearing little patches of gummed silk. The patches were usually attached to the face and were originally used to cover blemishes. Later, they were worn as a decoration and were made in various designs such as stars, ships and animals. They even went so far as to become a way of declaring a person's allegiance. If he wore the patch on his right side, he was a Tory — on the left, he was a Whig.

By the nineteenth century, men decided that cosmetics were effiminate and eliminated all cosmetics except hairdressing. The rich men used a perfumed maeassar oil and the pioneer men used the available bear's grease.

In the late 1960's a drive was commenced to lure men to buy more types of cosmetics. The 1972 success story shows that American males spent $510 million on cosmetics in that year alone! Let me hear no more tales about the females being pre-occupied with cosmetics!

Good Job

Dear Editor,

May I take this opportunity to congratulate your worthy reporter, Peg Ohle, on her fine epistle in the April 30 issue of your paper — her description of Grandvue Medical Facility, including pictures, was excellent.

I hope that more citizens of Charlevoix County will come to understand how very fortunate we are to have Grandvue. It is rated one of the finest Medical Facilities in the state of Mich.

If it Fitz

He must be a Legislator

By JIM FITZGERALD

A jobless friend phoned from Las Vegas and I was surprised because a week earlier he had been living on welfare in Michigan. He explained that he was pretending to be a state legislator so he could show the world how easy it is for a phony to get on the public payroll.

"Right now I am on a junket," he said. "I am attending a seminar on the danger of Asian crickets to the Michigan sugar beet. The first meeting was held last night in the Sands Hotel, under a crap table. I even made a short speech. I suggested that next year's seminar be held in Hawaii. No distance is too far to go in the interest of one of our state's most important products, the sugar beet."

My friend has obviously been inspired by Kirby Holmes, the Michigan legislator who recently pretended to be poor so he could show the world how easy it is for a phony to get on welfare. With the aid of 6 co-conspirators, Holmes defrayed the state out of $941 in welfare payments. He grew a beard and wore old clothes and told the Social Service Dept. he was jobless and needed money to pay the rent and feed his children. The dummies believed him.

When his cover was finally blown, Holmes proclaimed loudly that his masquerade had proven that most ADC mothers should be frisked and fingerprinted before being allowed to stand in the foodstamp line. Any common cheat can go on welfare, Holmes claimed. He got his picture in all the newspapers.

My junket friend admitted his desire to duplicate Holmes' success, flip side. He wants to gain the reputation and image of a legislator. He wants to be so convincing he can draw a legislator's salary without even winning an election. He phoned me because he knows newspapermen keep a fascinnted eye on the legislature which is usually the best show in town. He wondered if I had any suggestions on how he might improve his impersonation.

I told him the Las Vegas junket was a brilliant beginning but he should be sure to stop over in Los Angeles and San Francisco on the way home. On his expense account, the entire trip should be charged to cab fare. All legislators and their incestuous "watchdogs" know how impossible it is to get a receipt from a cabbie.

Just the other day a Michigan legislator bought himself a color TV with taxpayers' money and called it a business expense. My friend would be smart to buy himself a jet plane and charge it up to mileage logged while studying the sway of the Mackinac Bridge.

One of my favorite legislators is always getting drunk and passing out in the parking lots of drive-in restaurants. This is interesting, enough to get his name in the papers, but not very classy. I told my friend to strip and dance a jig on the buffet table at Charley's Crab in the Pontchartrain Hotel in downtown Detroit.

My masquerading friend should also establish an out-state office in his basement at home. It should be staffed by his wife, 5 kids, 2 brothers-in-law and assored nieces and nephews. They can grow sugar beets in the windowbox and the whole thing can easily be charged to the taxpayers.

Mich. State Sen. Joseph Mac recently spent $37,000 refurnishing his Lansing office. Much of this public money went for carpeting. A legislator's status is often measured by the thickness of his carpet. Sen. Mack must be up to his fanny in pile. I suggest that my friend consider carpeting his ceiling. Then he could request a special appropriation to pay Karl Wallenda to do his vacuuming.

At this point my friend expressed amazement. "Gee," he said, "I think there are more cooks in the legislature than there are on welfare."

"Watch it," I cautioned him, "what you just said makes sense. You go around making sense, no one will ever mistake you for a legislator."

Meet Charlevoix

...Meet Debbie Bellinger

The lack of snow doesn't preveat the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club from being active. Believe it or not, they meet in the summaer.

She is a local heautician and moved to Charlevoix 15 years ago from Bay City. She and her husband have one child.

COURIER: What is the Charlevoix Snowmobile Club?

BELLINGER: The purpose of the snowmobile club is to promote good sportsmanship, safety, entertainment and better laws governing snowmobiles. The snowmobile club for the last three years has participated in the snowmobile safety course for children to get their safety certificates. Children between the ages of 12 and 16 are required to have this document. As of yet, we do not have a club house. Now we meet at the Marion Township Hall through the winter and during the summer we have casual meetings like picnics, baseball games and a yearly pig roast. We are a family club and this way you can get children involved.

COURIER: Who is involved with the club?

BELLINGER: We would really like to have a good cross section of people, so that all people are involved. Mostly we have a number of farm families and this is one reason we have the amount of property we do to run on just sooth of town. Again, I want to stress we are a family club and do things with the children. Any ride we go on, at the parent's discretion, the children can come along. We have 40 family memberships, which means we have about 80 adults and many more children. A lot of these are not active members, but pay their dues so that they can support the club.

COURIER: What are some of the activities yoor club is involved with?

BELLINGER: We have snowmobile safaris. We have an annual pig roast. We take one trip a year to the Upper Peninsula. We have one pet project, which is to take the kids from the Ironton Trainable Center on smowmobile rides. And we are very concerned as to what the environment is like, so we attempt to be careful when we travel. We participate in all the parades held in town, float-wise, clowawise and with snow sculptures. We pot out a brochure two years ago that advertises for people interested in snowmobiling to come up here. As a club, instead of people coming up here and tearing op the area because they don't know where to go, we promised in the brochure to take them on guided rides. Vince Olach of the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce helped us distribute them by taking them downstate every time he made a trip down there and they are in his office for people who stop in and ask questions about snowmobiling.

COURIER: Does the club have any long range projects?

BELLINGER: Hopefully some day with the support of the community, we will be able to build a club house that we hope will be as good as East Jordan's building. They have a terrific club. As far as long range projects that's just about it.

COURIER: The Courier recently supported the idea of having a snowmobile trail from Charlevoix to other areas in Northern Michigan. Do you think this has any realistic appleication?

BELLINGER: Charlevoix could never be a Paradise, Michigan where they now have a major groomed trail network because first of all we have a state highway going through town. Even though it is a state highway and the county roads were open to snowmobiling, which they are not, you have a problem of no shoulders along the side of the road. There's not enough state land to set up a groomed trad. And the cost of groomiug equipment to maintain a trail is out of sight. Personally, the riding here is far better than riding on the groomed trails in Paradise because they are more of a challenge. The groomed trails in Paradise are like riding down a plowed county road—straight and smooth. There are also alot of people in town who do not snowmobile and do not like them. Yoo have to have the sopport of the whole town, whieh is what it takes.

Erma Bombeck

When it first appeared, Erma Bombeck's special Mother's Day column became an instant tradition. This year we again bow to popular demand by bringing Erma's unique tribute to mothers for publication on Mother's Day.

When the Good Lord was creating Mothers He was into His sixth day of "overtime" when the angel appeared and said, "You're doing a lot of fiddling around on this one."

And the Lord said, "Have you rend the spec on this order?

"She bas to be completely washable, but not plastic.

"Have 180 movable parts ...all replaceable.

"Run on black coffee and leftovers.

"Have a lap that disappears when she stands up.

"A kiss that can eure anything from a broken leg to a disappointed love affair.

"And six pairs of hands."

The angel shook her head slowly and said, "Six pairs of hands...no way."

"It's not the hands that are causing me problems," said the Lord. "It's the three pairs of eyes that mothers have to have."

"That's on the standard model?" asked the angel.

The Lord nodded. "One pair that sees through closed doors when asks, 'What are the kids doing in there?' when she already knows. Another here in the back of her head that sees what she shouldn't but what she has to know, and of course the ones here in front so that she can look at a child when he goofs and say, 'I understand and I love you' without so much as uttering a word."

"Lord," said the angel touching His sleeve gently, "come to bed. Tomorrow..."

"I can't," said the Lord, "I'm so close to creating something so close to myself. Already I have one who heals herself when she is sick...can feed a family of six on one pound of hamburger...and can get a 9-year-old to stand under a shower."

The angel circled the model of a Mother very slowly. "It's too soft," she sighed.

"But tough!" said the Lord excitedly. "You cannot imagine what this Mother can do or endure."

"Can it think?"

"Not only think, but it can reason and compromise," said the Creator.

Finally, the angel bent over and ran her finger aeross the cheek. "There's a leak," she pronounced. "I told You You were trying to put too much into this model."

"It's not a leak," said the Lord. "It's a tear."

"What's it for?"

"It's for joy, sadness, disappointment, pain, loneliness and pride."

"You are a genius," said the angel.

The Lord looked somber. "I didn't put it there."

Maple Syrup--A Kiwanis Tradition

By FRAN MARTIN

Since the first explorers arrived on the North American continent and found the Indians making what is now known as maple syrup, this operation heralds the springtime wherever there are sugar maples.

In fact, Michigan ranks third of all the states in the production of maple syrup with approximately 1,000 producers. New York and Vermont usually run neck and neck for first and second places.

In Charlevoix, the appearance of sap pails hanging from maple trees throughout the community denotes the beginning of the annual Kiwanis Club tap and the making of maple syrup as a fund-raising project.

Two hundred gallons of the delicious ambrosia has already been bottled with another 50 gallons anticipated before the season ends a spokesman for the club reports.

While this has been a fair year, production is not expected to reach the 1974 total when 300 gallons was harvested.

The Kiwanis Club project dates back to 1958 when 650 five-quart pails were purchased and the club began its project with only a limited amount of equipment financed with $650 advanced by seven members. Today, the club has 1500 covered buckets and conducts its evaporation process in a 'sugar house' which holds more than $6,000 worth of modern evaporation and related equipment.

Edward K. Shanahan is syrup master, a position he has held for many years. This year Edward Beutner has been his assistant.

Proceeds from the project are used to support youth projects in the community.

LOCAL YOUNGSTERS work with the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club in collecting Maple tree sap from buckets hung on trees around town.

Boyne Gets $1,094 For Cancer Drive

Skiers at Boyne Mountain contributed $1,094 to the Charlevoix County Cancer Fund during the last weekend of April.

Boyne Mountain opened its ski slopes free of charge for the weekend, requesting that instead of the regular fee skiers contribute to the fund.

Members of the Charlevoix County Cancer Crusade thank Everett Kircher, Charles Moll and their staff at Boyne Mountain for making the drive possible.

April is traditionally Cancer Crusade month, but due to poor weather this year the Crusade is being extended into May. Persons who have not yet been contacted by a crusader and wishing to contribute to the fund may send contributions to Mrs. Dorothy Dixon, treasurer, First State Bank, Charlevoix, or contact Crusade Chairmen as follows: Mrs. Albert Seger, Charlevoix; Mrs. Harvey Varnum, Boyne City; Mrs. Donald Russell, East Jordan, Mrs. Anthony Kullik, Boyne Falls or Mrs. Bud Jackson, Walloon Lake.

An up-date of all Indian Center programs will be presented. All interested residents of the Tri-County area of Emmet, Charlevoix and Cheboygan counties are urged to attend.

Taxes

Northern Michigan seems to be getting the short stick when it comes to financing schools through property taxes, but no immediate relief appears to be insight.

Some 30 residents complained bitterly Saturday about the loss of state aid to local school because of high property valuations and forcing local school districts to ask for more millage or make serious program cutbacks.

However, Bill Renis, district supervisor for the Michigan Tax Commission could see no immediate changes in the state aid formula that calls for diminishing state aid when property valuations increase in the district.

He along with State Rep. Ralph Ostling said the formula definitely favors lower Michigan communities who also control the Michigan Legislature.

Renis also discussed how once a township or city assessor determines the value of property, local residents can still appeal that decision to their local Board of Review in March and eventually to the Michigan Tax Tribunal if they are unhappy.

Michigan began using property tax in 1835, to finance both state and local government, but had to enact the state sales tax in 1933 to meet growing government expenses.

Residents now also enjoy a state income tax that was started in 1967.

BILL RENIS

Welfare

Michigan Department of Social Service's number one goal this year is to reduce the number of ineligible residents receiving welfare, says Russell Hendrick, the agency's deputy director.

"The Department is in trouble," he said.

"The welfare roles have ballooned."

He said the state agency operates with a $2 billion budget and 12,000 people staff.

Hendrick blames part of Michigan's welfare problems on a high unemployment period and liberal federal laws.

The deputy state director says ADC (Aid to Dependent Children) has increased an average 1,000 a month this year so far.

Hendrick said at least 25 percent of the present welfare roll could be eliminated if a program were created so that people out of jobs would have to go to an employment office for public service work before going to the unemployment office.

The state official said several major legislative bills introduced this year could have a significant effect on Michigan's welfare system if they become law.

One proposal would prevent fraud now taking place in medical assistance programs, while another would take the general assistance program out of the hands of local government and place it under state control.

North Hosts First Legislative Conference

LEGISLATORS AND OTHER STATE OFFICIALS FIELD QUESTIONS

But Only A Few Residents Come

BELLAIRE – State lawmakers seemed dismayed last weekend to learn that only a handful of Northern Michigan were interested in state government.

Only 30 residents from 10 counties showed up for a special legislative conference held Saturday at Shanty Creek Lodge.

The all-day conference, according to State Representative Ralph Ostling of Roscommon, was to improve communication between state government and local communities.

But instead, they found themselves talking to an almost empty conference room, mostly filled with local politicians.

"A great deal of people had expressed interest," Ostling said while scanning the rows of empty chairs.

"I sent out more than 300 letters inviting people to come, as well as the normal news release."

Ostling had hoped the conference format would help solve the problem of covering his district which includes more than 5,000 sq. miles from Claire to Beaver Island.

"I tried meeting with constituents at all the township halls," he said.

"This worked in some places, but in others it didn't."

The second term legislator is one of six with Northern Michigan law maker who find it difficult to travel in their large geographical areas on the $3,000 a year expense account allowed them for travel and living in Lansing while in legislative session.

"I'm distressed about communication," Ostling said.

"There just isn't enough time."

The former Roscommon industrial arts and government teacher said he is concerned about making sure the average citizen is informed of what is happening in state government.

Ostling said he had been hoping others, besides local politicians, would have come to the legislative conference.

"I know how to make the average person respond....do something wrong," he continued.

"Then you get people to respond negatively."

The 47-year-old lawmaker said he wanted people to get more than just what they read in the newspapers.

"It's like putting yourself against a brick wall," Ostling said.

"People take a passive part, but bitch at the end when everything is decided and done.'

Participating in the conference with Ostling were State Senator Robert Davis of Gaylord; Bill Renis, district supervisor for the Michigan State Tax Commission; Russell Hendrick, deputy director of the Michigan Department of Social Services; Karl Hosford, director of the Department of Natural Resources Land Use Division; William Taylor, Michigan State University transportation expert and state consultant; and Otto Kraus, professor of engineering from Michigan State.

Land Use

Michigan must use a common-sense approach when it comes to land use planning, says Michigan's chief planner.

Karl Hosford, chief of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources' Land Use Division, believes a state land-use plan is more than a colored map on someone's wall.

approach to solve land use problems, as well as with a common sense program.

Hosford says one of the major problems confronting the state is developing a program to handle Michigan's abundance of natural resources that involve many conflicting uses.

"The economy of this whole state is dependent on how we manager our resources," he said.

The state expert said a sound management program depends on three basic principles–openness, honesty and sincerity.

One of the major questions to be asked, Hosford says, is whether or not the state is providing the proper tools necessary for local governments to have sound land use programs.

"Our job is to identify land use problems and make recommendations to the legislature," he said about his agency.

Hosford said it was time for more implementation and less long term planning programs that have been taking place over the last 20 years.

KARL HOSFORD

Transportation

Michigan transportation expert Bill Taylor says there is still hope for Michigan rail service.

The Michigan State University professor said Michigan stands to lose over 40 percent or 1,700 miles of its trackage under a proposed federal rail abandonment program to be considered by Congress this summer.

He said Governor William Milliken along with 17 other state governors affected by the proposed cutbacks have gone to both the White House and Congress attempting to rescind the program.

They say the proposed federal program should include both profitable and non-profitable lines under a federal rail system.

Taylor said another key transportation question confronting Northern Michigan is U.S. 31 and 131 alternative route system that is expected to go soon to public hearing.

He said the program is designed to improve road transportation in the area.

Otto Kraus, another Michigan State energy expert, said Michigan residents need to continue thinking about the state's energy program.

He said residents might as well forget about use of gas and oil for generation of electricity in the future. Forty percent of the state's oil used now is imported.

"The answer to the problem is to use less," he said.

By CHUCK WRIGHT

The nature of doubles is much different from singles primarily because it involves team work. The next couple of articles will deal with the game of doubles.

It is especially important to learn how to play doubles correctly when one considers that more tennis participants play doubles than singles. Playing doubles correctly is a different story.

Doubles is a team activity. Therefore, it involves a great deal of communication between partners. Without this communication, no doubles team can play effectively.

For instance, when a ball is hit down the middle of the court, the natural reaction is for both partners to go for the shot. After a collision or two, neither player will go for the shot and what should have been an easy shot goes through for a winner.

The normal rule for shots down the middle is for the forehand to take precedence over a backhand. With two right-handed players, a shot down the middle goes to one's backhand and the other's forehand. If the player with the forehand feels he has a good shot at the ball, he should call for it by declaring "Mine" or "I got it". If he does not feel he has a good shot at it, he should declare "Yours".

Another excellent example of the importance of communication is on the lob. Assume that one player is at the net and his partner is back. The opponents hit a short lob right to the net player. He should immediately call for the shot to let his partner know that no assistance is needed.

If, however, the lob goes over the net player's head he should let his partner know that he cannot reach the shot easily. At the same time, the player in back should let his partner know he can get to it easily.

If both players are at the net and a deep lob goes up, both should be communicating. A short two or three second running conversation, while it seems ridiculous, is not uncommon. Partners have to let each other know who has the better shot at the ball.

A player can even over-rule his partner if he honestly feels he has a better angle or percentage shot. This can be touchy. The player who often over-rules his partner might find that the partner does not want to listen. Subsequently that player might get bashed with his partner's racquet.

Communication, it is obvious, is the first major step to playing good doubles. Like any team sport, the doubles team must have a repore and a mutual understanding of each other's strengths and weaknesses.

I have been asked to remind the tennis playing public to use the clock system at the public courts. When you go on the court, set your clock at the hour you went on. After an hour is up, you should give up your court if someone is waiting and they have hung their racquet up underneath your clock.

this allows everybody a chance to play. While this system is certainly not perfect, it is the fairest way to run the public courts short of having an attendant (which is the best way of all).

Lose First

The Rayder tennis team suffered its first loss of the season last week at the hands of the Petoskey Northmen but bounced back to win its other two matches against Grayling and Leelanau.

The 7-2 luss to Petoskey was much closer than the score indicated. Three matches went three sets while several other sets were extended to extra games. Winners for Charlevoix were Erik Lundteigen, who is unbeaten this year in match play, and the doubles team of Ted Lass and Mark Hosmer.

The Rayders beat Grayling by an indentical 7-2 score. All the doubles teams won rather easily for Charlevoix.

The teams were: John Greene and Marc Malpeli, Mark Hosmer and Steve Berlage, Dan Engstrom and Eric Slone, and Mark Cockfield and Dave Taylor. Singles winners were Lundteigen, Brian Osterberg and Lisa Wiemer.

Last Friday Charlevoix defeated defending class C-D Regional champions Leelanau for the second time this year. The score was 5-2. Winners for Charlevoix were Erik Lundteigen, Larry Smith and Lisa Wiemer in singles. Doubles winners were Mark Hosmer and Steve Berlage and Dan Engstrom and Eric Slone.

This week, the Rayders travel to Gaylord and have home matches against East Jordan and Alpena.

Lighthouse Ferry Turns Patriotic

The Ironton Ferry across the South Arm of Lake Charlevoix opened for the season last Tuesday, a little later in the year than usual because of piled and floating ice.

The cabin of the ferry has been painted red, white and blue by chief operator Bob Baker and his deputy, Norman Ramsdell. It was their own idea, according to Irvin H. Sturm, engineer-director of the Charlevoix County Road Commission.

The Ironton Ferry has been operating for over 90 years. The exact date that it started is now known but there is a picture dated 1886 showing the ferry being drawn by horses.

Latin Club Celebrates Last Banquet

By Fraa Martin
The Charlevoix High School Latin Club held its annual spring banquet at the high school cafeteria Wednesday. It also marked the final banquet for the club which is being dissolved because Latin is no longer taught in the school.

As members and guests, wearing Ruman togas and sandals, gathered to dine on Latin food with an American accent, Kathy Britton, in the absence of Tammy Weiland who was ill, delivered the welcome oration, as Caesar did from the rustrum, concluding with the statement "Latin lives today" in Latin.

Following the speech, Kathy led the legions around the room while singing "Caesar's ten legions" (Caesar Hnhet anum legionem", etc.) to the tune of "Ten Little Indians." She led them to the head table where Mrs. Max Novak, club sponsor and teacher, was presented with a bouquet of spring flowers from the club.

Sitting or reclining on pillows and eating at low tables, the members and guests were served a meal that started with a salad that included sliced eggs and ended with apples in the form of apple crisp for a traditional Roman meal included "everything from eggs to apples" as American meals include "everything from soup to nuts", Mrs. Novak explained.

Between courses, club members sang in Latin such sungs as "Row, row, ruw your boat", "Are you sleeping?", "Caesar's Legions" and to Mr. Novak, who was a guest, "Happy Birthday".

Tables were decorated in royal purple and gold with spring flowers and miniature scrolls of the menus written in Latin.

Student Council Membership Changes

By Robin Roseearats
Thanks to Jim Berlage and a favorable vote by both the Student Council and the student body, n proposed amendment to the Charlevoix High School Student Constitution was finally passed that will now open both class officer and Student Counci positions to any student running for either office.

Under the new amendment, class and counci elections will be held separately, and any nominee losing in the first election may run in the second. The reason for this accurding to Berlage, is "to provide more leadership for CHS. In the past we have lost potential leadership because candidates were forced to choose between a class position ur s council pusition, and there was no opportunity under the present constitution to serve in the other elective capacity if the candidate lost in the one election."

Elections this year will be held as follows: For class officers-Petitions will go out the third Tuesday of April, and must be filed by the fourth Tuesday in April. The election for class officers will be held one week from the date the petitions are due to be filed. For Student Council - Petitions will be available the Thursday following the class elections, and must be returned the following Thursday with the Council elections being held one week after the date the petitions are due.

The Rev. R.Dale Magoon officiated at the double ring service in the presence of more than 130 guests un Saturday, April 26. Arrangements of spring flowers decorated the altar for the ceremony. Steven Dondero of Harbor Springs, at the organ, played a program of traditional music and the wedding marches and accompanied the soloist, Mrs. Maurice Cudd.

The bride, given in marriage by Raymond T. Conley of Petoskey, chose a Victorian gown of peau de soie for her wedding. The fitted bodice featured long tapered sleeves, a bib of Alencon lace accented with seed pearls and a high Victurian neckline. The slightly flared skirt terminated in a cathedral length train A fingertip veil of French illusion was caught to a Juliet cap of lace cut along mantilla lines. Charlevoix Area Hospital Celebrates Hospital Week

This is the comment of Richard L. Krueger, administrator of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, in announcing National Hospital Week, May 11 through 17.

The local hospital's program for National Hospital Week includes a blood pressure clinic, to be held in the hospital next Monday through Friday, from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock in the afternoon and 6 to 8 o'clock in the evening.

In order to further the work of the Charlevoix Area Hospital, it is seeking new members for the Hospital Association. Annual dues are $5 a year and lifetime dues $15. These funds are used to buy new equipment for the hospital.

Nationally, the theme for Hospital Week is "A Constant Concern for Healthy Community". On the staff of the Charlevoix Area Hospital are twelve physicians who share this concern for the community. They are:

H.R. Custer, M.D., John A. Fochtman, M.D., Ross Hume, M.D., Dennis M. Joy, M.D., John H. Lignell, M.D., R.W. Mansfield, D.O., Robert G. Martin, M.D., Merle O. Plagge, M.D., David M. Roebuck, M.D. and G.B. Saistonstall, M.D., John H. Savory, M.D. and J. Vandelden, M.D.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital was established in the 1920's as a general acute care hospital, and in 1952 a new building was constructed at the present site. Since that time additions have been built to provide space for modern physical therapy, pediatries, laboratory and x-ray departments. A solarium overlooking Lake Michigan was added in 1967 and in 1972 a three-bed intensive-care coronary-care unit was added.

An office building to serve four doctors was built next to the hospital in 1966, and early this year a new office building will be built for additional space for doctors coming to the Charlevoix Area. Two new doctors are already scheduled to join the staff on July 1. They are Reed Freidugter, M.D. and James Gels, M.D. Both men come from the William Beaumont Hospital in Royal Oak.

The Charlevoix Area Hospital is accredited by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospital, a national reviewing organization composed of the American College of Physicians, the American College of Surgeons, the American Hospital Association and the American Medical Association.

Charlevoix Township Battles Two Area Fires Last Week

A flash fire in the home of the Daniel C. Steelman family located on the Marion Center road did extensive damage to the kitchen and smoke damage to the remainder of the house according to a spokesman for the Charlevoix Volunteer Fire Department.

The firemen were called to the house, located two miles south of Charlevoix, at 12:10 p.m.

Steelmen told firemen he was working with a can of formica glue when it was ignited, apparently by a pilot light on the stove.

The frame house is a new structure that was nearing completion.

The family had been living in the house for some time.

No estimate was made of the damage which was partially covered by insurance.

Last Thursday, firemen were called to the Walter Hoffman property on Waller Road to fight a small tree and grass fire.

Charlevoix Township fire officials estimate about ½-acre of pines and grass were burned.

Firemen fought the blaze for 45 minutes. No cause has been determined.

Charlevoix Band Gets One Rating

By Fran Martin

The Charlevoix High School Symphony Band, participating in Class B, was awarded a First Division rating at the State Band and Orchestra Festival in Traverse City Saturday.

It marked the fifteenth time in 29 years that a Charlevoix Symphony band, appearing under Clarence A. Odmark, has received the coveted First Division rating.

The band chose to accept the challenge to participate in Class B, one classification above the school enrollment classification. Thus, it marked the first time the group had received a 1 in this class.

The first time a Charlevoix band received a 1 rating was in 1950. Since then blue ribbon performances have been given in in 1951, '52, '54, '56, '57, '58, '60, '63, '64, '66, '67, '69, '73 and '75. In 1970 the Concert band received a 1 rating. In 1963 and '73 the bands received straight 1's.

On Saturday the band received a 1 and two 1l's in concert and a 1 in sight reading.

Judges were William Root of Ferris State College, William Rivard of Central Michigan University, David Merkel, retired director at Bad Axe and Floyd Mead of the Midland Public Schools.

The next appearance of the Symphony band will be on Thursday, May 15, when the band presents its annual Spring Concert.

Charlevoix Cancer Society Program Helps Area Women Detect Breast Cancer Cases

The Charlevoix Area Hospital reports that 140 women were examined during its recent breast self-examination clinic.

Of the 140 examined, 22 women showed positive results, which the hospital points out does not necessary indicate breast cancer but does alert them for a thorough examination.

Physicians who donated their services to the clinic were Harry Custer, John Foehtman, Dennis Joy, John Lignell, Robert Martin and Merle Plagge.

Nurses participating in the clinic were Gerry Brady, Deanna Beyer, Dorothy Custer, Pat LeVasseur, Lois McCandless, Marge Martin, Jan Ready and Carol Roznoski.

Also helping with the undertaking were Anne Davis, Laurie Lesser, Elenor Neff, Diane Place, Nancy Porter, Mary Lou Supernaw, Florence Uhrick, Vicki Voisin and Colleen Wright, who kept records and assisted with appointments.

Hatchery Prepares for Next Year

While anglers are out enjoying the opening of trout season, fish experts are already worrying about future trout seasons.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service at Jordan River National Fish Hatchery near Elmira are in the middle of stocking spring trout.

Rearing by the local hatchery, the federal agency has been dumping five-inch fingerlings in Lakes Huron and Michigan.

In Lake Michigan, they have planted 100,000 in Greilickville; 75,000 in Acme; 50,000 in Frankfort; 50,000 in Benton Harbor and 50,000 at Fisherman's Island.

Restoration of lake trout began in 1962 in Lake Superior and in 1965 in Lake Michigan.

Watch Out for Voltage S-H-O-C-K-S

Correctly installing a television or radio antenna can put you in tune for better reception, but the unsafe installation can be disasterous, warns Consumers Power Company.

Tragedy can occur if a metal antenna comes in contact with an overhead energized electric line, they caution.

Metal television and radio antennas are conductors of electricity. If they come into contact with a power line, electricity will flow to anyone touching the antenna, or to television or radio sets possibly resulting in fire or damage to the set.

The overhead hazard can present itself in different circumstances, including lightning. A Roscommon County man recently was helping his neighbor put up an antenna when it accidentally came in contact with an overhead electric distribution line. The charge electrocuted one of the men.

Company records show where a man was electrocuted while adding lengths to a citizen's band radio antenna when the mast touched an overhead 4800 volt line. Another incident occurred when five men were attaching a 60-foot antenna to the side of a house and a sudden gust of wind blew the structure against two high voltage power lines. Two men were electrocuted and the other three hospitalized with electrical burns.

1. Most important of all, place your antenna mast so that no part of it can come closer than ten feet to electric power lines.

2. Install the antenna when weather conditions are clear and winds calm.

3. If the mast is fastened to a house or other structure, make sure that the structure is strong enough to carry the added weight. Allow for wind, ice and vibration.

4. The mast should be securely anchored and not lean in any direction.

5. If your antenna mast is more than ten feet high, strengthen it with at least three equally spaced guy wires or rust-resistant cable. Stranded, galvanized steel is recommended. Add a set of guy wires every ten feet on taller masts.

6. To prevent lightning accidents, place a lightning arrester--one approved by the Underwriters' laboratories for TV leads--on each conductor of a ribbon lead.

Commissioners Reject Animal Shelter Bids

By Fran Martin

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will accept bids on a masonry-type animal shelter following action by the board at a special meeting Friday night.

Earlier the board had accepted bids for a pole-type metal structure. However, because noise from the shelter had become a concern of residents of the area near the County Jail where the shelter is to be constructed, the board voted to reject the bids for the metal building and accept bids on the masonry building.

Ralph Richardson, chairman of the Sheriff's Committee in charge of building the shelter, proposed the change in structure. Information regarding bids may be obtained from Richardson or the Sheriff's Department.

Richardson also recommended that the board of commissioners and Peaine and St. James townships enter into an agreement whereby responsibilities for maintainance of the emergency evacuation plane would be spelled out. The recommendation was approved.

In other action, the board approved $390 for work to be done on the parking lot west of the Courthouse Annex to prepare the property for use as a parking lot. The work includes a 20-foot entrance and repairs on the property to be done by Tri-City Asphalt, Inc.

Before approving Richardson's recommendation regarding the proposed masonry building to house the dog pound, the board heard comments from Mrs. John Resch who lives at 204 W. Garfield and Anthony Resch who resides at 1113 Grant St. who objects to the proposed site of the dog pound. Both felt that it would decrease the value of their property in the event they wanted to sell, and that it would detract from the neighborhood.

The board had decided to place the shelter adjacent to the county jail, for convenience and economy.

Democrats Plan Meeting

Charlevoix County Democrats are sponsoring two special meetings later this month according to Martin Paul, County Chairman.

On Thursday, May 15, William Ralls, a member of the Michigan Public Service Commission, will speak on the "Bill of Rights for Michigan Utility Customers". This meeting, which should be of great interest to the public, will be held at the REA building in Boyne City at 7:30 p.m.

On Monday, May 19, Dudley Buffa, legislative assistant to Michigan's Senator Philip A. Hart, will address Charlevoix county Democrats at the City Hall in Charlevoix at 7:30 p.m.

RICHARD FOCHTMAN

Former Charlevoix City Councilman Heads New Charter Commission Group

Richard Fochtman, co-owner of Charlevoix Oil Co. and a former member of the city council, was elected chairman of the city's new Charter Commission at the group's first regularly scheduled meeting last Tuesday.

Elected to serve with Fochtman were John Schroeder, vice chairman; and Lawrence Feindt, secretary-treasurer. Schroeder is former owner of Schroeder's Drug Store and is semi-retired. Feindt is associated with Charlevoix Abstract and Engineering Co.

The nine-man commission was elected April 7 to draw up a home rule charter for the city, which presently operates under the Fourth Class Cities Act.

At the initial meeting, the commission adopted a set of by-laws and agreed to meet every second and fourth Tuesdays at the City Hall at 7:30 p.m. Members stressed that all meetings are open to the public. Visitors will be given an opportunity to address the commission at the beginning of each meeting.

First scheduled speaker was Mayor Edward P. Hansen who discussed the rule of the ward and the political party in city government.

Hansen said he also believes the present one-year term for mayor and two-year term for aldermen are too short.

During the first few meetings, the commission will sound out present and past city officers and officials from nearby communities on the advantages and disadvantages of home-rule.

Next speaker will be Charles Carey of Charlevoix who will tell huw the Cheboygan Charter Commission went about its work. Meeting will be May 13 at 7:30 p.m. at the City Hall.

A talented artist, he illustrated his own books with pen and ink sketches in which he portrayed the wonders of the natural world of accent a point.

Four Charlevoix Residents File For Two School Board Positions

Four candidates filed nominating petitions for the two vacancies on the Charlevoix Board of Education as the deadline passed at 4 p.m. Monday.

Charles A. Elzinga and Arthur A. Ranger filed for the four-year vacancy and D. Dawson Way and Robert J. Cook for the two-year term.

The four-year term was that filled by Elzinga until it expires June 30. The two year term developed when Larry Warner, who had served four years on the board, resigned recently with two years remaining on his term. He resigned because he is planning to attend college full time and felt voters would have an opportunity to name his successor in the forthcoming June election.

A thumbnail sketch of the candidates follow:

Candidates for the four-year term are Elzinga, who is seeking re-election to succeed himself and Arthur A. Ranger, consulting engineer.

Elzinga is a native of Charlevoix, attended local schools and served four years in the U.S. Army including three years in Germany.

He has been associated with Farm Bureau Insurance since 1961 and has been the Charlevoix agent for the company since March 1965. He has taken numerous short courses in insurance at Michigan State and Purdue Universities. Besides serving on the Board of Education for the past four years, he is a member of the Tip-O'-the-Mitt Life Insurance Underwriters, secretary of the board of directors of Youth For Christ–Petoskey Area and is a member of the Assembly of God church.

He is married to the former Bonnie Drost. They have three children, Carol, a student at North Central Bible College in Minneapolis, Minn., Charles, Jr., a senior at Michigan State University where he is majoring in Zoology and David, a Middle School student.

Like Elzinga, Ranger is a native of Charlevoix. He also is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Engineering, was liaison scientist with the Office of Naval Research in London, England, for one year and was on the engineering faculty at Purdue University for four years. He returned to northern Michigan in August 1943 to become associated with the Charlevoix Abstract & Engineering Co. and, as of April 1, has opened his own office here as an Engineering Consultant.

He is a member of the Charlevoix Flying Club, Michigan Society of Professional Engineers, National Society of Professional Engineers, the Michigan Society of registered Land Surveyors and the American Society of Engineering Educators. He is married to the former Patsy Ratigan. They have four children, Arthur, 16, Corrine, 15, Robert, 14, and William, 11.

Two candidates are seeking election to the two-year vacancy resulting from the recent resignation of Warner. They are Dawson Way, District Sales Manager for Farm Bureau Insurance and Robert J. Cook, retired teacher.

Way was born in Detroit and attended school there until coming to Charlevoix in 1947. The following year he was graduated from the Charlevoix High School. He later served two years in the U.S. Army, most of it in France. He attended Ferris State College in 1953 and '54 and for the next five years operated a dairy farm in Norwood township.

In 1961 he was appointed regional representative for the Michigan Farm Bureau organization with the responsibility of organizing the county's Farm Bureau's work with the board of directors and to promote Michigan agriculture and Farm Bureau policies in eight counties.

In 1964 he transferred to the Farm Bureau Insurance Group as agent-manager in charge of sales and manpower in five counties. In 1968 his territory was expanded to include all of the Upper Peninsula.

In 1973, he was promoted to District Sales Manager responsible for sales and manpower growth and customer relations for 27 counties.

He is part owner of the Scheid Northern Realty and developer of Sugar Bush Knoll subdivision on M-66 south of Charlevoix.

He is a member of the Charlevoix Flying Club, Tip-O'-the-Mitt Life Insurance Underwriters Association, the Charlevoix county Farm Bureau, Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association and the Assembly of God church.

He is married to the former Joan Brumm. They have five children including two who have graduated, Sandy and Susan and one in each of the three district's three schools giving him a wide knowledge of school activities.

Robert J. Cook was Industrial Arts teacher in the Charlevoix schools for 21 years prior to his retirement in 1973. He had taught at Copemish, Pellston and Harbor Springs for 11 years before coming here.

A native of Harbor Springs and a graduate of Western Michigan University, he received the Outstanding Teachers Award given by the American Industrial Arts Association in 1972 and the Teacher of the Year Award given by the Michigan Industrial Arts Society in 1973.

Since his retirement, he is serving as president of the Senior Citizens Housing Commission, as a member of the Area Planning Commission and as a director for the Sheltered Work Shop.

He is married to the former Mary L. Ward of Harbor Springs. They have five grown children and nine grandchildren.

Board Approves Summer Taxes

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix Board of Education Monday approved a summer tax collection in Norwood township and in the City of Charlevoix that would total 50 percent or 12.225 mills to be used for general operating purposes.

Taxes for this purpose are normally collected in December. A collection with the summer taxes in July will cut back on the need to borrow funds until tax collections come in in 1976, school officials say.

Teachers to be re-employed after being advised that they might not be hired if millage was not available are Charles Bentley, Carol Elliott, Roger Gowell, Mervin Greene, JoAnn Kravutske, Plas Presnell, Larry Roth, Thomas Sothard, Jennifer Wright and James Wyns.

The following coaching assignments were approved: football: Don Carey, Plas Presnell, David Moyer, Peter Spieles and Hal Evans; girls basketball, Toni Felter; Varsity basketball, Barry Anderson; Junior Varsity basketball, Don Carey; freshman basketball, Roger Gowell; girls volleyball, Marie Osterberg; skiing, William Murray; wrestling, Norman Probert; girls track and field, Mrs. Osterberg; junior high track, Jerry Pohl and tennis, Charles Wright.

Anderson was also hired as golf coach pending student participating and Dennis Carr cross country coach, also pending student participation. Both must have a minimum of 15 students.

In other action, the board:

–Approved job descriptions for instrumental band director and business manager.

–Discussed a new policy for student parking of automobiles, motorcycles, bicycles and snowmobiles.

C&O Railroad Asks To Abandon Track

Northwestern lower Michigan stands to lose its entire rail service under abandonment proposed this week by The Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company to the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC).

In a notice published this week in several northern Michigan newspapers, the abandonment proceeding will be handled without public hearing unless the ICC hears protests by June 16.

The proposed abandonment includes some 75.92 miles of trackage between Traverse City and Petoskey.

Also included in the C & O petition are the closing of stations at Williamsburg, Barker Creek, Rapid City, Alden, Bellaire, Central Lake, Harpers, Ellsworth, Charlevoix, Bay Shore, Iamson, Petoskey and Bay View.

Rene J. Gunning, C & O attorney in Baltimore, Maryland, said the company want to shut down the line because of large economic losses.

He estimates C & O lost $159,000 in 1973, and $161,000 during the first nine months of 1974.

The attorney claims repairing the trackage to maintain federal standards would be economically impossible.

Announcement of the abandonment drew sharp criticism from the United Transportation Union, who represents some 5,800 Michigan railroad workers.

Assistant State Legislative Director Robert Pitsch of Grand Rapids said his union would fight C & O all the way.

"I think they are doing this so they can have their hand out to get a subsidy from the federal government," Pitsch said.

"They owe something to the communities involved."

Pitsch said without C & O service, northern Michigan will be without railroads.

The Penn Central, which also services the western half of lower Michigan, has filed for bankruptcy and is recommended for abandonment by the U.S. Department of Transportation in a report expected to be considered by Congress in July.

Bill Rowden, executive director for Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission, in Traverse City predicted economic disaster for the area if the C & O abandons its trackage.

He said it would particularly hit the north's fruit and dairy industries.

"If the rail goes out it would be astronomical to pay for shipment by motor freight."

The planner said area farmers and fruit grower would be unable to pay for fertilizer, now shipped by rail, if it had to be trucked.

Rowden said his commission, which represents 10 northern Michigan counties, has already written all U.S. Congressmen regarding the dangers rail abandonment would have on Northern Michigan.

"Certainly this abandonment clinches the fact that the railroads are trying to get out of the business in northwestern Michigan," Rowden continued.

"We have been working with the Attorney General's office to provide funds for the purpose of providing expert testimony if the hearings are held."

More on Refugees

Comment on my letter is on Vietnamese refugees. Those include orphans, those who sided with the Americans and any other who happened to escape the Nam after the surrender of Saigon. I'm most curious about the initial reception that many of these people have gotten, here in the United States. I am somewhat gratified to hear a statement from Mr. Meany over the air this evening. I have at hand a letter from Mr. Ruppe who describes his own ideas on aid that the government would have given the Vietnamese or gave them in the final days of Saigon government. I am especially appreciative of the fact that the strong, iron fleet of the U.S. Navy and the U.S. Merchant Marine stood fast for at least a while of the coast of Vietnam. There have been some who have criticized this. There have been some who have said "send these people back to South Vietnam." I wonder what would have happened had the situation occurred during the various waves of imigrants who came to this country. I won't mention who they are, but certainly my family isn't an original settler here. I'll speak about this to you a little later on. I will send out a copy of the letter which I received from Mr. Ruppe and you can look at it and possibly feel that this man somehow makes sense at least to the point that he can. Thank you Charlie.

–Charles Baer

Rec Director Needed

Yes, I feel that Charlevoix should have a full time recreational director. Charlevoix, because of it's location has so many facilities, it should be used by it's residents. All these facilities, including Mt. McSauba, the tennis courts, beaches, ice rinks, ball fields, golf courses, school buildings, parks, should be offered to the residents, who pay for them with their taxes, with planned activities. Unorganized use of these things lead to minimal use of the enjoyment. Planned activities for children and adults is worthwhile and benefits more people. With children, it's of the utmost importance to have planned activities. It teaches them respect for the facilities as well as enrichment of their leisure time later on in life. A recreational director can insure programs to be available to everyone interested and can co-ordinate programs through individuals or group interest. Along with the recreational director, many cities also have a staff that supervise programs to see that things are working as smoothly as possible. No one man can possibly be at all activities, so I not only think that we should have a full time director, but eventually have a staff, for as the city grows, the programs grow, and what better way to please the taxpayers but to provide entertainment and use of all the facilities for them and their children. I do not feel that a half time director would accomplish this kind of job satisfactorily, with a part time job or with part time service. The township people who use the facilities should pay a flat recreation tax for as Petoskey does or look into other city programs in other areas and use a smaller scale for Charlevoix.

–Carolyn Uhrick

Personal Grief Over Refugees

I have a personal grief against bringing the refugees from Vietnam into the United States. When our unemployment is so high and our welfare, we have so many people on welfare and taxes right now are so high we are going to have to feed these people, give them a place to live, and support them. They try to tell us that the majority of them are kids that aren't going to need support and stuff, but yhose kids are going to be growing up and I think it's way out of line for us to have to take the burden when our contry is in recession and close to depression the way it is right now.

Don't Need Full-Time Director

I personally don't believe that Charlevoix of it's particular size and what have you, and the amount of people that do live in Charlevoix year around is really for a full time recreation director. I think that maybe later in time it could be. I think that the salary that the one we had the recreation direcitor we had was sufficient. I think we ought to explore avenues along the line that there might be a retired person in this area that's very interested in helping along something like this and this would be a supplement to his income, or somebody along this line. As far as having somebody young and college kid with bright new ideas I don't think this is necessary that's about the majority. I could explore more, I would like to be let it go at that. Thank you.

The Morels Are Coming

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

BOYNE CITY--Morels, more than the first robin or crocus, indicate spring to many Northern Michigan residents.

The first rumors of a sighting of one of these distinctive mushrooms sends beady-eyed prospectors poking through early growths of leeks and last fall's leaf mulch, anticipating shopping bags overflowing with morels.

The ultimate of morel madness is celebrated in Boyne City, self-proclaimed "Morel Capital of the World," in its annual National Mushroom Festival held last weekend.

Others, not given to competition or such sociability, take to the woods throughout Michigan in solitary quests for the morel--reputed by mushroom gourmets to have the most delicate flavor.

Morel hunters who' start before warm rains and soft sunny days are likely to be disappointed.

The small black morel begins the season by the second week in May as far north as Petoskey, earlier further south, in stands of aspen, birch and balsam fir. They generally are considered the safest and easiest-to-identify mushroom.

However, morels--like all mushrooms--have dangerous, even lethal look-alikes, according to sources at the regional Poison Center for Northern Michigan at Little Traverse Hospital in Petoskey.

Micologist (mushroom expert) and avid moreler Marilyn Smith of Petoskey advises, "People should only pick mushrooms they know well. In the case of morels, only true morels are really safe."

Throughout Michigan there are individuals who eat another spring mushroom called "Beefsteak" and false morels with no ill effects.

The Poison Center warns, "There is a very narrow margin between no effect and a lethal dose of MMH" (monomethylhydrozine, the major chemical found in beefsteaks.)

Department of Natural Resources(DNR) publications urge novice hunters to "make your first several mushroom hunts with someone who knows his mushrooms, and equip yourself with a mushroom book."

Dr. Alexander H. Smith, world renowned micologist at the University of Michigan has authored "The Mushroom Hunter's Field Guide," the book recommended by most experts.

There are two distinctive identifying characteristics which all true morels have and which false morels and beefsteaks lack:

--The caps of true morels are "pitted with little hollows, as if holes had been punched part-way into them" according to the DNR publication which Boyne City Festival sponsors give to all contestants.

--The stem and the cap of true morels are one continuous piece, the publication states. In other words, the cap is attached to the stem, it does not hang out over the stem like an umbrella.

Micologists designate three safe morels: Morchella angusticeps, the earliest, small black morel; Morchella esculenta, the favorite "white" morel; and morchella crassipes, a giant morel which may grow up to a foot tall.

The beefstake is of an entirely different species, Helvella esculenta. Its cap is not pitted but wrinkled. A true morel's pits are full ovals. A beefsteak's wrinkles are not closed, but rather are just many wave lines, according to the DNR.

Other members of the Helvella species which are similar to the beefsteak also are labeled "not recommended" or "poisonous".

Marilyn Smith observes, "The problem of mushroom poisoning is individual. Someone could eat a beefsteak safely once and react another time."

Reactions to Helvella species, according to the Poison Center, can be delayed 6 to 12 hours.

Eventually, center sources report, a victim may experience "jaundice, rapid heartbeat, temperature, vertigo, convulsions and coma."

Mrs. Smith adds that some people may have reactions if they pick buggy or deteriorating morels.

Mrs. Smith adds that some people may have reactions if they pick buggy or deteriorating morels.

THOSE TASTY morels are beginning to pop up for the hundreds of mushroom hunters flocking the north to pick them. While they are fun to pick, caution should be taken in making sure you have the right ones.

Blue Cross-Blue Shield Tells Why Hospital Costs Are Up

By PEG OHLE

TRAVERSE CITY – The cost of hospital care has increased steadily over the last several years and the reasons for the increases are numerous.

Some of the reasons were cited last week in Traverse City by Bennett J. McCarthy, president of Blue Cross of Michigan, in a talk before area newspaper, radio and television representatives.

Inflation represents about 50 percent of the over-all cost increase, but the rising cost of malpractice insurance and new and complex services and facilities rendered to the patient are also factors.

A recent statement by the Charlevoix Area Hospital confirms this statement. In explaining the meaning of hospital costs, the local hospital says that hospital output is commonly measured in terms of patient days. However, the patient day measure has one critical shortcoming: it is not a unit of output, only a time frame, 24 hours in length in which a bundle of hospital services are provided. When hospital expenses are expressed in terms of a patient day, the result is average cost per diem.

The problem with the hospital unit cost measure is exemplified when comparisons are attempted over a number of years. For instance in 1967, the average cost per (adjusted) patient day in community hospitals was $53.14. In 1972, the figure was $96.77, reflecting an increase of 82.1 percent.

The hospital points out that in reality hospital costs rose considerably less than 82.1 percent. The actual rise, they say, was nearly one-half that figure. The reason is that a patient day in 1967 was not the same as a patient day in 1972.

A number of factors are involved. More and better trained hospital personnel were devoting their talents to patient care. The number of personnel serving each patient increased over 18 percent between 1967 and 1972.

Equally important is the increased expertise of these personnel. Using credentials alone as a benchmark, the average hospital employee in 1972 had more training and education than his 1967 counterpart.

But the amount and quality of personnel are not the only factors that have changed. More and better nonlabor items are also going into a patient day. Today, hospitals porform more tests with greater sophistication than they did in past years. For example, the average patient admitted received 32.7 percent more tests in 1972 than in 1967. Expensive equipment exists in hospitals today which in 1967 were only engineering sketches. The high cost of this equipment is added into hospital expenses," but nowhere would an accounting appear of the machine or its benefits.

A quotation by economist Vince Taylor is used to sum up the measurement problem: "It is clearly inappropriate to attribute the influence of personnel and supply inputs to a 'price rise.' If a family switches from eating brisket to steak, no one would attribute all of the rise in their food costs to price increases. Yet, this is the equivalent of what occurs when all increases in hospital (unit) costs are attributed to price rises."

Buying A Boat isn't Hard. Or is It?

By PEG OHLE

A good newspaper reporter must be a good interviewer. So also must a good boat salesman.

This is the belief of Rod Stebbins, sales manager of Irish Boat Shop's Charlevoix yard.

"When a person comes to us looking for a boat and doesn't have anything specific in mind we ask him a lot of questions," Stebbins says.

"First we ask the obvious question - 'power or sail boat'? Then we try to find out what he wants to use the boat for, whether it be for cruising in places like the North Channel, fishing, a floating cottage, skiing or racing locally or in a big race like the Mackinac.

"We also ask him what experience he has had in boating, and of course eventually we ask him what his budget is for a boat."

Buying a Boat

This is how Stebbins replied to this land-lubbing reporter's question, "How should a person go about buying a boat?"

Armed with information gleaned from the interview the salesman can then say, "This is what we think you should have." Stebbins doesn't expect a potential customer to buy a boat on the spot. He says that when he and his wife bought a large sailboat they went up and down the Detroit waterfront looking. Then they went home and listed all the pro's and con's of the boats they liked on a large pad of paper to help them decide. "Because we shopped a lot for our own boat we are sympathetic to buyers," Stebbins added.

He also says that people looking for a boat should talk to other boaters and get their ideas as well as talking to their "friendly boat yards."

Reading such midwestern boating magazines as "Great Lakes Sailing Scanner", "Sailing" and "Lakeland Boating" in which boats are advertised for sale is also helpful to potential buyers.

What a person pays for a boat should be a matter of what he can afford but Stebbins believes that, if he can, he should stretch his budget a little bit because he will be happier. "Shoot a little high," he says, telling about a couple who bought four boats in four years, paying a little more money each time. "This is the expensive way to do it because they lost money each time they traded in."

Good Investment

In fact, when Stebbins was shopping for a boat he started with a price in mind and wound up paying twice as much. "But it was a good investment and we're happy."

Especially in buying a large boat, the purchaser should be sure he buys carefully because it will probably be the second largest purchase he will make in his life - after his house.

As in automobiles, likes and dislikes in boats usually differ by age groups. Young people like fast, sporty sail boats for racing and power boats fast enough for water skiing. Older people look more for comfort in sail boats-good sleeping quarters, comfortable living quarters and cruisability. In power boats they usually want a type good for fishing and light enough to put on a car top to take from lake to lake.

Maintenance of boats is not what it used to be. Most boats are now made of aluminum or fiber glass. Wooden boats that required hours of scraping and painting are fading out. Now maintenance is mostly a matter of keeping up appearance and only an occasional coat of paint on the bottom. Any boat owner with tune can do this maintenance work as well as any professional, says Stebbins. "All that is needed is a scrub brush and a can of wax."

Boat Storage

Inside covered storage of larger boats can be expensive but some boat owners find they can store their boats outside during the winter months without serious deterioration. It costs about $1,000 a year for dock space, inside storage and maintenance for a large boat.

ARE YOU Thinking About Buying A Boat?

Flouride Program Set for Summer

The summer topical flouride program in Charlevoix will begin Friday, May 30, at the Public Library according to Cheri Hoffman, chairman of the Charlevoix Topical Flouride committee.

Mary Bennett, from West Bloomfield, a senior dental hygiene student at the University of Michigan, will clean the children's teeth and apply the fluoride solution.

According to Mrs. Hoffman, eighty children have enrolled in the program, which consists of four visits to the clinic. At the first visit, the teeth are cleaned and a solution of fluoride is applied directly to the surfaces of the teeth. The fluoride application only is then repeated at the three succeeding visits.

This procedure has been shown to reduce tooth decay by forty percent, compared with the sixty to sixty-five percent reduction in cavities obtained with fluoridated water. Last year 82 children participated in the program and the Michigan Department of Public Health estimates that 113 tooth surfaces were prevented from decay because of these four applications. They estimate that the minimum cost of dental care for these surfaces would have been approximately $90 for only simple and relatively inexpensive proceedures. Not only is there a monetary saving, but also a saving in pain and discomfort for the children.

According to the Michigan Department of Public Health, dentists who assisted in the development of the program and who will supervise Miss Bennett, the topical fluoride should not be considered a substitute for regular care of the teeth either at home or by the dentist. Although fluoride applications can help prevent cavities, it is still necessary for children to brush their teeth thoroughly, particularly after meals, avoid between-meal snacks, and visit their dentist regularly.

Charlevoix Council Should Consider City Recreation Very Serious Business

The firing of Recreation Director Curt Kipke by Charlevoix City Council was in our estimation a very serious mistake.

The whole situation evolving to the elimination of a full-time recreation director is a comedy of errors.

That is, of course, if the situation weren't so serious to our community.

It is not our position to judge whether or not Mr. Kipke has done a good or bad joh during his employment with the city.

It never has been made clear on what grounds the city fathers made their decision to terminate his position.

Allegedly, the council decided to make their move because the Charlevoix School Board was unable to fulfill its commitment of $5,000 to help pay for a portion of the department.

However, after further probing the question with City Administrator Robert Wexstaff, the Cnurier learned that there were other reasons. Some of these reasons were not brought out at last week's council meeting.

Wexstaff said another reason for his dismissal was because Kipke overspent his budget some $7,000, which then put the city even further back when considering a new budget.

In addition to the school board not keeping its enmmitment, Wexstaff said the city recreation director, after going a year without a pay raise, would not work for less than $11,000.

Therefore, Wexstaff concludes that since the city couldn't come up with the necessary cash to meet that demand there should have been little surprise when the city decided to let their director go.

While Kipke never denies making that statement, it does seem apparent to us that city officials could have made an effort to negotiate with their director earlier than last week after they had already plnk-slipped him.

School Superintendent James McKimmy told the Courier he was sorry to learn that the city was partially hlaming the school board for its decision to relieve Kipke.

McKimmy said that the school board had to delay payment of $5,000 to the city because they were drastically cut in state revenue.

After hearing about the loss, McKimmy said he wrote the city council on March 6 informing them of the school's diffieulties. The letter McKimmy said, was the last formal communication the schools had with the city.

Until last week, McKimmy said that at no time had the schools been notified the city recreatinn program would be dropped because of their inability to particlpate.

McKimmy said the recreation program is one that school thought had a great deal of community interest. In faet, he said it looked like the schools might be able to continue with their commitment.

Residents asked last week at city council for one more year under the present program, so they could have enough time to organize and secure funds for a recreation program.

Several residents had expressed the possibility of organizing a community school program that might be even eligible for federal funding. However, the residents said they needed time.

Instead of trying to make it one more year under a full-time recreation program the council has decided to charge ahead and secure a part-time recreation director.

It seems ironie to us that only a few weeks before the summer season starts, the city has decided to get rid of their present employee who is familiar with recreation in our city to break in a new person.

We agree with city officials when they say there is an inequity to city taxpayers paying for recreation that is also enjoyed by neighboring townships as well.

We think there should be some method established for these township residents to pay their fair share for use of the city facilities.

However, we don't think dismissal of the present director is a snlution to that problem.

We agree with city officials who say that Charlevoix does depend on the resort and tourist industry for a large portion of its economy. Therefore we must have recreation program to accommodate these people.

But, we can't agree that the establishment of a part-time program will enhance that service.

Many local residents have seen the benefit of a full-time program during the last two years.

In the winter, especially, we have seen new programs for local residents.

We seriously question whether many of these programs will be able to continue under part-time leadership.

While it is too late to reverse any action taken last week, we encourage our city fathers to explore the development of community school recreation programs, as well as alternative methods for finaneing local recreation.

We feel recreatinn is important to Charlevoix and hate to see it treated as a politeal football.

Death Is Not The End

Letters to the editor

A Tribute to Harold Kohn

This is to commend to you your devoted servant, Harold Kohn, who must be well known to you by now as he has been an ardent believer and faithful follower of yours for years. But I, as a comparative newcomer to this portion of your planet known as Charlevoix, have only recently made his acquaintance. This is my loss for which I hope to make up in part by reading and re-reading whatever I can of his writings and absorbing the tranquility of his art that I may draw closer to the great heart and soul of the man.

Even in this short time I have sensed that he had great love and respect for his fellowmen as well as for all of your creatures which he immortalized with paint and pen. In the Congregational Church offiee there is a painting of his called "Trail's End", which I enjoy looking at while at the same time taking exception to the title because between and beyond the trees I glimpse an opening vista, and further still in my imagination I see the trail beckoning through an endless succession of heights and valleys, forests and clearings. The deer in the foreground look startled as though interrupted in their gentle pursuit of life by something not quite understood. Neither do I understand or accept this juncture in Harold's life as his Trail's End, for beyond I glimpse a whole new vista of pain-free tomorrows tinged with the rosy glow of triumphs not possible within the confines of the frail human frame. He, too, was interrupted in his gentle pursuit of life, but not startled because he was prepared, perhops even anticipating what lies just beyond our ken. For Harold, eternal life began before he was born and continues beyond this earthly span with but a change of pace and scene.

Another sketch of this which I came across recently expresses su well his understanding and aeceptanee of death. It is a covered bridge through the entrance of which one can glimpse the glorious radiance of the dawning of a new day. It is entitled simply: "Death Is Not The End".

Harold once expressed in my hearing the desire to continue walking side by side with "this lovely woman who is my wife" and in the company of daughter, grandchildren, mother and friends, but he can make it on his own because he will never be wholly alone as long as he is surrounded by this host of witnesses, debtors all, who will gladly testify to the legacy of their rich inheritance from their acquaintance with him and who join me in commending him wholeheartedly into your keeping in whose hands he has always been.

It is for us the living, his family and friends, that I now ask your blessing that we may accept his absence, celebrate his life, and so experience a 'good-mourning'.

An admiring disciple,
Jean Giffin (Mrs. R.H.)

Dear Sir:

Refer your paper of May 7 concerning "Residents Protest Ree Director Firing".

I was present at that meeting, and I did not go there in protest, but to perhaps gain some knowledge.

There was no poll or vote taken to indicate whether the people present were fur or against Mr. Kipke dismissal, the only person to indicate that they were for or against the dismissal are the 6 or 7 people that got up to speak.

I believe your reporting of this articles puts the council in an unfair light.

I think the most important knowledge I received that night, is not to believe everything you read in the Courier.

Sincerely,
Frank O. Schuck

Clockwise

by Bob Clock

When the Clocks moved to Charlevoix from southern Michigan ten years ago, we didn't relish the idea of spending Christmas so far from family and friends. As new comers, we knew few people in town and a knock on the door was as uncommon then as it is common now.

That is why we were startled on Christmas Eve, 1965, to hear footsteps on the porch and a rap on the front door. I jumped up from the dining room table to see who our unexpected caller might be. It was a young fellow who introduced himself as Larry Minch, Rev. Harold Kohn's son-in-law. He had a brightly wrapped pakeage in his hand.

"Rev. Kohn asked me to give yuu this on your first Christmas in Charlevoix," he said sunply. "Merry Christmas."

He turned and was gone almost before I had had a chance to thank him.

Inside, Judy and I opened the package to discover the first of many books by Harold E. Kohn that we would eventually own. But this one is special.

Inside the front cover is a pen-and-ink drawing of two deer browsing in a winter landscape with a sign reading "May all the Blessings of Christmastime be Yours."

Beneath the bleach and white picture in gold, red and yellow is the inscription: "The Bob Clock Family for your first Christmas in Charlevoix. With the Best Wishes of Harold E. Kohn."

"Harold E. Kohn?" We had heard about the former pastor of the First Congregational Church who lived near Charlevoix, but we had never met him. But somehow he knew about us, and he knew we needed a friend that Christmas of all Christmases.

That book, "Reflections", was the first in a long series of Harold E. Kohn books we have acquired over the years - but it holds a special place because it was our introduction to the Kohn family.

When spring came, Judy, Katie and I called on Harold and Marian Kohn at Hidden Brook and fell under the spell of the Kohns' wilderness retreat immediately. Since then we have spent many enjoyable hours with the Kohns and have never failed to come away wiser, more tolerant and more serene because that is the atmosphere of Hidden Brook.

What made Harold Kohn unique was not only the quality of his work — be it writing, watercolors, natural science, counseling, ministering – but the fact that it was accomplished under physical conditions which I am afraid would cause most of us to give up in dispair.

Rev. Kohn suffered for more than 20 years with a persistent infestation of slow growing cancers behind the forehead which literally engulfed him in great seas of pain 24 hours a day. Periodic surgery at University of Michigan Hospital helped. So did massive doses of sedatives.

Yet despite his affiieation and the sedation needed to make life bearable, Dr. Kohn carved a nlche for himself in many different fields of artistic and scientific endeavor.

It is difficult to realize that all of Rev. Kohn's 14 books, hundreds of newspaper columns and magazine articles, literally thousands of scratchboard etchings and water colors and thousands of hours of personal and marriage counseling were accomplished AFTER the onset of his disease more than 20 years ago.

In the early 1970's, Charlevoixans were treated to another facet of the Kohn personality. When it became apparent that a right-wing conservative – a member of the John Birch Society - might be elected to the Michigan House of Representatives from his district, Rev. Kohn organized a massive grass-roots political movement in an effort to swing the election to more moderate candidate.

Although the campaign failed because the Republican party was fragmented almost beyond repair, Rev. Kohn's educational campaign brought home the evils of extremism to such a degree that I doubt the radical right – or the radical left – will ever again pose much of menace in northern Michigan.

When Harold Kohn died Friday, the victim of the disease he had lived with so long, his friends could not weep. He had lived with pain too long. His monument was completed.

Ruppe Replies on Viet Nam

Mr. Charles Baer, Jr.
Villa Nuava
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Mr. Baer:

Thank you for your recent communication concerning Southeast Asia.

As you know, both the House of Representatives and the Senate have authorized limited humanitarian and evacuation aid for South Vietnam. However, because of the American evacuation from Saigon and the fall of the South Vietnamese goverument this week, action on the House-Senate Conference agreement on evacuation and humanitarian aid has been postponed indefinitely.

I did vote for the House-passed bill as I felt that the Americans in South Vietnam were in an extremely vulnerable position. Also, I believed that the adult South Vietnamese citizens who had actively committed themselves to the American-supported effort and the American-fathered orphans who might not be accepted by a Communist-dominated Vietnamese society should have the opportunity to flee the country for safety. Finally, at that time, I did not want to signal to a South Vietnamese government struggling for survival that we would in no way consider even a limited amount of humanitarian aid for that country.

When this humanitarian aid measure was considered by the House, I did strongly oppose an amendment which would have provided military aid as well. I felt that the President had already requested enough military aid for South Vietnam earlier in the fiscal year that, furthermore, additional military funding would be of no assistance to government troops which had clearly lost their capacity to fight on.

Thank you again for your communication.

With best wishes.

Sincerely,
Philip E. Ruppe
Member of Congress

This Honky isn't Proud

My daughter was walking alone on the campus of Western Michigan University 3 black girls pushed her off the sidewalk "Get your white honky ass out of the way," one of the girls said while the other two laughed.

What does the great white liberal father tell his daughter? Lena Horne would never act that way? Henry Aaron hit more home runs than Babe Ruth? George Washington Carver squeezed miracles out of a peanut?

I told her about the white dude who sat across my desk the other day. He came to talk about bowling but there was also the usual small talk about the weather and such things. He casually remarked that he had moved out of Flint "to get away from the niggers."

No matter how often I hear them, remarks like that pain my stomach and make my nerve ends twitch. It isn't that they surprise me, I know the world is full of bigots. But I am angered that these bigots take it for granted I won't be offended by their racial slurs.

It happens often, usually at polite parties where rich people meet to tell each other how poor they are. Someone says it's ruining and someone else blames it on bused Negroes in Detroit or mouthy Jews in Miami.

Years ago I would argue back, usually gaining attention by revealing that my mother was Jewish and my father was black and my skin had turned white from the crawling caused by the smirking racists I met at church suppers. I don't do that anymore. My wife pointed out I wasn't winning any arguments or changing any minds, but I certainly was ruining a lot of parties.

So now I just calmly walk away, or bury my nose in ice cubes, when the bigots start spewing their crud. But I'm boiling inside. Granted, there is room in this world, and in that family room, for more than one opinion. But where does the white bigot get off assuming only black people are stupid when some idiot condemns the entire black race because one Negru stole his aunt's purse"

I think racism is the most evil and dangerous thing in the world today. But I won't buy you a beer just so I can tell you your kids should be bused to Afrlca. Peace. I won't spit in the bigot's beer, so why can't he keep his dirty thumb out of mine? Peace. Your hostess may have just had the carpet cleaned.

Once in awhile, when prompted, I'll lay it all out in this column. This way I can make you mad without ruining your birthday. And if you want to answer, you can mail me a bomb which I'll be careful to open where it won't ruin anyone else's good time. (However, I am not soliciting mail. When I want to do that, I attack a really serious problem, such as Mickey Mouse.)

Obviously, this week's sermon was prompted by the 3 black girls who shoved my daughter around. All they did was prove that bullies come in all colors. They didn't prove that all blacks are bullies.

I am angered by the ignorance of those 3 girls. But I can understand it. They are a product of their environment. Their lives have been warped by generations of racism.

Millions of lives, all colors, have been warped. Bigotry still thrives. I calmly walk away.

And I am not proud of my white honky ass.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Vince Olach

Summer is almost here and along with the warmer days come activities sponsored by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Today, the Courier asks Chamber Director Vince Olach what residents can expect this summer.

OLACH: We're not doing too badly this year. Our investors' dues are a little bit slower than last year, which is to be expected with the economle situation as it is. They've all said that they would be back with us again and to let them get a little bit cought up from last year. So it looks like this year, as far as money goes, we'll probably break even or maybe even come out a little bit ahead at the end of the year. Also this year we reolly expect a very good summer. Housing has been way over last year, some 20 to 30 percent. Talking with people who rent during summer months only, such as cottages, we find they're pretty well filled-up this early in the year. They have a couple weeks in August, perhaps, or a couple weeks in September, but by the large just about everybody is filled in June and July and August with just a few odd blank weeks. This indicates that we should have a good summer as far as tourists and visitors are concerned this summer. We have been receiving many inquiries from Canada. We run a little bit of advertising around the Ontario area regarding Charlevoix and we've had many inquries as to what we have available, what is to be done and where can they stay, so we're sure we're going to have a real banner year this year as far as visitors and tourism is concerned to help out out business people and our retail establishments.

COURIER: Before the summer gets here, what activities does the Chamber have planned that maybe some of the local residents will be interested in?

OLACH: Well, you already know about our ouction, that we had last Saturday, also the Spring Dinner Dance on May 31st. The Michigan Amateur Golf tournament will again be here on June 24th through the 28th. On June 28th, which is also the last day of the finals of the golf tournament, we're going to have our raft race and the flea market in East Park. The raft race is the same as we had last year.

COURIER: The raft race was pretty successful, wasn't it?

OLACH: Yes, it was, we came close to breaking even on it. This year with the amount of interest we've already had on it, it looks like probably we'll net the Chamber a few odd dollars. It's not an awful lot but at least we'll break even, and it's an awful lot of fun and an awful lot of people from downstate are interested in it and want to come either to see it or enter a raft in it. That's about it until our summer season gets under way.

COURIER: What do you have planned for the summer?

OLACH: This year we're going to try and start the old style Fourth of July pienics. We're going to have a picnic on the Fourth of July on Ferry Ave. beach. There'll be a fee for the picnic itself but in addition to that we're going to have the good old things like we used to have, the three-legged race, the sack race, the egg throwing contest, the watermelon seed splitting cuntest, and so forth. Then, we're going to have a Hobby Craft show on July 12th and then on the 19th the Flea Market. Of course, this year the Venetian Festival will be un the 25th, 26th, 27th uf July so we pretty well have the month of July booked up, for the weekends, to keep everybody busy. In August, the 1st and 2nd will he Sidewalk Sale Days again and then our Waterfront Art Fair will be un August 9th. We have a number uf entries again su that it should be a very, very good art show. Then, on August 23rd we're going tu have another Hobby Craft Show. That covers August. On September 6th we're guing to do a lake side bicycle tour as we have always had, and another Flea Market on the same date. Our fall danee will be on the 27th of September, and this year we are going to have two color cruises, one on October 4th which is on a Saturday, and if it's bad weather, we can switch it to Sunday, and the next one will be on October 12th. Then, of course, we'll start getting ready for the Mardi Gras so that just about covers the full year.

COURIER: If someone want to help yuu with the program du they just get in touch with you at the office or what?

OLACH: They can call me at the office ur can come in personally.

A women behind me in the supermarket checkuut line last week touched my sleeve and said, "Pardon me, dearie, would you mind sucking in your stomach, you're covering part of the headline."

I inhaled so she could read "National Inquisition...the tabloid that dared tell the truth."

"I knew it," she mumbled. "KARL MALDEN LOSES AMERICAN EXPRESS CARD IN TOLEDO."

"I beg your pardon," I said.

"Turn that page, dearie," she said, "I want to read about ANN MARGARET WEARS SUPP-HOSE."

"Surely you don't believe all that gossip," I said.

"Gossip! What reason would a magazine have to lie about Richard Burton pressing his trousers crooked to hide his bowlegged walk?"

"Well, I..."

"And I suppose you don't believe that your household toaster can cause learning disabilities among children."

"Oh c'mon...how could a toaster..."

"Why, I was the first one on my block to know that the United States is phasing out commodes. They buried that story right next to an article about, "IS YOUR SON MAKING NERVE GAS AT CAMP?"

"That's absurd," I laughed. "You won't think it's absurd when you put a dime in a slot and the door opens to a missile storage room. I don't know why the press keeps all these things from us." She leaned against me and whispered, "Did you know that a women in Guatamala gave birth to sextuplets for a publicity stunt? Her husband owned a furniture store."

"A PUBLICITY STUNT!"

"I knew you'd be shocked," she sniiled. "I come here for all my news. Why a week without news of the Kennedys is like a day without Anita Bryant."

"I personally feel they should leave those poor people alone."

"I should feel sorry for them," she shrugged, "I can't even get recognized by a butcher when I'm holding a low number."

While the girl was ringing up my order, a headline caught my eye. It said, "A SECURITY GUARD AT LA GUARDIA WHO X-RAYED JACKIE'S PURSE TELLS ALL."

I slipped a copy off the newsstand and as soon as I was in the car began to read. The security guard x-rayed Jackie Schwartz's purse...a dental assistant from Pennsylvania.

I knew I'd be punished.

Platinum has Interesting-- and Lengthy History!

The earliest known use of platinum dates to the 12th century B.C. in Egypt. Known as the "Thebes Casket" for the place it was found, it's probable that the early craftsmen who made it thought they were dealing with a particularly intracable piece of silver.

Long before Columbus, Inca Indians used platinum alloyed with gold, silver and copper to make small articles of personal adornment.

The most famous of these are the platinum-surfaced gold pendant and platinum nose rings found in Equador. At least 1,000 years old, these are preserved in the Museum of the American Indian in New York City. Cont Next Week

Brownwood Gallery Planned

New Art Group Organized

It may be easier to locate artists this summer.

Some 13 artists have banded together to form a new organization called "Artist' Landing."

Hopefully, the move will make it easier for residents in the area to see artistic endeavors a little more easily than in the past.

At the end of this month, the groups will be opening a gallery at Brownwood Acres in Central Lake to display their work and meet with the public.

Potter Sue Bolt, who has a studio on Marion Center Road, says several artists decided last fall to form a local art group after having visited several art fair across the state.

As an initial project, they held two sales just before Christmas.

"They were really successful," she continued.

"We then thought maybe this summer we could work as a unit and do little jobs."

But after further thought, Ms. Bolt says they decided to form a co-operative, so local artists could buy supplies together, as well as establish a gallery outlet.

"We were looking for a place in Charlevoix, but we could find a place," she said.

Eventually, she said they came across Brownwood Acres who offered the use of a barn on the property for a small percentage from the sales of artwork.

"Our plans for the summer is to have each person in the co-op have a one-man showing for a week," she said.

In addition, the artist said there would be a member of the co-op either demonstrating his work or being on hand to meet the public and answer any questions a visitor might have.

Laurie Lesser, a potter and graphic designer from Charlevoix, says the artist co-op will involves more than operating a gallery.

"Hopefully, we will eventually be able to teach classes," she said.

She said the co-op will enable professional artist to exchange experiences and knowledge, especially their strengths to other artists.

One project that begins this summer will be the student intern program.

Each student selected will be able to participate in the co-op with full-membership privileges. Interning this summer will be Dan Tolles.

Marcie Brown, a Charlevoix Handweaver, adds that the group will stage an Arts Festival over Labor Day weekend.

The artist said they hope to include artists involved with music to theater in the special weekend event.

She said participants will be invited much like the Charlevoix Arts Fair held in the summer here.

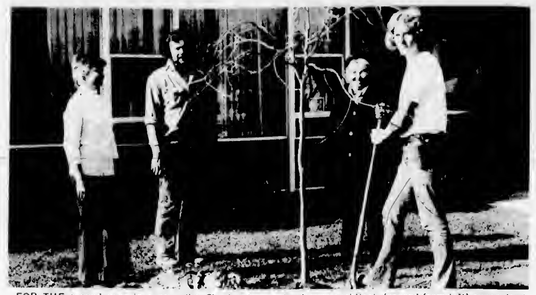
In fact, according to Sue Bolt, the trend developed as a result of artists needing to protect themselves for art hussiers.

She said too often a retailer would take art work on consignment and almost forget to pay the artist for work once sold.



FOR THE second year in a row, the Charlevoix Garden Club has presented a pin oak tree to Charlevoix High School for the school's beautification program. John Campbell, local landscape architect, (second from left) supervised the Arbor Day planting. Also present were Mrs. Darrell Dinwiddie and Mrs. Ralph Hamilton of the Charlevoix Garden Club. (left to right).

Doubles is a much more complicated game than it appears. The key to playing winning doubles is learning how to play the angles.

In singles, a player can hit an outright winner with a great deal of frequency. This is not true in doubles. Since each side has two players, it is easier to cover the court and, naturally, it becomes much harder to put the ball past your opponents.

Thus, you have to learn to manipulate your opponents by the use of angle shots. If often takes four or five shots before you can get your opponents out of positio enough to hit a winner.

Before explaining how to effectively use the angle shot, one point has to be stressed. Unless you play consistently, making very few mistakes, a discussion of angle shots is totally useless. Learn to play consistently.

Angles can be effective from either the baseline or the net. The whole purpose of hitting angle shots is to force your opponents into errors or to get them so badly out of position that it is easy to put the ball away for a winner.

For example, assume your opponent hits a hard serve and changes the net. Instead of trying to blast the ball by him, the more effective shot is chipping an angle shot down the alley and at your opponent's feet. This will immediately put him on the defensive.

Further, if your angle shot into the alley goes wide it pulls him off the court. Then you have your opponents at your mercy. If the partner tries to cover for the man pulled off the court, you then have the other alley wide open for a put-a-way. If the partner stays in his spot, then you have a whole half of the court open to you.

With the use of a couple of angle shots, you can have your opponents going in circles.

When you and your partner are at the net, every imaginable angle is at your disposal. Since a net shot, or volley, is basically a "punching down" shot, it is easy to hit drop angles, wide angles or deep angles. The whole purpose of these shots is to keep your opponents off balance so that they can never take the offensive.

If your opponents are always scrambling just to make recoverys, you can be sure that you will win the set. Naturally angle shots should not be hit all the time. They should be mixed in with deep drives the soft lobs. Hitting angles consistantly would enable your opponents to anticipate and, subsequently, to regain their rhythm.

Doubles is a game of angles. Used effectively, it becomes extremely difficult for a doubles team to be beaten.

Tennis Team Wins 3 More

The Charlevoix High School Tennis Team chalked up three more victories last week to run their record to 9-1. In a rain shortened match, the Rayders defeated Gaylord 2-0. The team then finished out the week by defeating East Jordan 4-1 and Alpena 5-2.

The Gaylord match really should never have been started. A steady drizzle started just as the players were getting on the courts and turned into a downpour a half an hour later. That half an hour was all Erik Lundteigen and Brian needed to polished off their opponents. Lundteigen won 6-1, 6-0 while Osterberg was coasting with a 6-1, 6-1 victory.

Against the East Jordan squad, Osterberg got revenge for an earlier loss to Bill Grauel and beat him badly, 6-1, 6-1. Meanwhile, Lundteigen overpowered Denny Peterson 6-2, 6-3. In the double competition, East Jordan's Stoke Burrows and Ted Malpass defeated John Greene and Mark Malpeli 7-5, 6-4.

But Charlevoix's Ted Lass and Mark Hosmer came through with a 6-3, 7-6 win over Bill Winter and Jerry Carpenter. Dan Engstrom and Eric Slone put the icing on the cake with a 6-2, 6-3 victory over John Strhl and Danny Spruce.

The Alpena match was highlighted by some great personal efforts. Dan Engstrom and Eric Slone had lost to Alpena's Tom Reynolds and Jerry Peterson earlier in the year but rebounded this time with a 6-2, 6-2 win. Lisa Wiemer had also lost to her opponent, Louise Couture, in the first Alpena match. Wiemer won the rematch 6-4, 6-2.

John Greene and Mark Malpell overcame a disastrous second set to post a thrilling 6-0, 5-7, 6-3 win.

MAYORAL PROCLAMATION

It is especially fitting on the occasion of the dual observances this year of Law Day USA on May 1, and our nation's Bicentennial celebrations in 1975 and 1976, that every citizen reflect on the role of the rule of law in safeguarding individual rights.

This year will mark the 18th annual nationwide observance of Law Day. The theme selected in recognition of this important event is:

- America's Goal – Justice Through Law -

Equal justice under law has been an American goal ever since Alexander Hamilton wrote 192 years ago that an independent judicial system is "the best expedient which can be devised to secure a steady, upright and impartial administration of the law."

We must all support and participate in the operations of government to insure the achievement of this goal for every American in all areas of social concern.

NOW THEREFORE, I Edward P. Hansen, Mayor of Charlevoix, Michigan, do hereby proclaim Thursday, May 1, 1975 as LAW DAY USA in Charlevoix, and urge all the citizens of this community to recognize this special day and to join in its observance through court visitations and by attending bar association-sponsored Law Day Programs.

Ski Group Trying to Organize

A group in Gaylord thinks it is time to start thinking about next year's skiing season.

They are proposing the organization of a ski touring council for northern Michigan to help promote the fast-growing sport in a proper fashion. "With the increase in interest in all types of ski touring events and cross country skiing races, it is important that a calendar be developed to avoid scheduling conflicts where possible," they say.

The proposed council would also serve as a lobbying voice for increased trail development for non-motorized sports and promote scholastic competition in cross country ski racing, among other activities.

Everyone interested in ski touring is urged to attend the organizational meeting which will be held Sunday, May 18, at 3:30 in the second floor meeting room of the Sugar Bowl Restaurant, Main Street, Gaylord. Further information about the proposed council may be had by contacting Jim Welch at (517) 732-3132.

Girl Scouts Enlarge Aquatics Week

Due to the tremendous interest in the Aquatics week at Camp Sakakawea, Session 6, August 10th to the 15th, has now been set up fur aquatics also.

This is for swimmers and non-swimmers alike.

It will be a program with emphasis on water skills, drown proofing and all levels of boating. If you would like your daughter to become more competent and at home on and around the water, let her come to "Saki" - August 10th to the 15th.

Come live out-of-doors for awhile at Camp Sakakawea.

Notice to Telephone Customers of Proposed Rate Increases

For Michigan Bell Customers:

Michigan Bell Telephone Company has filed with the Michigan Public Service Commission an application to increase its rates and charges. Along with that application the Company also filed its direct evidence upon which the application was based. The application states, among other things, that the revenue produced by existing rates is unreasonably and unjustly low, and that to attain the level of earnings previously approved by the Commission, the Company requests rate increases and changes in service offerings which would produce additional annual revenue from its intrastate operations in the amount of $88,130,000, based on 1974 operating results.

Notice of Hearings

The Michigan Public Service Commission will hold public hearings on the application of Michigan Bell Telephone Company for a rate increase. The hearings are to determine whether, and to what extent, the existing rates, charges, and service offerings should be altered because they provide either an inadequate or excessive level of earnings to the Company.

The changes proposed by the Company are subject to approval by the Commission after public hearings. The Commission may approve different service offerings or rates which may be higher or lower than those proposed.

1. A pre-hearing conference will be held on June 3, 1975 at 9:30 a.m. in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa, Lansing, Michigan 48913. The purpose of this hearing will be limited to identifying intervenors and their interests, to establish a schedule of further hearings beyond those established by this notice, to agree upon procedures, to discuss the issues involved in the company's application, and similar matters.

2. The first hearing will be held on June 23, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in Room 514, Veterans Memorial Building, 151 W. Jefferson Avenue, Detroit, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

A further hearing will be held on June 24, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in 306 "J" Building, Oakland Community College, Orchard Ridge Campus, 27055 Orchard Lake Road (at I-696), Farmington Hills, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

Another hearing will be held on June 25, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the Auditorium, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Street, Lansing, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

Another hearing will be held on June 30, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the City Commission Chambers, 5th Floor, City Hall, 300 Monroe N. W., Grand Rapids, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

An additional hearing will be held on July 2, 1975, commencing at 9:30 a.m. in the Michigan Room, Don Bottum University Center, Northern Michigan University, Marquette, Michigan. An evening session will be held at the same location, commencing at 7:30 p.m. the same date.

3. Hearings will continue on July 21, 1975 in the offices of the Commission, Law Building, 525 West Ottawa Lansing, Michigan 48913 for the purpose of introducing the previously filed evidence and any corrections thereto into the record, and cross examination of the Company's witnesses. Such hearings will continue from day to day thereafter or on such adjourned dates as the Hearings Examiner may set.

Persons intending to petition for leave to intervene in this case shall file an original and 11 copies of a petition to intervene with the Commission on or before May 29, 1975 in accordance with Commission Rules of Practice and Procedure.

Persons filing such a petition to intervene may request from the Company a copy of its direct case. Persons filing petitions to intervene subsequent thereto will be required to take the case and schedule as they find it at the time of such intervention.

Subparagraph (2) of Rule 11 of the Rules of Practice and Procedure Before the Commission (R 460.21) provides as follows:

(2) A petition to intervene shall set out clearly and concisely the facts supporting the petitioner's right or interest, the grounds of the proposed intervention, and the position of the petitioner in the proceeding, so as fully and completely to advise the parties and the Commission of the specific issues of fact or law to be raised or controverted. (Emphasis added)

Michigan Bell Telephone Company filed copies of its direct testimony and exhibits showing the proposed new rates with the Michigan Public Service Commission on April 24, 1975. Interested persons may examine that material during business hours in the offices of the Commission, Fifth floor, Law Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913 or at any business office of Michigan Bell Telephone Company.

Effect on Customers

The changes in rates, if approved as proposed, will affect residence and business customers as follows:

1. Proposed increases on basic 1 and 2 party residence flat rate services range from $.25 to $.80 per month, except for residence 1-party Metro service, which would increase by $1.45 per month. The basic charge for Wide Area Local Service would not be increased. The basic charge on Suburban and Rural service would increase in the range of 10 cents to 35 cents per month. The local message charge for Wide Area Local Service would increase from 8 cents to 6.5 cents each. The Metro service charge for usage would remain at 4 cents per minute, but would apply to calls in excess of 20 hours instead of 25 hours.

2. The basic monthly charge for 1- and 2-party residence Budget Services would not be changed. The calling allowance on Budget Service would be reduced from $2.25 to $2.00 per month, and the charge for each local call would be increased from 4.5 cents to 5 cents.

3. Proposed increases in basic 1-party business flat rate services range from $1.15 to $1.75 per month, and increases on business flat rate P.B.X. trunks range from $1.70 to $2.60 per month. Proposed increases on rural and suburban business services range from $.75 to $.85 per month.

4. The basic monthly charge on business measured rate services would not be increased. The local message charge on those services would increase from 6 cents to 7 cents each. The basic monthly charge for business 1-party Metro service and business Metro P.B.X. trunks would not be increased. The local message charge for business Metro customers would increase from the present 8 cents to 9 cents each. For semi-public coin services, the monthly charge would increase by $.80.

5. Charges for all keyless instruments furnished with business services, including the first one on the line, would be increased by 20 cents per month.

6. The basic service charge for Centrex systems and the station charge for business keyhead instruments would increase from $11.75 to $20.00. The original provision of service charge for residence and business would not be changed. The maintenance of service charge would increase from $19.70 to $30.00.

8. Key and P.B.X. Equipment installation, move and change charge would increase 50%, with no increase in monthly charges for any items of key equipment. The monthly charge for P.B.X. services would be increased in a range of 4% to 14%.

10. Monthly charges for residence extensions would be increased by 25 cents.

11. Progressive increases for toll calls within Michigan would be increased up to 6 cents per minute for operator-handled calls, with the larger increases applying to those calls covering longer distances with the exception of combining the rate mile charge of over 200 miles with the 101-200 miles. The existing 20% and 40% discounts for customer dialed calls would continue to apply. Coin telephone toll calls up to 20 mites would increase to 20 cents untimed.

12. The monthly charge for Budget Toll Dialing Service would decrease from $3.00 to $2.50. The 60% call discount would continue with the addition of Friday evening after 5 p.m. and all day Saturday. Also proposed increases for toll calls within Michigan would apply proportionately to Budget Toll Dialing Service.

13. Monthly rates for WATS, INWATS and TWO-WAY WATS would be increased approximately 16%.

14. For General Mobile Telephone Service, the terminal usage charge for mobile calls would be increased by about 17%. The basic service charge would not be increased. The local message charge would receive the same increases as proposed for regular business measured rate telephone service.

15. Type I and Type II intercommunicating systems would have an approximate 50% increase in installation, move and change charges. Type I would have no increase in monthly charges whereas Type II would increase in a range of $.50 to $4.00. Monthly charges for certain other optional features associated with intercommunicating systems would not be increased.

16. Private Line services would be restructured in order to better reflect current costs and simplify charges and rates. Increases would average about 37%, although increases for individual services may be more or less than the average. Flat rate charges between Detroit zone rate areas would be replaced by mileage charges. A new charge for channel termination would be established. Nonrecurring charges and charges for local channels would be substantially increased. Telpak A and B would be eliminated, with the new private line charges applying to these services. Rates for Telpak C would be increased by 30%. Charges for Concentration Identifiers would be increased about 50% and an installation charge of $250 would be established.

17. Exchange regrouping would be changed to allow regrouping an exchange to a higher or lower rate group after 12 consecutive months instead of the existing 24 consecutive months.

18. Certain exchanges would have an enlarged base rate area which in some instances would result in rate reductions for subscribers paying rural zone charges.

19. Charges for all other telephone services and equipment not specifically shown above would be increased by 6%, except that no increases are proposed for the following services and equipment: 3B Speakerphones, services designed for use by handicapped persons; Connecting Arrangements for Direct Electrical Connections; Rural Zone Charges; Princess® sets; Bellboy® service; and certain new services and equipment which have been introduced since June 30, 1974.

All installation and nonrecurring charges not specifically shown above would increase about 7%, except that no increases are proposed for Design Line, Com Key and OIO-AIOD.

More information about the above changes will be given to all Michigan Bell Telephone Company customers by mail. If after receiving this mailed information, you have any questions regarding it, please call or visit your local Michigan Bell business office.

Accordingly, any changes in Michigan Bell's intrastate rates for such service offerings approved by the Commission, including those proposed in items 11, 12, 13, 14 and 16, may also apply to customers of telephone companies other than Michigan Bell for such services within Michigan.

REGULATION AND TRUCKING

Some people feel the regulated transportation system of the United States should not be regulated. They argue, the industry which approves of regulation, must be losing their pockets because of it. And for these reasons, they argue the Interstate Commerce Commission should be abolished.

We have regulation for one prime reason...to insure transportation service and standardized rates for communities located away from mains shipping centers such as Detroit. Here, there is no cutthroat competition or biased rates. A shipper in Alpena can send his freight for the same rate as a shipper of similar freight in Detroit.

Shippers and merchants in places like Muskegon, Jackson, Petoskey and Midland can count on regular service and standard rates that do not change daily...or hourly because of ICC regulation.

The way we see it, without regulation, Michigan communities would have little to depend upon, except extremely poor service and a very unfair rate system.

A regulated transportation system is not the best of all possible worlds. But it is far better than no transportation system at all. Or worse, a government-run system.

Famous People in History

JOHN JACOB ASTOR

John Jacob Astor was a fur trader and financier, born in Germany in 1763. He came to America in 1784 and became a fur trader. He founded the American Fur Company in 1808 and the Pacific Fur Company in 1810. He established the trading post of Astoria at the mouth of the Columbia River but lost it to the British. Astor loaned large sums of money to the United States government and invested his profits in New York real estate. Before selling his fur trading interests, he had monopolized the Mississippi Valley and upper Missouri fur trade. He devoted his later life, until his death in 1848, to administering his fortune.

COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD-

SWAZILAND
Swaziland is a very small country in southeastern Africa, almost totally surrounded by South Africa. Swaziland is a little larger than the state of Hawaii. It is part of the British Commonwealth. The capital and largest city of Swaziland is Mbabane. Swaziland is rich in mineral resources and has one of the largest asbestos mines in the world. English is the official language but Swazi is spoken by most people.

MAURITIUS
Mauritius is a very small island in the Indian Ocean, 550 miles east of Madagascar. It has a land area of less than 800 square miles. The largest city and capital is Port Louis. Mauritius has a one-crop economy, cotton, but tourism is becoming a major industry. Although the island has less than 1 million people, the population density is very high. English is the official language but French, Chinese and Indian are common.

Northern Railroad Opposition Mounting; But Feared Useless

Opposition continues to mount over the Cheaspeake & Ohio's (Chessie System) proposed rail abandonment, but many Northern Michigan rail users fear their fight is useless.

Protests from both northern rail users and government officials flared up this week after C&O announced plans to abandon some 75.92 miles of track and 14 stations between Traverse City and Petoskey.

C&O officials claim they can no longer operate or maintain the line profitably and have already lost over $200,000 during the last two years.

But, many rail users along that line say closing the track will cripple Northern Michigan's economy and send costs soaring upwards if they have to rely on motor freight.

Two of Michigan's major cement producers—Penn-Dixie of Petoskey and Medusa of Charlevoix—claim it will hamper their businesses.

"When we get our last boat in December, we will have to go all winter without any cement," says Harry Elson, Penn-Dixie's plant distribution superintendent in Detroit.

"The only other way you can get cement down here in the winter (when the lakes are frozen) is by truck and it would take an awful big fleet of trucks."

Bulk Transport

Between December and April, Elson estimates they use some 20 carloads a month to transport bulk cement from Petoskey to Detroit for use in highway and building construction.

Art Kaiser, Medusa plant manager in Charlevoix, says his plant quit shipping cement by rail in 1971 and ended up bulk storing it over the winter because of poor service.

"It would affect us in that it would increase the cost of our supplies we ship by rail," he continued.

He added that many of their supplies are too large for motor freight.

Utility suppliers, such as Northern Michigan Rural Electric Cooperative in Boyne City who wholesale power to three Northern Michigan REA power companies—say they would be at a loss if C & O abandons its track.

"It is extremely disappointing that we are being abandoned," says Clyde Johnson, Northern Michigan's general manager. But like others, Johnson said he doubts his company protests will do any good.

"The only practical way which we have to move heavy pieces of equipment such as large transformers is via rail cars because of the weight restrictions on roads."

He adds that it is also impractical to ship large utility poles by truck.

Bad Service

As a result of already bad rail services, Johnson said his company has been forced to stockpile large amounts of coal during the winter and pay high inventory taxes which have had to be passed on to their customers.

A Consumers Power Company spokesman in Jackson said they were not prepared to comment at this time, but said they have a C&O track siding into Big Rock Nuclear Power Plant just north of Charlevoix to transport heavy equipment.

"We wouldn't have the siding there if we didn't think it was important," he said.

Gerald Smith of Petoskey, president of the Northwest Michigan Industrial Association, said they were surprised to learn about the proposed abandonment and will fight it all the way.

"We figured that since the C&O didn't file for bankruptcy, they weren't going to abandon their track," he continued.

The association represents some 33 industries in Northwest Lower Michigan that depend on rail service.

"We are very perturbed," he said.

"This abandonment would hurt us more than anything.

Leaders Meet

Smith and other key area leaders met Thursday in Traverse City to discuss strategy for blocking the proposed abandonment.

While they were unable to come up with concrete plans, Smith says they will meet with Governor William Milliken within the next few weeks.

Petoskey Economic Development Commission Administrator Merle Lutz says the abandonment would be a crippling blow to existing plants in the area and would be a severe cutback to the northern economy.

"This is a commercial application of the Domino Theory," added William Ohle of Horton Bay a vice president of the Northern Michigan Rail Users Association.

Ohle charged that C&O was simply waiting for Penn Central to do the hard work in area abandonment, so they could come in and easily get rid of their less profitable lines.

Rails Objects

Michigan Public Service Commissioner William Ralls said the C&O proposal would leave Northern Michigan without rail service and said he will propose that his commission oppose the move.

Ralls, who visited the area Thursday for several speaking engagements, said it would seriously hamper economic growth in outstate Michigan.

State Senator Robert Davis of Gaylord said he couldn't see abandoning one mile of rail.

The Senate minority leader said he will push the Michigan legislature into diverting some mass transit money for keeping Northern Michigan rail service.

Charlevoix Prosecutor Denies Being Pressured to Resign

Harvey Varnum

Charlevoix County Prosecutor Harvey Varnum denied rumors this week that he is resigning January 1 because of outside pressure.

It had been rumored that the Northern Michigan Anti-Crime and Drug Committee, who claims credit for forcing several public officials out of office, had pressured the prosecutor to resign.

However, Varnum told the Courier that he had had conversation with only one member of the Anti-Crime and Drug Committee, R.P. Johnson, some time ago regarding the prosecutor's case load on Charlevoix County.

"I am resigning because of press of business in my private practice," Varnum said.

"Eighteen years is a long time to serve the public but I have enjoyed every minutes of it.

"The demands have just become too much. I am happy the electors saw fit to re-elect me so many times."

Varnum, who has served Charlevoix County as a part-time prosecuting attorney for almost 18 years, tendered his resignation to the Board of Commissioners last week, effective January 1.

In resigning, Varnum noted the increasing amount of work in the prosecutor's office and stated he wanted more time to devote to his own practice and to plan for his eventual retirement.

He said he was submitting his resignation at this time so there would be plenty of opportunity to select his successor.

It will be up to Circuit Judge Martin Breighner to appoint a county prosecutor to fill Varnum's one-year unexpired term.

By coincidence, Ronald Erkfitz of the Anti-Crime and Drug Committee appeared before the Commissioners later in the day to talk about the need for revision of the court system in Charlevoix County and the need for a full time prosecutor.

Asked later by the Courier to comment on Varnum's

Governor Rejects Fed Rail Plan

LANSING--Governor William Milliken and the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation sharply criticized a federal proposal to abandon almost half of the state's rail trackage.

In the Michigan Railroad Plan sent Thursday, to the Federal Railrod Administration, they called the federal proposal "unacceptable to the people of Michigan."

The 40-page document, prepared by the state's Railroad Planning Section, outlines Michigan's position regarding current proposals of the United States Railway Association (USRA) for the reorganization of the northeastern U.S. railroads.

"I understand the urgent need for solutions to this (railroad) problem, but it is even more essential that a balanced nationwide transportation system be provided to serve all states in such a manner as to provide for orderly economic and social development," Gov. Milliken said in a transmittal letter sent with the plan to the federal agency in Washington.

"Precipitous action at this time could result in the loss of major portions of our essential rail network."

Thomas Trimbach, manager of the Railroad Planning Section, said the plan was a total state effort that included input from the railroad industry, shippers, labor, regional planning interests and the citizenry.

"It's a new deal," Trimbach said about Michigan's effort to save the rails.

"Michigan is taking national leadership" in its attempts to curb rail abandonment.

The state plan charges that the USRA has ignored Michigan' unique peninsular geography by looking only at national interstate high traffic corridors.

"The need for providing ferry service both across Lake Michigan and connecting the Upper and Lower Peninsulas has not be recognized," the document states.

"The rural nature of large areas of the State, and the special transportation needs of our extensive agricultural and lumber industries, deserve greater consideration in planning an efficient rail system."

The state claims drastic cutbacks in rail service would only increase a very high unemployment level.

The plan calls for preserving a rail system that serves all sections of the state, as well as the heavily industrial needs of southern Lower Michigan.

Michigan says the less populous sections of the State must not be deprived of the opportunity to grow and prosper because of "ill-

Forget the Railroads

I'm tired of having to read about the railroads. I think they're going to die eventually and we might as well let them go now. If railroads were so important to this area, why haven't people been using them? Let them die quickly.

The Rails Could Save Our Skin

With the energy crunch upon us, now more than ever we need the rails. I don't think it will be too long before gasoline will be so expensive that people will have to ride the train. Instead of pouring thousands of dollars into the Detroit ghetto, why doesn't the state put a little of that money into Northern Michigan? It seems like all the legislators do is spend money for Detroit and forget about us up here. We cater to a lot of downstaters and should get money to help pay for the facilities they use.

Rather See A Rail Than A Road

If we get a choice between having a new super highway cutting through the Jordan River Valley and improving our railroads, I would rather see the train. I think we should think about conserving the land we are so lucky to have by driving less cars through it. Many other countries have been successful at having national train systems, why can't we. If the railroad companies can't run the trains in the black, I think the state ought to take over the train tracks and lease them to private companies. Or better yet, why doesn't the federal government just take over the railroads so we can keep them.

Concerned About Rails

I'm concerned about the railroads. I'm not sure if I completely understand the problem. I have a feeling that the unions have a lot to do with their problems. I would like to see the passenger trains come through Charlevoix like they use to. I think many skiers from down below would use them in the winter if they were here instead of trying to risk their life on snowy roads. Many senior citizens would also ride them.

PBB Hearing Scheduled To Be Held in Lansing

Several Charlevoix area farmers are expected to testify next week in Lansing during a special hearing being held by the Michigan Department of Agriculture on the toxic fire retardant PBB.

Dr. George Whitehead, Deputy Director for Consumer Protection, says the hearing is over a proposed regulation to prohibit the sale of foods with any detectable amount of PBB.

The present action level regulation, set by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for PBB in food is 3 parts per million and .05 parts per million in whole eggs.

The public hearing will be held at 9 a.m. on Thursday May 29 at the Michigan National Guard Building, 2500 S. Washington Avenue in Lansing.

Dr. Whitehead said the hearing will not consider animal safety, or the impact on the agricultural economy, but will be limited to sworn testimony as to the affect of PBB upon human beings.

The consumer specialist says the hearing is a result of a concurrent resolution passed recently by the Michigan Legislature petitioning the state agricultural department to establish a regulation.

However, Dr. Whitehead says he doesn't think it will be practical to set a zero tolerance level for PBB in food because present instrumentation cannot measure that level accurately.

"The second point is that we have no scientific evidence at this time that warrants lowering the tolerance level," he continues.

Dr. Whitehead said his agency will be looking for scientific evidence to lower the level.

So far, he says, the Federal Drug and Food Administration has been unable to find any significant differences between the low level PBB herds and control herds.

State Representative Donald Albesta of Saginaw blasted the hearing formnt after earlier pushing the Agriculture Department to hold it.

"It's phony as h—," he said in a Friday interview.

"The only ones they are going to let testify will be experts."

Albsta said he wants the tolerance level lowered so farmers can receive compensation for the damage done to their farms.

"Right now, the Farm Bureau isn't including anything lower than the .3 parts per million," he said.

State Senator John Welborn of Kalamazoo defended the State Agriculture Department and said they were simply doing what the legislative hearing was asking them to do.

"They are just following the mandate of the resolution that past both houses," he said.

Welborn said he thought the agriculture department was justified in holding the hearing only for determining the effects PBB has on humans.

"The problem with PBB is that emotionally and politically you can make a decision, but the Department of Agriculture is required to make a decision based on facts," he continued.

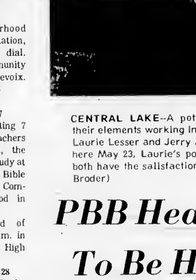
Those wanting to testify must obtain a scheduled alloted speaking time.

For a speaking time, contact: B. Dale Ball, Director, Michigan Department of Agriculture, 5th Floor, Lewis Cass Building, Lansing, Michigan 48913.



DON BOGART, 51, a lifelong resident of Charlevoix, has recently joined the sales staff of Scheid Northern Realty in their Charlevoix office. Bogart is a licensed Master Electrician, and has operated his own electrical business in Charlevoix since 1946.

Charlevoix Says 'Good-bye' to Odmark

By FRAN MARTIN

"This is going to be a fun concert!" Clarence A. Odmark announced as he appeared on the podium to direct his last formal concert as director of the Charlevoix high school symphony Band Thursday evening.

And fun it was as the band responded to the Maestro who had, through his 29 years in the Charlevoix schools, brought the music program to the forefront.

He recalled that when he came here in 1946, he felt lucky when he had 35 students interested in music. Today the program boasts a symphony band, a concert band, a marching band plus younger bands in the sixth, seventh and eighth grades.

But underneath the light remarks, the funny innuendoes, was a bit of sadness among the former associates, former students and friends who had gathered to hear "Mr. Music" in his final concert.

It was the finest hour for the band which had brought another First Division rating to this man who had introduced them to the wonders of music, some of them as much as six years ago. They played as though they wanted their performance to be a last "Thank you" to the man who had made this all possible.

It was with great pride that Odmark directed his band in the Overture of "Orpheus in the Underworld", an ambitious performance for a high school band. With Jeanne Belfy, a former member of his high school and music major who will graduate from Northern Michigan University, playing the Oboe solo role, Cheryl Coppens the clarinet solo and Odmark himself making his first and last performance with his band playing a brief violin solo, the band gave a fine performance.

Midway in the program, Ronald Smith, of Cheboygan, president of District II of the Michigan School Band and Orchestra Association, presented a check to Odmark from his fellow band directors. A delegation of band students from Cheboygan presented him with a card in behalf of their band.

Steve Bloom, president of the band, introduced fellow band members who first presented Odmark with the alto sax which was flattened recently when accidently rnn over by a school bus. It is to grace the wall in the band room as a reminder that such accidents can happen.

Then, in a more serious mood, the band presented Odmark with a small steel occasional table whose glass top has a picture of the band encased in it.

For the final selection, Odmark invited former students to join the band in the playing of Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" which has become a tradition with the veteran director.

The building all but rocked as approximately 20 former students, some of whom had gone on to major in music, joined the band in this stirring march.

Before the final number, Gary Stutzman, Odmark's successor as head of the music department, asked the large crowd how many of them had been touched by Odmark as students, community choir or church choir. The response was surprising as more than 70 percent of those present stood.

As one person said "This was not the regular concert crowd" He was right...for it represented those whose lives he'd touched in one way or another and friends who had come to pay tribute to Charlevoix's own Mr. Music who had given so much to the community in the past nearly three decades. Their applause and standing ovation undoubtedly conveyed to Odmark their message of gratitude and appreciation for a job well done.

Earlier in the week the seniors in the band hosted a dinner at Leutheuser's honoring Mr. and Mrs. Odmark.

Drumlins Dominate Area Landscape

By Peg Ohle

Charlevoix residents may not know it but they are living in the midst of a unique glacial formation.

They are drumlins, whale-back shaped mounds one-half to one mile in length and 50 to 70 feet high.

Drumlins run from north to south in the direction from which the glaciers came, with a blunt end toward the north and a tapered end toward the south. They were developed under deep ice as the glaciers receded and rose as the ice pressure disappeared.

Drumlins are most noticeable along Highway 31 south of Charlevoix but they also appear to the northeast in Hayes Township. Driving along an east-west road in these areas the drumlins can be spotted by the road-cuts through them.

The local drumlin formations run south to the Traverse City area and into the Leelanlau Peninsula. The only other drumlin formations are in the Finger Lakes area of western New York state, east-central Wisconsin and in Ireland and Scotland. In fact, the word "drumlin" comes from the Gaelic word "druim" meaning mound.

Charlevoix geologist Edward Beutner says that the drumlin formations are the result of the last glaciation, about 70,000 years ago, which made its final retreat in northern Ontario about 9,500 years ago.

For the most part drumlin slopes are too steep for farming and the ground between them tends to be swampy. However, the land is suitable for grazing.

The glaciers that formed the drumbins are also responsible for the large amount of gravel in the area. They dropped rock in a helter-skelter fashion, creating the gravel deposits. Michigan ranks second to California in gravel and sand production in the United States.

Memorial Day

Next Monday Charlevoix area residents will pause to honor their war dead, as will people throughout the country.

Memorial Day will be observed with the usual parade, laying of wreaths and ceremonies at Brookside Cemetery.

There will be music and speeches and wet eyes as observers remember the many young men and women who gave their lives in defense of their country.

Our country is technically at peace as we go into our bicentennial year, although within the last week some service men were lost rescuing one of our ships from its captors. Peace does not mean that service men are out of danger in the line of duty.

Memorial Day should have a dual meaning. It should be a day of rememberance as its name indicates but it should also be a day of dedication to the cause of peace.

What better tribute could we pay our war dead than, in their names, work toward ending the kind of savage engagements the cost them their lives?

Let's not forget our war dead. Let's honor them with all the great honor due them. But let's also set our sights on attaining permanent peace throughout the world. Some say such goals are visionary. Perhaps they are now but who knows what the years will bring. We can at least try.

A Special Tribute

Former Courier Editor Bob Clock wrote a Memorial Day Editorial that we think had a special meaning for Charlevoix and would like to share it again with you this year.

Charlevoixans will pause to pay tribute May 26 to the veterans of six American wars who have found their final resting place in Brookside Cemetery.

The grave markers in Brookside tell the story of the nation's struggle for survival better than a stack of history books.

There are literally dozens of other grave markers from the Civil War, the Spanish American War, World Wars I and II, the Korean War and the Vietnam War--each an eloquent testimonial of the role played by Charlevoixans in the nation's long struggle against tyranny at home and abroad.

In Brookside, as in cemeteries across the length and breadth of America, young men who died in the steamy jungles of Vietnam sleep side by side with hearded veterans of Gettysburg and The Battle of the Wilderness, swash-buckling heroes of San Juan Hill, mudcaked doughboys who fought at Belleau Wood and Chateau Thierry, crew-cut GI's who died on Corregidor and Omaha Beach and the dauntless captors of Pork Chop Hill.

The nation's interludes of peace have been all too brief and elusive during our 200 years as a free people.

We have learned that freedom cannot be bought cheaply or held lightly. It is a lesson that we all must remember this Memorial Day as we explore the sunny boulevards leading to "a generation of peace." (B.C.)

Reader Tells About Fish

Sir:

I am John Nordrum, D.C., the son of one of the old time fishermen. I remember when the Cross family moved to Charlevoix. I was about eleven ur twelve years old when I saw my first lamphrey eel marked trout.

My father, Big John, as he was called, said, "God help the lake trout if the mean temperature of the Great Lakes ever rises". In the late twenties and early thirties, the world mean temperature raised a degree and a half. One may verify this by writing "Baxters" in New York. I don't know how he knew this, but he was world traveled and very observant.

But this wasn't the only contributing factor in the death of lake trout. The smelt were planted in Lake Michigan by the State Dept. and the smelt could cleon out the eggs in the honeyeombed rock in which the trout laid their eggs. The sturgeon and suckers with their mouths under their heads, could not get into the indentations very readily, but the smelt, with their pointed jaws and sharp teeth had a feast.

I remember one gathering of commercial fishermen, where one of the state's men was talking and said, of course, you know that the smelt came up the St. Lawrence into the Great Lakes - and a man named Martin, I've forgotten his first name - stood up and said, "You are a damned liar, you hired me to plant those smelt."

I remember the last lift we always tried to make just after Thanksgiving, was a spot we called the "pinnacle." We left Fisherman's Island and headed southwest just outside of Cot Head. I don't remember our time. We always had a man on the fantail ready to cast a buoy when we found it. It was so steep that the instant we struck bottom with the sounding lead, we hauled in fast or lost our lead. We always lifted one night out and if it blew hard, we lost our nets. But the trout on that spawning ground were fatter, bigger, and of a different color and markings. This always was a point of discussion between Dad and me. How could that particular group of fish find that pinnacle in mass from anywhere in the lake, where they must have been. They must have some kind of radar that they set as very young fish. Similar, I believe, to the bees that fly around the hive with their head toward the hive. If this is true, and I believe it is, how stupid are the state men who, I have heard, plant eggs in sandy shores and buckets, expecting them to propagate themselves. A simple solutiog is to take the eggs to the spawning grounds and plant them in their natural protective rocks.

It was interesting to read about what has happened to fish and fishermen in your April 30 issue. I think there are many things that could be done to bring back the productivity of the Lakes, but one of the first things to do is get rid of those stupid D.N.R. imbeciles.

HELP WE CAN DO WITHOUT!

IS THIS SOMETHING WE NEED?

A recent survey of American consumers by the Opinion Research Corporation indicates that 75 per cent favor improving existing Federal consumer protection agencies. Only 13 per cent favor creating a new one. Nevertheless, legislation before the Senate would authorize $60 million to create an Agency for Consumer Advocacy (ACA) and operate it for three years.

Already we have the Office of Consumer Affairs, the Consumer Product Safety Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and some 80 others all working for consumers. What could the ACA do in addition?

For one, it can raise the prices of consumer goods by imposing new costs on industries and companies. Americans are only now realizing that over-regulation of business is a prime cause of inflation and unemployment.

At the same time, the ACA could create chaos because it will have legal authority to oppose and litigate decisions of other government agencies.

Why doesn't Congress insist that the many existing consumer agencies improve their performance instead of spending money on a new one?

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

If someone had told me 35 years ago that I would one day write a defense of hot cereal for breakfast, I would have laughed in my corn flakes.

After all, I belonged to the second generation of Americans who have been raised on the super-refined, super-toasted, super-colored, super-flavored and super odvertised breakfast foods produced by the sprawling grist mills in Battle Creek and St. Louis.

What's more, I hated hot cereal. It tended to be lumpy. And when you added milk, it turned into library paste.

However a whole new world of breakfast eating has opened to me since I discovered the wonderful things health food stores have been doing to whole grains like wheat, rye, oats and millet.

The problem with the whole grain cereals is that--with the exception of oatmeal and a couple of other super-refined wheat cereals that have been gussied up with preservatives and flavorings — they just aren't available at the corner grocery store. Sometimes you must travel 100 miles or more to find what you're looking for — but that's part of the penalty of being a health food nut.

The new (old) cereals have their disadvantages, make no mistake. You have to get up a good half hour earlier to get some of them cooked in time for breakfast. The only exception is rolled oats, which only takes about 10 minutes to reach perfection.

Furthermore, it may take some doing to convince your 10-year-old to try something for breakfast besides Frosted Sugar Yummies. Old habits are hard to break.

But I think that there is sufficient evidence abroad in the land today to make us take another look at what we eat for breakfast.

The medical profession now suspects that the super-refined diet of most Americans may be responsible for the enormous increase in cancer of the colon in recent years. Coarse, bulky foodstuffs which once helped speed the digestive process have largely been eliminated from the American diet. Our digestive systems have become sluggish and some doctors now suspect a connection between our refined diets and the incidence of cancer.

It is no secret that a good deal of the bulk in the American diet used to come from the wheat, oat and rye cereals grandma used to fix for breakfast. This source of bulk is now gone — unless you choose one of the vitamin fortified bran cereals.

We also used to get a certain amount of roughage from bread before flour becamne so super refined that little good remains in it.

The remaining bulk in our diets comes fnom fruits and vegetables, and unless you're a big eater of both you probably aren't getting the bulk you need.

What has surprised me most ubout the new whole grain cereals is their flavor. They taste just like the old granary down on the farm used to smell. Only better. I don't know what the dry cereal makers have done to destroy flavor, but they have done it in the grand manner because it is no similarity between the sugary taste of Frusted Sugar Yummies and n bowl of hot rye meal.

That's another thing. Whole grain cereals don't need any sugar. They're almost indecently sweet by themselves. For that matter, they don't even need any milk. But since they look awfully naked just lying there, I usually add a little butter or oleo.

One of the nicest things about hot cereals is that they starve off hunger pangs for hours at a time. Give a kid a big bowl of hot cereal for breakfast, and he may not even show up for lunch.

Where do you find these miraculous cereals?

Oatmeal (rolled) is available ot most grocery stores. But beyond that, you're on your own. The Grain Train in Petoskey hos some bulk cereals such as millet. Traverse City's downtown health store has some commereially packaged cereals which are good but tend to be expensive. The Old Town health store has a variety of cereals in bulk; including rolled rye, which is delicious either cooked or raw.

There is an other Seventh Day Adventist health food store in Muskegon, I understand, which is well stocked. But it is closed Saturdays.

Probably the best-stocked health store we have encountered is in the Station Mall at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Cereals are prepackaged, mostly in plastic bags, and prices are very reasonable.

Furthermore, the Station Mall store has steel-cut oatmeal and rye meal (farine de siegle, if you prefer the French) which we haven't been able to find any place else.

A whole new world of delightful breakfasts has opened to the Clocks since we discovered whole grain cereals. And I suspect it's a healthier world than the one we came from.

Is There A Gun in the House?

A guy named John Biggert in Tennessee is selling signs that say "There are NO GUNS in This House." The words run rampant on a field of bullseye.

The signs cost $6.30 for 1,000, postage paid. The advertising advises: "Put this sign on your front door if you feel there is no need for firearms. You realize, of course, that this would be an open invitation, informing degenerates bent on rioting, plundering, robbery, murder or rape that you and your family are defenseless...."

I'm no dummy. I know Biggert is being sarcastic. How many people do you know with 1,000 front doors? But Biggert did give me an idea....

For a long time I had been sick of the neighborhood plunderer coming to our door, asking if we had anything we wanted plundered. He was showing up at least once a week and this was without the enticement of a NO GUNS sign on the door. But what if I posted a sign saying: "There are LOTS OF GUNS in This House?"

Brilliant. The sign went up the next day, in red Crayola, the words running rampant on the field of cannons.

The next day the woman next door came knocking. She wanted to borrow a cup of guns.

I asked her why and she said her husband was a degenerate who never stood up straight because he was bent on rioting and socking her in the chops. She wanted a gun to defend herself.

I asked her how she ever came to marry such a nut. She said the bum came courting in answer to the sign on her door. Her sign said: "There are NO GUNS in This House."

She said she bought 1,000 of the signs 2 years ago from John Biggert in Tennessee for $6.30. I asked her what she did with the other 999 signs and she said she had distributed them to all her single girlfriends. Within a year they were all married to degenerates who couldn't stand up straight because they were bent on wife beating.

"Do you think your husband married you simply because he knew you didn't have a gun?" I asked.

"Yes," she said. "At first I thought it was the way my hair bounces when I run up hills. But now I know he simply wanted a punching bag that couldn't punch back. I should never have put up that sign. I should have become suspicious when he made me swear in the wedding vows that I would never join the National Rifle Association."

At this point I had to confess I couldn't loan her a gun because I really don't own any. My LOTS OF GUNS sign was a lie, posted only for the neighborhood plunderer, and I was sorry she had been misled.

She was disappointed to tears. In an effort to comfort her, I pointed out she would probably he better off without a gun in the house. I quoted the statistics that prove most gun murders are family affairs, committed in anger between friends ad relatives. The big danger is not the stranger at the door, it's the guy in your bed.

"If there were a gun in your home, your husband might shoot you instead of just sock you in the chops," I told her.

"Not if I shoot him first," she said.

Onward and Upward.

Meet Charlevoix

....Mrs Georgene Alger

Mrs. Georgene Alger Is Director of the Charlevoix Girl Scout Day Camp. This week she tells the Courier about the camp, openings for campers and the need for adult help at the camp.

COURIER: When will the camp be held, where, and what will the program be?

ALGER: It will be held on the camp grounds on Marion Center Road, just south of the Belvedere Golf Course, June 23 through June 27. The program will consist of camperaft skills in food, toolcraft, ropecraft, fires, making and using and caring for equipment, shelters, maps, compass trads, etc. There will also be hikes, outdoor games, nature and conservation study, haudierafts, musie, dramatics and duncing – just everything for fun.

COURIER: Who is eligible for the day camp and what does it cost?

ALGER: All Brownies, Juniors and Cadettes are invited to attend. The cost is $6.00 for the five days, $3.70 of which will go for food. The girls will bring a bag lunch on Monday but they will plan and prepare meals the nther four days. A snack will be served in the afternoon.

COURIER: How will the girls get to camp?

ALGER: Transportation will have to be worked out by the parents, we hope by ear pools. However, as registrations come in we are trying to help. The main reason we are having camp in Charlevoix this summer is so it will be easier for the girls to get to. The last three years we have shared camps with other groups – last year in East Jordan and the year before in Harbor Springs.

COURIER: Who will conduct the camp?

ALGER: We must have one trained adult for every six girls, according to Girl Scout rules. Right now we don't have enough and we hope we can get some volunteers. Anyone over 18 is eligible if they take the training course. It's a work shop sort of thing and quite simple. We had one session last week and are having another one tonight (Wednesday). Other dates will be set.

COURIER: Who should a persnn who wants to volunteer contact?

ALGER: They may call me at 547-6997 or Eileen Nunemaker at 547-6805. I should stress that this is a DAY camp, running from 9:30 to 3:30 so all volunteers will be home in the late afternoon. Volunteers with small children can join our "Kiddi-keep" unit while they work with the scouts. We will provide sitter service for children two through seven. We also need some volunteers to help with these children under a woman trained in child care.

COURIER: What are your qualifieations for day camp work?

ALGER: I have been to day camp training sessions and on over-night campouts. Also, I have been a camper most of my life. This year I have had a troop of 16 first grade Brownies. I am a graduate of Central Michigan University in elementary education and a substitute teacher.

COURIER: What about health and safety precautions at camp?

ALGER: A nurse or trained first aider will be in attendance during all five days of camp. All registered Girl Scouts are covered by accident insurance while attending camp under their troop membership fee.

COURIER: When is the deadline for registration?

ALGER: All registrations must be in by this Friday, May 23. It might be possible for some girls who are not registered Girl Scouts to attend our day camp since it does not look like it will be filled. The cost to them would be the $6.00 plus an insurance fee of ten cents a dny.

COURIER: Who is in charge of registrations?

ALGER: Janet Franklin, phone 547-2427, is the registrar, or they may call me. I should mention that our Planning Committee has been busy for some time arranging fur the day camp. They deserve mention. Judy Donnelly is chairnun of this committee, Ev Eakes is health and safety chairman; Janet Franklin, registrar; Dorothy Groves, site and equipment chairnan; Lisa Sloan, staff referral chairman; Ellen Smith, purchaser; and Sherry Martin, public relntions chairman.

COURIER: Have you gotten any help from other organizations in setting up the day camp program?

ALGER: Yes, we hve received $50 from the local Kiwanis Club and the Rebekha's have offered to help. We could use more money and help. We need to buy equipment like cooking utensils, kitchen utensils, garbage cans, shovels, etc.

Bed Making

My mother has always led me to believe that sleeping on an unmade bed is a health hazard.

Sloppy corners could lead to brnin damage....lumpy centers to bed-wetting and socks stuek to the blanket....well, I just hated to think about it.

When I became engaged she had a conversation with niy future mother-in-law which alleviated her worst fears. My future husband was unemployed, immature and slept with a stuffed koala bear....but he made his own bed.

Now, out of two consenting adults who made their own beds, it seemed a scientific certainty.that their offsprings would inherit the dominant bedmaking chromosomes. Right? Wrong.

We have three children who throw the covers up over their beds only when they want to hide a wet towel.

Someone once said (either Paul Harvey or the Pope) that a mother who makes a child's bed after the age of 7 should leave motherhood and go into another line of work. I've tried to justify unmade beds in our house for the last 15 years.

When guests came, I would run in one of the kids' rooms, throw open the window and say, "We're airing linens today."

Other times I would point to a mound of tousled blankets and sheets and explain, "He just stepped out a moment. He's coming back."

As the room got progressively worse through the years I could sometimes get away with, "He's there somewhere. You just can't see him."

A couple of days ago I decided to give it one last shot. I said to my son, "Do you suppose you could make your bed this Friday?"

He looked up. "Why? Are you selling the house?"

"No, I'm...."

"You're missing some towels, right? I don't have them."

"No, I'm having a party."

"In my bedroom?"

"No, but I thought I'd use your bed for the coats."

"Mom, you have a thing about making beds. All your life you've made yourself miserable over a few sloppy sheets and bedspreads in the corner. A made bed is not going to get this country going again. It's not going to conquer disease or purify our water and air. It can't even get you to heaven, so what's in it for you?"

"It'll save me from sealing up this room Friday night. Get on the other side and start tucking!"

Cook's Hearing Costs Taxpayers Bundle

By PEG OHLE

The hiring and firing of a cook for the Charlevoix County Jail has turned out to be an expensive proposition for the County.

Mrs. Gertrude Sandahl was hired by Sheriff Philo Sumner last October 13 to take over the job of cooking for the prisoners, a job held by Mrs. Sumner until she was taken ill.

Five days after her employment by Sumner, Mrs. Sandahl's employment was put under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) and continued that way until her firing on December 21.

Until her illness, Mrs. Sumner had bought and prepared food for the prisoners on the basis of $1.00 per meal. During her two months plus employment Mrs. Sandahl was paid a total of $920.06 in CETA funds, and at the same time Mrs. Sumner was paid $1.00 a meal for food furnished and the meals she cooked.

Records show that during the time of Mrs. Sandahl's employment 393 meals were served to prisoners, 198 of which were cooked by Mrs. Sumner and 195 by Mrs. Sandahl. The total cost of meals served, therefore, amounted to $1,313, or an average of $3.34 per meal.

Mrs. Sandahl was fired by Sheriff Sumner on December 21, she says, because of her interest in joining the union. Sumner says it was because there weren't enough prisoners to warrant keeping her.

After her firing Mrs. Sandahl filed a six-page complaint with the Michigan Employment Relations Commission which resulted in a hearing in Charlevoix last Wednesday. The two different versions of why Mrs. Sandahl was fired were brought out at the hearing. A decision by Administrative Law Judge Bert H. Wicking, who presided, will not be forthcoming until briefs orc filed by both sides and he has had a chance to study them.

The hearing also cost the County money. Sheriff Sumner was represented by attorney Peter A. Patterson of Grand Rapids, whose bill the County will have to pay.

County Commissioner Ralph Richardson, chairman of the Sheriff's Committee, told the Courier that instead of having une of the two County attorneys handle the case, they hired Patterson because he had represented the County in union negotiations and was more familiar with such procedures.

It is understood that Mrs. Sandahl has filed charges with other governmental units, which may result in further hearings.

Platinum has Interesting-- and Lengthy History! (Part 2)

John Reusch

A Spanish naval officer, Don Antonio de Ulloa, named platinum in 1735. He called it "platina," meaning "silver of little value."

Despite its resistance to "working" and known refining techniques, platinum was widely used in the late 18th century for the manufacture of jewelry and scientific apparatus, particularly in France.

Platinum is rarer, harder, heavier and more inert than gold. Its average occurrence in the earth's crust is two-tenths of a part per million. By contrast, the occurrence of iron is 47,000 parts per million and silicon is 274,000 parts per million. Cont. next week.

Tennis Team Wins First League Title

Erik Lundteigen won a dramatic tie breaker in the third set of the semi-finals against Bob Buechner of Leelanau to carry the Charlevoix tennis team to its first class C-D regional championship.

Lundteigen went on to win the finals 6-3, 6-3 against Steve Jackson of Leelanau. The wins gave Charlevoix 15 team points while runner-up Leelanau finished with 14.

Going into the semi-finals Charlevoix needed just one point to clinch a tie for the Championship. Since all of Charlevoix's doubles teams had been eliminated, the task was left up to Lundteigen and teammate Brian Osterberg.

Osterberg fought gamely against the powerful Jackson but lost 7-6, 6-2. Meanwhile Lundteigen was losing his first set to the consistent Buechner 6-0. After Buechner won the first two games of the second set, it seemed certain that Leelanau would repeat as regional champions.

All of a sudden, Lundteigen lost his jitters and began stroking solid, forcing shots. Buechner crumbled and Lundteigen won the second set 6-3. The lead went back and forth in the third set with no player able to get a distinct advantage.

At 6 games apiece, the stage was set for the dramatic tie-breaker. Lundteigen won the first two points but lost the next two on his own serve. They then traded points. At 3 points apiece, Lundteigen hit an overhead winner. Playing the match point, however, Lundteigen made a careless error.

Whoever won the next point won the match and team championship. Lundteigen got his first serve in and the two began rallying, cautiously

BY CHUCK WRIGHT

Last week a friend of mine wrote me a fairly formal letter expressing his discontent over the public courts and how they are operated. He is not alone in his displeasure.

I am postponing the final segment on doubles play one week. It is important to discuss the tennis court situation and try to find out if any good solutions exists.

There are two primary objections to the way the courts are run. First, many are unhappy with the high school tennis team using the courts for an hour and a half Monday thru Friday and as long as three hours on the seven match days. Also, during the summer, public clinics monopolize two courts throughout the week.

As coach of the team, I can easily understand the objections but can see no solution. The team has to practice after school, and, with twenty-five team members, it is essential to tie up the courts for this time period.

In actual hours, the team uses the courts for about 72 hours during the entire year. It is only an eight week season. Further, it has been pointed out that the community is constantly using school facilities. Why, then cannot the community allow the tennis team to use the courts for 72 hours a year?

Under present conditions, I cannot see a solution which would satisfy both the community and the tennis team (which represents the school and the community). The only applicable solution would be for the school system to build four more courts for physical education and tennis teams.

The second strong objection is to the process in which people get off and on the courts. The clock system, initiated last year, is not satisfactory primarily because not enough people take the time to use it. In the summer, many visitors do not even know how to use it.

The goal is to resolve a method which would allow people to play with a minimum of hassle. People should be able to go to the courts, play for an hour and leave without all the bickering that goes on.

My friend has an answer which he feels would be a tremendous improvement to the situation. He proposes that the city acquire a time clock either through purchase or donation. Take down the clocks and number the courts.

When a player comes to the court, he signs his name and punches the clock with the number of the court he is playing on. After the courts are full, the next palyer signs his name proving he is next in line for a court. He knows which court will be vacant first by the punched times. When it is time for the waiting player to play, he punches in by his name.

Using this system, everyone knows who is playing, on what court, and when they will be finished. It also enables the waiting players to know who has been waiting the longest.

I agree with my friend that this time clock system would be an improvement over the existing system, but I feel even this proposal would leave a great deal to be desired.

People need to learn how to use a time clock system as they do with the present clock system. There will always be people who do not want to take the time to learn it. There will always be summer people who do not know they are supposed to learn it. What results is chaos. People who use the system argue and fight with the people who do not.

My opinion is that the best solution to the over-crowded court situation is to have an attendant. This attendant could regulate the play, take reservations, sweep the courts, and make sure the courts are run smoothly. He or she could explain procedures to new comers. A friendly atmosphere could prevail at last.

If the city was unwilling to pay this attendant $2.00 per hour (Plenty of kids on the high school team would be willing to do the job and they would be excellent), the attendant could collect a dollar or so an hour per court.

Not only would this pay for the attendant, but the city would make a little money with which to maintain the facility. The courts would then be operated like the golf course.

This is merely my solution. If any readers have an opinion on the subject of the operation of the public tennis courts, please call the Courier Hotline (547-6559). The tennis court problem in Charlevoix should be solved to the satisfaction of all concerned.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Shooks

Dale E. Shooks Marries Darla R. Best

COURIER Lifestyle

Darla R. Best, of Ellsworth and Dale E. Shooks of Central Lake, were married May 10 in the Atwood Reformed Church. Rev. Larry Brosseit officiated at the double ring candlelight ceremony. The candelabras were accented with cascade bouquets of pompons in shades of yellow, green, pink and blue.

Mr. and Mrs. John Best, of Ellsworth, are parents of the bride and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Shook, of Central Lake.

"First Time Ever I Saw Your Face" and, "Color My World" were sung by the bride's mother and she was accompanied by Patty Wallick on the flute. The father of the groom sang, "The Lord's Prayer" and was accompanied by Mrs. Hans DeYoung, organist.

A gown of Sata-Peau was chosen by the bride. It was accented with pearled Alencon lace and featured a sweeping circular skirt and attached train. A tiara of the lace secured her floor length veil which was edged in scalloped lace and she carried a cascade of miniature carnations, baby's breath and stephanotis.

Kathy J. Best, sister of the bride, was her maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Denise Parker, Diane Best, cousin of the bride and Joy Drenth.

The maid of honor was growned in nile green and the bridesmaids in maize, blue and pink. Their gowns were fashioned with a spaghetti strap bodice and A-line silhouette with a v-neck capclet. They wore picture hats to match their gowns and carried cascades of carnations to also match their gowns.

Daryl E. Shooks, brother of the groom, served as the best man and groomsmen were Jeff Dawson, Steve Groll and Brian Shooks, cousin of the groom. Their tuxedos were in colors to match the bride's attendants' gowns.

Rick Van Stedum and Danny Strange seated the 300 guests. The junior ushers and candle lighters were Bob Best, brother of the bride and Joe Shooks, brother of the groom.

A reception was served by the Women's Guild in the church fellowship hall following the ceremony. Sue Kronbach attended the punch bowl; Karen Sikema attended the guest book; Mrs. Robert Drenth and Jane Brecktelsbauer served the wedding cake and the wedding gifts were opened by Joni Hizelberger and a cousin of the bride, Mary Best. Master and mistress of ceremonies were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Strange.

The mother of the bride wore a light blue dress to her daughter's wedding. It was trimmed with embroidered blue flowers. The mother of the groom chose a floor length gown of pastel green knit for the wedding.

Following a honeymoon to Toronto, Canada, the couple will reside in Central Lake. The groom is employed at Shooks Brothers Farm and the bride will attend nurses training in the fall. Both graduated from high school in 1973.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the parents of the groom on the eve of the wedding at the Lamplight Inn, in Central Lake. (Aardvark Studio, Charlevoix)

Library notes

Two absorbing new books deserve attention. "No Final Victories" by Lawrence F. O'Brien who has been hailed as the leading political pro of our time. But in addition to being a political mastermind, he is also a very, reflective and humorous man, and in this fascinating, long-awaited memoir he tells the colorful story of his life in politics, from John Kennedy to Watergate. He was, in fact, a primary target of Nixon's plumbers. This is a book which should not be missed by anyone who cares about what American politics has been in the past two decades--or what it can and should be in the future.

Tom Wicker, columnist and Associate Editor of the New York Times has just written "A Time To Die", the gripping story of one of the most dramatic events of our time-the revolt of Attica prison. He tells us: "it was a heart-breaking and devastating human experience. I believe I learned more, saw more, and felt more in those four days than in most of the rest of my life." For an outstanding experience in fine journalism, don't miss this one.

People are talking about "The Ultra Secret" by F.W. Winterbotham. It's on all the best seller lists, and it should be, because it is the first account of the most astounding coup of World War II--how the British broke the German code and read most of the signals between Hitler and his generals throughout the war. The author tells us that at the height of hostilities, the German war machine was sending well over 2000 signals a day on the air, and the signals referred to in this book are those which, in the author's opinion, played a decisive part in our conduct of World War II. Group Captain F.W. Winterbotham of the RAF was in charge of the security and dissemination of this highly secret information which Churchill called "my most secret source". This remarkable account is one of the most important stories of the war.

In a much lighter vein, we introduce a new book by Sheilah Graham with the intriguing title "How To Marry Super Rich or Love, Money, and the Morning after." For those who would like to know, the author tells us what the beautiful people with diamond destinies are really like and how they got there. In this intimate biography, we read about Betty Hutton and Howard Hughes, the Astors and Rockerfellers.

And Sheila Graham should know! Her columns on the social scene and Hollywood have appeared all over the world. We are all looking forward to her next book which will be a biography of F. Scott Fitzgerald as he revealed it to her--the Fitzgerald story as he himself told it.

She's Engaged

Roxanne Marie

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Russell of Charlevoix announce the engagement of their daughter, Roxanne Marie, to Scott Edward Pair, also of Charlevoix.

Pair is the son of Mrs. Muriel DeSimone of St. Clair Shores and Ron Pair of Detroit.

No date has been set for the wedding.

McCallum-Luedke Exchange Vows

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Ms. Freda Ann Luedke of Petoskey and James D. McCallum of Charlevoix.

The wedding was an event of May 3 at the Chapel of the Grandvue Medical Care Facility in the presence of their immediate families and close friends.

The Rev. Seward Walton of the United Methodist Church at Horton Bay officiated at the double ring service.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cummings of East Jordan and Mrs. Katherine McCallum of Charlevoix.

Mrs. Donald Eggers of Boyne City attended the bride as matron of honor and Ms. Janet Gardner of Petoskey as bridesmaid.

Mr. Eggers served as best man and Thomas Sumner of Charlevoix as groomsman.

Harbor Springs Woman Finds Indian Names Interesting

By FRAN MARTIN

What's in a name?

That's what Mrs. Susan Shagonaby of Harbor Springs is attempting to determine as she assists Charlevoix County Clerk employees who are transcribing vital statistic records of Manitou country from old hand written records.

The work is being done by CETA employees under the guidance of Charles Baer in an effort to preserve the records, some more than 100 years old, as permanent records for future generations.

Mrs. Shagonaby entered the picture when the names of Indian families who once lived on the islands of Northern Lake Michigan that made up Manitou county appeared in the records.

For those unfamiliar with early Michigan history, Manitou island was composed of the urchipelago of islands that extend from the Straits of Mackinac south and including those in the Beaver group, North and South Fox islands North and South Manitou islands.

Beaver Islnnd

In this days, Beaver Island alone had a population of nearly 2,000, many of whom were Indians. From the names, Mrs. Shagonaby said she thought most of them were probably Chippewas.

Just as these names are giving the people at the County Clerk's office trouble, the spelling of Indian names apparently has always been a problem to the white man.

It has long been known that the white man spelled the Indian name as it sounded to him for the Indian spoke his name rather than wrote it. She went on to explain that the majority of Indian names, in the beginning, were combinations of words that were descriptive of some thing; the individual or what the parents thought the child might become. Mrs. Shagonaby is attempting to break these names into words in an effort to determine the correct spelling. Though this name was not among those found, she gave as an example the name "Nugashe" which, translated to English, means 'head man going'.

Asked about a widely known name in Charlevoix, that of Skippergosh, she said it probably was "skip-a-ga (or gaw) meaning 'green leaf', perhaps descriptive of the time of year. The name, however, eventually became Skippergosh because that's how it sounded to persons unfamiliar with the Indian language.

English Translation

Would you believe that A-mik-au-dow a-missing, translated into English, means Beaver Island?

Is the name Kek-wedasinakwo spelled correctly? This is one of many names Mrs. Shagonaby is attempting to break down into syllables and then into meaningful words in order to bring some order and meaning to it. With names like Nickensenkus or Omish-wagodokwe this is no easy task, not even for someone as knowledgable of the Indian language as Mrs. Shagonaby. The latter name, she believes, is of Ojibwa mixed with Ottawa words which makes it even more difficult to trnns-late.

Determining the correct spelling of names such as these is a problem well known to historians.

When working with a name of Indian origin, the meaning is frequently doubtful due to the difficulty of producing in English the sounds uttered by the Indians. In the early days the problem was compounded when the names were repeated by French settlers who gave them a French accent.

This is illustrated in treaties made by the Indians when each secretary, in writing out the names of the chiefs who affixed their marks, spelled the names as they sounded to him, the result being, for example, that one Pot-tawatomie chief, Aichcum, has his name spelled six ways on eight treaties.

Correct Spelling

This is the problem that Mrs. Shagonaby is struggling with as she attempts to determine the correct spelling of names such as these and others that are recorded by hand in the county that came into being as the result of the efforts of King James Strang when he was a member of the Michigan legislature. At that time, this section of Michigan was a part of Newaygo county to which the entire Grand Traverse area was attached.

In 1855 Strang was successful in his efforts to have the islands of northern Lake Michigan incorporated into Manitou county, perhaps hopeful of enlarging the boundaries of his 'kingdom' which was centered on Beaver Island. If this was his dream then it was shattered by an assassin's bullet in June of the following year.

The county, however, remained in existence until 1895 when it was disorganized by the Legislature with the Fox and Manitou Islands going to Leelanau County and the Beaver group to Charlevoix county. It was then that the vitnl statistics of the Beiver group came into possession of Charlevoix County.

Typewritten copies are presently being made, through the use of CETA funds. Despite their age, the records that are being copied ure in good condition though the ink has faded.

Mrs. Shagonaby, now in her 70's, is well aware of her Indiun heritage and is anxious to preserve it for future generations. Among her treasured possessions is a copy of a book written by an early Franciscan missionary, F. Chrystom VerWynt, O.F.M. of Ashland, Wis., It is entitled "Chippewa Exercises being a prutical introduction of the Chippewa Language".

It was printed in 1901 at the Holy Childhood Print (Shop) at Harbor Springs. It is a grammar-like book which gives a student an insight into the Indian language. Mrs. Shagonaby is hopeful of having it reprinted for use in libraries and possibly in classrooms where she thinks the history of the Indian should be taught along with that of other minority groups.

Destroyed Recently By Fire

Boyne City Community Service Center Needs Help

The Community Service Center building in Boyne City (formerly called the Doreas Center) was destroyed by fire last month is out of business--at temporarily

The Center is a non-profit organization operated by the Seventh-Day Adventist Church for the purpose of providing clothing, bedding and sometimes food for the residents of Charlevoix County. It is the only facility in the county which provides clothing free of charge to anyone in need.

Last year, over 740 individuals received assistance at the Center, with 18,628 articles of clothing being distributed. Many of the individuals receiving help were the victims of fires in their homes.

The fire brought the Center's operation to an abrupt halt and it is uncertain at this time whether or not funds enough can be secured to put it back in operation. There was only $5,000 worth of insurance.

Anyone desiring to contribute money or materials toward rebuilding the burned-out structure is asked to contact Pat Sherwood at 536 North East Street, Boyne City, phone 582-9685. However, clothing cannot be received or distributed until a new facility is established.

Recreation Grant Money Now Available

Local communities interested in obtaining outdoor recreation funds from the Department of Natural Resources should obtain preapplications after May 15 in order to apply for grants before the July 1 deadline.

According to Executive Director Bill G. Rowden of the Northwest Regional Planning Commission, a local unit of government applying for an outdoor recreation grant must submit a special pre-application to the DNR. To be eligible for recreation monies, a community is required to have a local recreation plan filed with the DNR, Rowden added.

Under the DNR's Land and Water Conservation Fund, it is expected that the 10 counties of the Northwest Region will be eligible for more than $80,000 for outdoor recreation grants for the coming year, Rowden said. He added that no further recreation funds will be available until after July, 1976 and that potential applicants should consider their recreation needs through that date.

Communities interested in obtaining outdoor recreation funding should obtain the necessary pre-application by contacting:

Ironton: Another Look Back

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mrs. Ross Alexander, Courier correspondent for Ironton, offers another part of her series on the history of Ironton.

By Mrs. Ross Alexander

Joseph Mosher who was the uncle of Mrs. Hattie Alexander was known and thought to be the communities first citizen came from Ontario, Canada about 1894 and bought the village store from his brother-in-law Henry Purvis and also the Post Office at the same time.

The store was located at that time on Washington Street near Johnsons log cabins. He soon moved it up next to the new place he built for his business of Groceries Hardware, Dry Goods and Patent Medicines.

He purchased drugs from Dr. Crouter who was a druggist in Charlevoix and made packets of powdered medicines for local customers.

He also delivered groceries with a horse and wagon to Sequanota and surrounding area. Later replacing it with a Model T Ford Truck.

He also owned a small farm and raised grain for the Grist Mill he owned north of the store and operated with a gasoline engine to make whole wheat and buck wheat flour and cracked corn for the farmers.

He was a busy man and served the community well. He lived to be ninety years old.

In 1934 or 35 Roy Meyers was appointed postmaster and moved the post office to his home on the corner of Washington Street and Ferry Road after several years they moved the post office to their new home on M-66 at the top of the ferry hill. But after being the communities post master for thirty-one years Roy retired.

Roy and Minnie enjoyed traveling and bought a rowboat for fishing.

They said they had rather have a rowboat than a yacht because if you have a rowboat you can always enjoy watching the yachts but if you own a yacht the only thing you can look at is the rowboats and there's not much enjoyment doing that.

Don Bennett then was post master and moved the office back to the corner of Washington Street. But in September 1966 his mother Mrs. Mary Bennett was appointed post mistress and it was a rural station getting the mail from Charlevoix. neither wanting to take any kind of chances. Finally, when Buechner followed a shot into the net, Lundteigen hit a lob to his backhand. Buechner let the ball bounce and pushed it into the net.

Lundteigen was not the only hero for Charlevoix though. By making it to the semi-finals, Osterberg picked up three points. All the doubles teams won two points while Larry Smith picked up one at number three singles.

As especially crucial win for the championship was Erie Stone and Dan Engstrom's 0-6, 6-2, 6-2 win over Leelanau's Brooks and Whitman. Ted Lass and Mark Hosmer formed another team while John Greene and Mark Malpell was the number one doubles team.

Earlier in the week, the racqueteers lost their second dual match of the season to Petoskey. Lundteigen was the lone winner in the 7-1 loss.

Charlevoix rebounded for that loss with a 6-1 win over Boyne City. Lundteigen, Osterberg, and Lisa Wiemer were singles winners. Greene and Malpeli, Hosmer and Lass, Engstrom and Stone all won their doubles matches.

The Rayders, only in their second year, are now 10-2 for the season with two matches left to play. On Thursday, they host Cheboygan and on Friday, Gaylord.

State Secretary Austin Denies Interest in Senator Hart's Seat

Secretary of State Dick Austin came swinging through Northern Lower Michigan Wednesday on what he termed a one-day non-political trip.

The 62-year-old Black Democrat was out telling the Northern folks how it is.

Smartly dressed in a grey-pinned striped banker's suit, the former certified public accountant wanted people to know about three programs he is involved with.

Austin said he wanted Northern Michigan to know about the new bicentennial license plates, state auto mechanics licensing law and voter registration.

The former Detroit resident dispelled rumors that his sudden wave of public appearances and standings had anything to do with making a bid for Michigan Senator Phillip Hart's post.

Hart, a Democrat, announced earlier that he plans to retire after next year when his term runs out.

"There was no discussion of any vacancy when I started this," Austin quickly snapped when asked if he was interested in the spot during an interview at the Charlevoix Courier.

"I am trying to get Phil Hart to run. I am one of the people working hard to get Phil Hart to run."

Austin says he has never registered any interest in the job.

Not Interested

The state official said he wouldn't even address himself to the question, but then began to lean forward in the lounge chair he was casually sitting in throughout the interview.

His soft whispering voice began to rise, as his hands began to clinch the black bifocal glasses he was holding.

"I try to visit these communities when I'm not running for office," he continued.

"I get a better reception when I am not running for office."

Austin has spent the morning in Petoskey for several speaking engagements and planned to speak in Indian River after feaving Charlevoix.

"What's the sense of me visiting Phil Hart and trying to get him to run for re-election and at the same time speculate what I'm going to do if he doesn't run?" Austin asked.

The state secretary then continued to field a variety of questions ranging from the new auto repair bill that will require licensed mechanics in service stations, to being able to register to vote when getting a driver's license.

Austin said his office has been flooded with complaints about service stations, but said there was nothing that could be done under the new act until the Michigan Legislature approved rules to enforce the law.

Vote Registration.

He also dispelled concerns registered by many township officials over residents, after October, being able to register to vote at Secretary of State's office. Governor Milliken signed the bill into law several weeks ago. Some people have said it might take away local power.

"The clerk's will still keep the records," he continued.

"The clerks will still make the final decision as to whether a person can go on the rolls."

In order to register at a state office, Austin said an individual will need a voter registration card issued by local clerks."

Asked again for a clarification of his interests in Hart's seat, Austin said he thinks Hart will seek re-election.

"He is considering very carefully whether he is going to run," Austin said.

"I think he is going to be influenced by those of us who are talking to him and urging him to run."

Austin said his own political ambitions at this point were to remain as Secretary of State and continue to win the support of the people in this office.

Disclaims Rumors

Asked if he thought a Black could carry enough outstate votes to win the senatorial seat that commands so much public attention, Austin said he thought he demonstrated it by winning his own office by such an overwhelming majority in the last state election. Austin is in his second term.

"The people of Michigan are willing to elect someone in this position regardfess of his race," Austin said.

Austin is the second Democrat within a week to disclaim rumors that he is interested in Hart's position.

Earl A. Young, 86, Left His Mark on Charlevoix

Earl A. Young, 86, pioneer realtor and builder, died Saturday at Grandvue Medical Care Facility where he had been a patient for six weeks. He had been in ill health for several months.

Funeral services were held Monday at the Winchester Funeral Home with the Rev. Raymond H. Giffin officiating. Interment was in Brookside cemetery.

Mr. Young, a resident of Charlevoix for more than 70 years, entered the field of real estate as a young man and became the dean of realtors in northern Michigan 'selling' Charlevoix as a summer resort throughout the mid-west.

By utilizing boulders left behind by the great glacier, he built the first house in what was to become known as Boulder Park. An artist as well as a builder, he went on to design and build other homes of the stone that was to become his trademark.

In the early 1950's he realized a dream when he remodeled a 70-year-old grist mill on the north bank of the Pine River Channel into the Weathervane Inn, one of the showplaces in the community. Nearby he designed The Lodge and later still the Weathervane Terrace which stand as monuments to his artistry and imagination.

In more recent years, he has devoted his time to writing a history of Charlevoix as he remembers it. An avid photographer as a young man, many of his early pictures of Charlevoix had been used to illustrate the book that is now ready for print.

Born in Mancelona Mar. 31, 1889, Young came to Charlevoix with parents in the early 1900's. In 1915 he was married to the former Irene Harsha. They have always

Area Garbage Piling Up

Charlevoix County's trash problems may be buried soon.

However, much depends on whether or not local townships and municipalities go along with a county-wide solid waste program, nearly completed.

Department of Natural Resources officials say Charlevoix County has only one legal landfill, a privately owned facifity just outside of Charlevoix.

Larry Thornton of the DNR's Solid Waste Management Division says the remaining five other landfills are operating illegally without licensing.

But, he said the DNR hasn't closed them down because the county is involved in developing a solution to the problem.

"I guess we could be accused of violating our own laws," he continued.

No Licenses

But, Thornton says that his department is taking into consideration what local areas are attempting to do.

Governmental units operating without ficenses, according to Thornton, include East Jordan, Melrose, Boyne City, Boyne Falls and Beaver Island.

Almost a year past its deadline, Charlevoix County is one of many counties across Michigan attempting to wrap up its general plan for solid waste.

Under state law, all plans must meet present and future disposal needs through the year 1990 and be developed with participation from all townships and municipalities in the county.

However, because of personnel shortages at both the state and local levels many counties have been working under extended deadlines.

Worse yet, they project it will climb to 26,142 tons in 1980 and 32,789 by 1990.

Working on the county's trash problem has been Charlevoix County Planner William Mercer, who has nearly completed a 58-page document showing what can be done.

"We're going to be submitting it in June," he said about sending the report to the DNR for final approval.

"Everything looks pretty good in terms of getting additional information."

Mercer said Charevoix County's proposal was one of the last to be considered by the DNR because the state has had to consider those that have had grant applications tied in with them, otherwise those units would not get their federal monies.

"We definitely hope to have a plan done by mid-June," he continued. "Where we go after that is a good question."

Mercer was making reference to the fact that the state requires only that each county develop a solid waste management plan, but has no provisions for enforcing the plan once completed.

No Problems

Theoretically, the DNR says there should be no problem with implementation of a plan since it was jointly put together with the cooperation of all governmental units.

However, realizing the apparent loophole in the law, the Michigan Legislature established the Resource Recovery Act in December.

The new act established an 11-member commission that will be empowered to review cases where local governmental units have failed to implement their solid waste management plans after two years.

"It's kinda a backdoor approach," admits Thornton, but he says it will give the state some clout in overseeing solid waste management.

Keeping in mind that many local units will not be able to maintain their facilities, Mercer said Charlevoix County's plan was geared to making it convenient for as many people as possible.

Central Landfill

The county proposes to have on-site transfer units, where people could deposit their trash where they do now and then it would be taken to one central landfill.

"The reorganization is kind of expensive initially, but in the long run I think they will support themselves.

At this point, Mercer said the county is proposing that either a private company do the hauling or perhaps several units could get together in buying a vehicle.

"It's rather loosely structured because we would like to give the local unit the option of deciding what is best for them," Mercer said.

Mercer said he was also excited about a proposal being made by an Onaway car crushing firm, who is suggesting that two or three times a year they come and take away junk cars brought to the site.

The county planner said the company will submit its proposal June 5.

The county site is proposed to be located in Eveline Township, where the Charfevoix Garbage Service already runs its operation.

Final Decision Rests With President

Employees Getting Axed

Some or all of the approximately 105 Comprehensive Employment Act (CETA) employees in Charlevoix County may get "pink slipped' June 30.

All persons working in the County under (CETA) Title II will soon be advised that funding for this program terminates June 30.

Clarence F. Rabach, Public Program Administrator, has asked all agencies with CETA employees to make this fact known.

According to Rabach, "A new program will be started but there is no certainty at this time what job slots will be refunded."

Alton Shipstead, Jr. regional administrator of the 10-county Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium, told the Courier he is asking Public Program Administrators in all 10 counties to let workers know these are not permanent jobs so they will not be surprised when and if their employment is terminated.

As of last week President Ford had not signed a $6 billion bill for n number of government employment programs, of which CETA accounts for over $1.6 billion.

Although the CETA funds are in the amount requested by the President, he said to consider the total $6 billion amount in the bill too high. It is the possibility of a prosidential veto that is causing present concern about continuance of CETA funding, according to Shipstead.

Shipstead will appear before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners at their June meeting to speak about the CETA program.

A representative from the Lansing office of CETA will be in Charlevoix this Thursday and Friday to review the county program and visitsome of the employing agencies.

Here are reactions on whether we need more tennis courts in Charlevoix? This week we would like to know what you think about our downtown parking. Do We Need more? Call the Hotline and let us know. The Hotline number is 547-6559.

Not Enough Courts

I'm tired of waiting in line after work to use the city courts. Why can't the high school build its own courts for the high school tennis team to use. I'm a taxpayer and it doesn't seem fair that I should have to wait for the high school to use them first.

Build More Elsewhere

I have noticed that Petoskey seems to have plenty of courts. Why can't we apply for more federal money to get courts like they have. Many families here are getting interested in tennis and I think we should consider getting more for public use. Plenty of money is spent for golfers, so why can't we spend some for tennis players.

Proper Regulation

I believe that we have plenty of courts with those we have. The only reason we have any problem at all is because there is no proper regulation of the time on these courts, if should be run by appointment with the city and school needs taking priority. This could be easily done by the golf course attendant at half hour intervals which would eliminate hoarding and the lines of waiting tennis buffs.

Appreciates Help

I want to say something about Petoskey Ford last week when they helped me. I had put my hand brake on here in Charlevoix and drove all the way to Petoskey with it on without realizing it and then when I got up there I reafized it so I went over to Petoskey Ford and they fixed it for me with no charge. Thank you.

Platinum has Interesting and Lengthy History! (PART 3)

Today, the major sources of platinum for the Western World are Canada and the Rustenburg district of South Africa. In 1923, a 60 mile "reef," or vein, of platinum bearing rock was found in South Africa, the following year even richer deposits were found in Rustenburg. Platinum was used for currency in Russia from 1828 to 1845 in three, six and twelve-ruble denominations.

John Reusch

At in st time, its actual value was about $7.15 an ounce. Today, it sells for nearly $200 an ounce.

Although archeologists have discovered examples from earlier civilizations, platinum became fashionable for jewelry only in the last fifty years. The increasing popularity of precious white metals, shown by the rising demand for white gold, has renewed interest in the harder, more durable qualities of platinum for jewelry.

PETE CULVER OF Charlevoix and Dave Oster of Boyne Falls made this unusual find last week. They estimate there are some 75 morels in this cluster.

Local Restaurant Asks For Restroom Relief

Charlevoix's public toilet problem apparently will be solved by the installation of a new lock.

Last week, Charlevoix City Council learned that tourists have been having problems getting into the public toilets located next to the Chamber of Commerce after 5 p.m. because the door was locked.

Worse yet, the locked door apparently has caused visitors to seek relief at a local restaurant and caused the owners some grief.

But all that should be coming to an end, according to City Administrator Robert Wexstaff, who says the city will be replacing the locks on the public restrooms so visitors won't need a key from the Chamber.

The public facilities have required a key during the off-season because of the low amount of usage and high level of vandalism, both Wexstaff and the chamber office report.

But, once the tourists start coming into the area they leave them unlocked until 9 p.m.–a practice that has been going on for several summers.

Meanwhile, the locked restrooms have caused problems for the owners of Leutheuser's restaurant, according to a letter sent to council last week.

"Although we have our very much used beautiful City Park and also considerable parking area in downtown Charlevoix between Park and Mason Streets, our City Fathers seem to have forgotton to install restrooms to accommodate the users of this facility," Heinz and Renee Leutheuser wrote recently.

While they say they have been plagued with an increasing number of non-customers at their restaurant using their restrooms.

"This is happening because of lack of proper accommodations maintained by the city," they charged in their letter.

With the increasing utility cost of water and sewage, the Leutheusers said it has become grossly expensive to provide lavatory service.

"Many times during the summer months, we have people waiting for us in the morning to unlock our doors in order for them to use our restroom facilities for cleanup," they write.

"This is mostly caused by overnight parking of campers and other sleep-in vehicles on Round Lake. Also, boaters dock close to us avail themselves to this service."

The Leotheusers estimate their additional expenses for the 1974 summer season between $800 and $1,000.

Charlevoix City Councilmen referred the letter to committee.

Government Gobble-De-Gook

Governmental gobble-de-gook has overtaken private industry if we read a notice posted in the County Building correctly.

On a letter head of the Canteen Service of Northern Michigan appears the following message:

"Over the past several months you may have noticed that the selection of candy bars in our machines has been limited.

"The cause of this limited selection is 3-fold: (1) The major candy manufacturers (Peter Paul, M&M, Mars, Hershey's, Nestle's, etc.) have increased their price on the .15 vending bars. (2) The major manufacturers have reduced the size of their .15 vending bars. (3) More recently the major manufacturers have discontinued production of their .15 bars.

"In addition, the remaining manufacturers of .15 candy bars have increased their cost and are in the process of eliminating the .15 vending bar.

"Very shortly, these secondary manufacturers will be introducing .20 vending bars only. Canteen in the near future will increase their price of their vending candy bars to .20.

"Canteen, because of this change to .20 vending bars, will be able to offer to its accounts greater SELECTIVITY, increased size and better QUALITY of its vending candy bars."

What's This...Summer?

By PEG OHLE

Summer has come to Charlevoix. Last week the temperature reached the high eighties as leaves and flowers burst forth.

The annual trash pick-up has been completed so streets and parkways are neat and clean.

Local merchants have received their summer stock and are decorating shop windows with bright reminders of days to come.

Clothing stores are showing the casual wear so popular in this area in an endless variety of styles and color. There are tops and bottoms, separates and coordinates, in easy-to-care-for fabrics to fit in with any wardrobe.

Charlevoix seems to be partial to red, white and blue colors, according to one merchant, so there are plenty of garments in those combinations. The usual summer yellows, blues, greens and whites are on display along with peach, a new culor favorite this year.

Play clothes are abundant. There are swim suits for everyone, some of which are reversible for a change of color or pattern. There are tennis outfits and clothes for golfing and bonting and fun hats to go with them.

For the more sophisticated woman there is a nice selection of easy-look dresses and pants suits to accessorize with scarves and jewelry.

Men's shops are almost as bright as the women's this summer season. Almost every color, in either pastel or bright shades, is being shown for wear, in our resort area. Fabrics are usually wash and wear in knit or woven textures.

Gift shops are showing new lines of items tu brighten homes and boats and hardware stores are luring gardeners with hoes and shovels, roto-tillers and power lawn mowers.

The vegetable seed business is good in Charlevoix this year, and so are sales of vegetable plants. Some fruit jars are available but separate jar lids are nowhere to be found, leaving the gardener who has hoed, roto-tilled and planted wondering if he will be able to preserve his crops.

Spurting good dealers are proudly displaying their lines of fishing, boating, golfing and tennis equipment for those luckey enough to get away from gardening chores.

Seasonal restaurants have not yet opened up but the year-around establishments are busy with early vacatiuners.

The bridge across the channel is going up and down more often as boats ure leavlng winter storage for the maiden trips of the season. Sea gulls are plentiful and seem to welcome the traffic.

The "Beaver Islander" motor ship is making its daily trips to and from the Emerald Isle carrying supplies, boats, automobiles, and people after the long winter's layoff.

Area golf coorses are well manicured and as green as they will be any time this year.

There's No Need to Tell Fish Stories Anymore

By Sara Gay Dammana

Whether casting a miniature artificial fly at the end of a hair-fine line or trolling a silver spoon from heavy wire line at depths of 100 feet, there's enough variety of fishing in Charlevoix County to suit all tastes.

The thrill of bringing home the limit (3) of ten pound Lake Trout from Lake Michigan can be no greater than the explosion of joy on the face of a young angler with a small scrappy blue gill testing his skill on one of the county's 20 inland lakes.

Lake trout fishing has been good for the last two or three weeks. It's been hot from Norwood to Northport, trolling at depths of 80 to 120 feet. They are also doing well off Charlevoix's North Point and Nine Mile Point in Little Traverse Bay," Keller reports.

STEVE SWAN

"Within a week or two, the lake trout should be up shallow, in 8 to 15 inches of water," Keller continues.

When the lake trout come up the fishing from Charlevoix's pier heads will be good. This occurance is something Keller points to with pride, as it enables fishermen without boats or deep water trolling equipment to participate in lake trout fishing.

The pier fishing spree usually lasts two or three weeks, then the trout start deep again, staying in water temperatures around 50 degrees Fahrenheit.

By mid-Aogust lake trout go as deep as 120 to 180 feet, according to Keller.

As the trout move out, Charlevoix's charter fleet follows. Fishermen in search of the trout are guided with such expertise they are all but guaranteed a catch.

Some six charterboats fish out of Charlevoix., providing the customer with everything he needs for the trip, for about $35 per person for a 5-hour stint. (Local sporting goods stores and the Chamber of Commerce can provide information on charters).

Many people prefer shallower water fishing, with lighter equipment than the wire lines used in lake trout fishing. Those who fish with the light equipment will argue vehemently that they are the sportier fishermen, testing their skill with 6 pound test lines against 10 pound trout.

There's an abundance of good fishing in the area for trollers, bait drowners and the elite corps of fly casters.

Steelhead, which are not biting at the moment because they are about to spawn, will be the prey of trullers in shallow water within the next few weeks, in Lakes Michigan and Charlevoix.

Keller reports brown trout fishing is good now, in Lake. Charlevoix between the boat launching ramp (by Irish's marina) and the railroad bridge.

Both Swan and Keller extoll the quality of fishing in Lake Charlevoix.

The list of good fish available in the lake Is staggering: ruinbow trout, brown trout, lake trout (all stocked by the DNR), small mouth bass, rock bass, walleyes, northern pikes, muskellunge, steelhead trout and Atlantic salmon.

The Atlantic salmon story is thrilling in itself. Since 1972, the Boyne River, at the south end of Lake Charlevoix, has been set aside for planting of these famous fighting fish. Yoong Atlantics were trucked from Qoebec, uriginally planted in both the Boyne and the Au Sable Rivers. Now only the Boyne River is receiving the planted fish. The hope is to create a sumuner long fishing experience, as these fish, unlike other salmon, are in the streams and biting in shallow water during the summer months.

In order to protect the success of this experiment, fishermen are required to use flies only on the Boyne River; and all catch must be released.

"One cannot distinguish easily between Atlantic salmon and brown trout," Swan explains. "Since there are brown troot in the Boyne, to avoid confusion and protect the Atlantic salmon, these regulations will be enforced."

Local fishermen have policed themselves, Swan says. Bot DNR officers will be watching the river this summer, too, he adds.

"If there's too much fishing pressure on the Boyne, we may have to close the river," Swan warns.

He adds, the DNR will ask people to use barbless hooks as an added precaution, so

Few Attend City Budget Hearing

Charlevoix City Council breezed through a public hearing on the city's budget for 1975-76 last week.

In fact, no one except for a few members of the press attended the Tuesday hearing to discuss the budget.

This year's approved $158,400 budget represents a 10 percent hike over last year's $145,400.

Included with this year's figure is $75,000 in revenue sharing that was run through a separate account the previous year.

Earlier, Mayor Ed Hansen said the budget represents about a 10 percent hike in almost all categories, with the primary increase in street work.

Last year, the city had budgeted for streets, but didn't do all the work planned.

Proposed street projects include Antrim, Pine River Lane, East Dixon, May and Cherry Streets.

There are no proposed cuts in either city personnel or staff in the budget approved unanimously by council.

Major general fund expenditures include $45,000 for major streets, $42,000 for local streets, $97,800 for police, $50,200 for fire; $60,000 for parks and recreation, $23,550 for city administrator, $21,400 for ambulance and $16,600 for common council.

The budget anticipates $216,000 from local property taxes collected at .009 mills.

Other major soorces of revenue include state revenue sharing ($74,200) and charges for services $35,600.

Following the hearing, council approved salaries for non-union city personnel.

Among those approved were John Curtis, fire chief, $9,580; Jack Mol, police chief, $11,700; Lloyd Kuebler, waste water treatment plant administrator, $11,750.

Mayor Hansen said the increases coincide with the 25-cent an hour raise recently given to union employees.

Also approved were recommendations from the city salary conumission for the city clerk at $9,737 and city treasurer at $8,847.

U of M Expert Discusses Elderly Care

PEG OHLE

Years ago old people who had families were cared for by them, but through the years their care has becrne more and more of a public responsibility.

Dr. Natalie Trager of the University of Michigan's Institute of Gerontology cited changes made through the years at the monthly meeting of the Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging advisory council held last Thorsday at the Weathervane Inn.

Public care for the senior citizen is not new, Dr. Trager said, citing "poor laws" in Massachusetts as far back as 1638, when people were paid by the colony for foster home care for aged poor.

"We have had foster homes and foster care paid for by public funds all through the history of the United States," Dr. Trager added.

She also stated that during the depression years, older needy people received $10 to $15 a month as a government subsidy. Since then have come many other services for such persons, including Medicaid and Medicare. The Older Americans Act of 1965 provided the vehicle for state, regional and local Commissions on Aging.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging, founded last year, has been concentrating its efforts on n nutrition program, and providing bus service for area senior citizens.

Through the nutrition program, lunches are being served certain days of the week in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan.

During the first four months of 1975, 3,396 meals were served through the program and inexpensive bus transportation furnished to an ever-increasing number uf senior citizens.

The Charlevoix County Commission on Aging is part of the 10-county region making up the Northwest Michigan Area Agency on Aging. Four representatives from the County Commission, Margaret Behrens of Boyne City, Verne Whiteford of East Jordan, Mary Margaret Geiken of Charlevoix and nutrition project director Art Saworski attended last week's meeting to hear Dr. Trager talk and to conduct other business of the Northwest Agency advisory council.

Officers elected for the coming year were Harold Marsh, Manistee County, president; Paul Burnett, Central Lake, vice-president; and Rose Mary Ternes, Petoskey, secretary-treasurer.

Charlevoix County Will Get Free Maps and Brochures

Chnrlevoix County will have a new map and brochure this summer, and it won't cost the County a dime.

It will be a year-round brochure contnining information about each community in the County, locating recreational areas and listing things to see and do, etc.

The map and brochure will be paid for by advertising revenue instead of County funds, amounting to several thousands of dollars in the past. Little Traverse Printing Company of Petoskey received the bid for printing and will sell the advertising.

Editorials/Opinions

Hearing Attendance Shows City Apathy

Charlevoix City Council shouldn't expect to get much flack next year over their expenditures after last week's disappointingly low budget hearing turnout.

We have constantly heard that the city has been spending unwisely and should be doing this and that.

Yet when it came down to the brass tacks, we heard no response from local citizenry.

It seems ironic that one of the most important moves made by the city each year, the spending of your tax dollars, is received with apathy.

We feel the city did more than expected this year in making sure that Charlevoix residents were informed on how they plan to spend money.

However, except for a few media members, no one was present to see or ask about the proposed budget.

Rails Still Alive

Within the budget, we were glad to see that the city plans to spend more money this year for repair of local streets. Many of them are in sad shape and in desperate need of being fixed.

Continued interest in Michigan's railroad situation last week by Michigan Governor William Milliken and the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation was welcome news.

While much has been written and said about proposed Michigan rail abandonment, we are glad to finally see more than rehetoric.

Governor Milliken, along with a Michigan Delegation, presented the Federal Railroad Administration with a first phase of Michigan Rail Plan.

In the plan, the governor and transportation department sharply criticize a federal proposal to abandon almost half of the state's rail tackage.

Although state criticism of the federal abandonment proposal is not new, the news they brought back from Washington is.

State officials indicate that there is some hope for saving Michigan rails.

We feel this is particularly good news for Northern Michigan because we think rail service is vital to our economy.

We were pleased to notice in the 40-page state plan that they agree the rails provide a special transportation need for our agricultural and lumber industries.

They also pointed out the populous sections of Michigan, such as Charlevoix, must not be deprived of the opportunity to grow and prosper because of "ill-conceived pruning of the State's rail network."

This plan looks far more encouraging than the earlier Michigan Railroad Needs planning report put out by the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation.

The battle of saving Michigan railroads will not be over for some time.

We feel it is important to continue working towards saving Michigan rail service and urge you to write both state and federal legislative representatives to let them know you are interested.

Letting down your guard now, may cost us dearly in the future.

Varnum Appreciated

We were sorry to learn last week that Charlevoix County Prosecutor Harvey Varnum is stepping down from a post he has held for almost 18 years.

Varnum said he was resigning because of the press of his private business.

The county prosecutor also noted there is an increasing amount of work in the prosecutor's office.

We think that Varnum has given Charlevoix County many good years of public service.

Being in only a part-time capacity, Varnum has done more than his share in ensuring that justice has been served here.

For the Courier, the county prosecutor has extended himself on several occasions to make sure that freedom of the press was allowed.

We have appreciated working with him and we think his absence from public office will be noticed.

It is also commendable that he has decided to give the county enough notice so that the proper steps can be taken to find a suitable replacement.

We think the caseload in Charlevoix County has climbed enough for the county to consider hiring a full-time prosecutor.

Varnum, himself, has admitted on several occasions that the number of laws he is now responsible for enforcing demand far more time than in years past.

We have been fortunate to have a prosecutor that has been willing to put in the extra hours on a part-time basis. However we think now is the time to get a full-time person.

Court Thanks Courier

Dear Ken:

Your editorial of April 24th meant a great deal to those of us who had the privilege to work with Justice Kavanagh, and I know it will be much appreciated by his children and grandchildren.

Your editorial is a reflection of the high degree of professionalism and integrity that was evidenced by you and the other members of your organization during the difficulty over access to certain court records that resulted in my visit.

Thanks very much.

Clarifies Stadium Position

Editor:

So often, while we are in northern Michigan, we hear misinformation being quoted and misquoted and so the stories go on and on.

This letter to the editor in the Oakland Press says it so much better than I could, I thought your readers would welcome the facts.

Sincerely,
Alice Reitmeyer

Pontiac stadium facts

Since both the Detroit Lions and Pontiac Stadium Authority appear either unable, or unwilling, to defend themselves against the numerous false statements concerning the so-called "state subsidy" and road improvement in connection with the new Pontiac stadium, allow me to be their friend in court.

While I can forgive the public for thinking the $800,000 annual state grant to the stadium authority represents a subsidy from Michigan taxpayers, I cannot excuse news media for referring to it in the context. For they know, and the public should know, that this money comes from an increase in the state's take from parimutuel betting at Michigan horse tracks, not from tax funds.

The state's take from betting was increased specifically for the purpose of providing a source of revenue for the illfated downtown Detroit sports stadium and the Pontiac stadium. In effect, it was a solemn promise from the State Legislature to provide that amount each year, and Pontiac proceeded to build the stadium, relying to a great extent on that pledge.

Hazel Park and Livonia also are the beneficiaries of some of the funds derived from that legislative bill, and Detroit would have been had it not shelved its stadium proposal for reasons that are too numerous to mention here. So it is not, I repeat, is not, Michigan taxpayers' money that is subsidizing the Pontiac stadium. It is horseplayer's money, and Michigan taxpayers actually are benefitting from the funds, too, since a large portion which might have gone to help finance the Detroit stadium now goes instead into the state's general fund.

But a lie told often enough is soon believed, and one must fault the news media for not having corrected this impression long ago.

As for the proposed improvement in roads around the Pontiac stadium, here, too, the stadium authority and the Lions have been victimized by a less-than-honest appraisal of this proposal. It has been common practice for state and county funds to be used to improve highways and access roads to major commercial projects. The Pontiac stadium is not a commercial project but a community project. Witness Northland, Eastland, numerous office, shopping center and industrial complexes in Wayne and Oakland counties. So why should the Pontiac stadium be treated any differently, particularly when it will serve as a fine new facility for the residents of Oakland County and all of southeastern Michigan?

The 1976 schedule for the new stadium reveals that of 32 events scheduled, the Lions will account for only 10, or perhaps less, so it is hardly being built solely for their use, although their willingness to play there obviously served as a catalyst for its construction.

I suspect Bill Ford has done more for Detroit in his own quiet way than all of his detractors combined, and it's a shame he has to serve as a whipping boy for a lot of ill-informed critics, the news media included.

–Regardless of arbitrary 12-mile or 200-mile territorial limits and the location off-shore islands within them or beyond them;

–Regardless of Congress' new insistence that it must have a voice in the president's war-making powers, because such powers were so badly abused in Vietnam.

–Regardless of the lives lost and the injuries sustained by American fighting men:

I believe President Ford took the only honest course open to him when he ordered the recapture of the merchant vessel Mayaguez which had been pirated by the Khmer Rouge. To have acted otherwise would have left not only Ford but the entire nation open to the scorn and intimidation of every two-bit principality around the world.

Remember, the Mayaguez was not another Pueblo, the American spy ship captured by the North Koreans in 1968. The Mayaguez was a merchantman, transporting all kinds of non-millitary commodities between the perfumed ports of the Far East.

If the United States had let the Mayaguez incident pass without prompt and effective action, the entire U.S. merchant fleet would be up for grabs among the pirates of the world.

Furthermore, the Khmer Rouge forces which seized the vessel are not your run-of-the-mill Trotskyites. They are supposed to be Communists, but they even told the Russians to go home after they took control of the Combodian government in April. Then, to the horror of the world, they began to behead their political opponents and members of their families.

There is absolutely no comparison between the Khmer Rouge and the highly civilized, gentlemanly troops from the north now occupying Saigon.

The recapture of the Mayaguez probably went a long way toward restoring some of the prestige the United States lost during the long and humiliating years of the Vietnam War.

Why don't you send President Ford a little thank-you note? His address is 1600 Pennsylvania-ave., Washington, D.C.

HAVE YOU noticed how many songbirds around this spring?

There are so many of them chirping and warbling outside our bedroom window that it is virtually impossible to sleep much past 4 a.m.

I even happened upon a cardinal one day last week down near the foot of Prospect-st. I hadn't seen a cardinal since moving to northern Michigan.

Biologists tell us that the ban on DDT is finally having results. It seems the chemical had so weakened the shells of bird eggs that reproduction was becoming more and more difficult. Then Michigan banned DDT and although it has taken a few years our bird population seems to be on the move again.

+++

AND HAVE you ever seen so many ducks in town? A handsome pair of mallards was paddling around the puddle at the end of our driveway one day last week

We also have seen pairs of them strutting up and down Dixon-ave. and waddling around the courtyard at the Lodge like so many prospective tenants.

Probably the most mixed up duck in town was the female who laid her eggs in the window box at the County Bank — a good five feet off the ground.

While Bank President Gordon Wellman was mapping strategy on what-to-do-after-the-eggs-hatch, the eggs mysteriously disappeared.

NORTHERN Michigan also is infested with porcupines this spring — or maybe I should say it used to be. Every dawn barges a new crop of spiney carcasses along U.S. 31 between Charlevoix and Petoskey.

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

Have you found yourself sitting around with a serious case of the hohums? If so, get out your calendar and mark these dates! There are new and different happenings taking place in Charlevoix County and it would be a shame if you missed them.

Boyne City is starting their summer off with a women's slow pitch tournament scheduled for Friday evening, May 30, and Saturday, May 31, which will be held at the Boyne City High School athletic field. The playoffs will be held on Sunday, June 1, downtown at the Little League field. There will be two teams each from Boyne City, East Jordan, Charlevoix, and Petoskey. Best of all – there is no admission fee for spectators. Who knows? One of your friends might become a champ!

This tournament is being co-sponsored by the Boyne City Recreation Department and the Horizon Bicentennial Committee. A new, practice soft ball field has already been constructed by concerned citizens and Boy Scouts with the materials being donated for the backstop by Boyne Falls Log Homes.

The purpose of this tournament is to show the community how much interest there is in this kind of baseball, how much the facilities are needed, and to act as an incentive to get them developed.

East Jordan is planning the biggest Fourth of July festival they have seen in a long time. It is even going to be celebrated on the Fourth of July!! Besides the usual activities of the parade, fireworks, and games, they are planning on having a barbecue, a flea market / bazaar at the community building, and are inviting the Grand Ole Opry to come and perform. If you are the kind of person who appreciates good old-time country entertainment, head for East Jordan.

Boyne Falls is not to be out done by East Jordan's festival. Their village is celebrating their centennial the weekend of August 1,2, and 3. "Polish" is the password. The rodeo will be the highlight of the happenings, but there are so many activities being planned they are publishing a program of the weekend events. Be sure to pick one up so you won't miss anything you might be interested in.

Thank-you

Mr. Editor:

This is for the sixth grade teachers at the Charlevoix Middle School.

Dear Teachers:

Thank you so very much for taking so much time to plan, and make it possible for us to go to Greenfield Village. We had a blast! Thanks to: Mrs. Wendt, Mr. Evans, Mr. Sootyard, Mrs. Bump and Miss Wagner.

Nothing Personal, Please

The day after one of our ships was missing, U.S. Senator James Buckley was on TV urging a "clinical bombing" of Cambodia.

Clinical? Most viewers probably let that adjective slide by without question. After all, Sen. Buckley is the brother of William Buckley, the erudite columnist and TV personality who is always saying things no one understands. But he looks fearfully intelligent while he says them and Johnny Carson genuflects at every apostrophe. If William Buckley's brother says a bomb can be clinical, most people are going to figure he knows what he is talking about, even if he is a senator.

But I have a sticky ear, probably the result of an early boxing by my parents who hoped I would grow up to invent the electric light. (If you don't understand this paragraph, you never saw Mickey Rooney sell sandwiches in a railroad car. William Buckley isn't the only erudite columnist.)

Anyway, "clinical" created a clog in my ear. Just what in hell is a clinical bomb?

My immediate reaction was that it is a contradiction in terms. Bombs destroy; clinics repair.

An anti-tank missile is aimed at a tank. A clinical bomb might be aimed at a clinic, further maiming the wounded, killing the sick, and creating hopeless havoc in Bookkeeping where the extend of Blue Cross-Blue shield coverage would have to be determined in triplicate while the clinical bombs fell. All is fair in war. (All used to be fair in love, too, but that was before the toupee and the padded bra.)

But certainly Sen. Buckley was not recommending the Red Cross be used as a bullseye. I made an apt turn to my American Heritage dictionary. After wading through all the medical definitions of clinical, I discovered this possibility: to be clinical also means to be "highly objective." And, a few pages over, it said to be objective is to be "uninfluenced by emotion or personal prejudice."

That must be what Sen. Buckley means.

The U.S. should be cool when it drops the bombs on Cambodia. Not angry; not happy. No emotion at all. Nothing personal. Think of strategic targets, not soft people.

If that's his idea, Sen. Buckley has not suggested anything new. That's how we bombed in Cambodia the first time, remember?

In fact, the Pentagon and the White House were so unemotional about the earlier bombing of Cambodia, they were comatose. Nixon and the generals thought the bombing was such an unexciting nonevent it really wasn't worth talking about. Those clinical bombs dropped for a year and the people paying for them don't know about it. Neither did most of Congress. Not even the Secretary of the Air Force knew what his planes were doing. That's clinical cool, man.

Sen. Buckley is not asking too much. It is easy to be clinical from behind a cloud, or from behind a desk. Just push the button and fly away to cocktail hour. No emotional involvement. Clinical bombing is something like kissing your ugly cousin: peck and run and forget it.

Down on the ground with the cousins, of course, it's a little more difficult not to become emotinnally involved. A clinical bomb might destroy your home, kill your child, or blow off your leg. Nothing personal, of course, but it's hard not to cry.

It's hard not to cry.

Meet Charlevoix

Dwight 'Ike' Boss

Dwight "Ike" Boss was hired last week as recreation direction for the city of Charlevoix. He succeeds Curt Kipke, who was dismissed after a salary controversy. Boss is a 29-year-old native of Charlevoix, 1963 graduate of Charlevoix High School and majored in physical education and elementary education at Spring Arbor College.

For the past six years Boss has been employed as a coach and sixth grade teacher in the Ellsworth Community School. He will be paid $4,000 a year for full-time summer work and part-time fall, winter and spring work organizing, scheduling and generally overseeing activities of the recreation department while continuing his duties in Ellsworth. Boss, his wife Joyce and three-year-old daughter Melissa live in Charlevoix Township

COURIER: Have you had any previous experience in recreation programs?

BOSS: Yes, I was assistant to Denu Davenport in 1972 when he was recreation director here.

COURIER: What will be some of your first actions?

BOSS: We are going to try to take care of the tennis situation -- courts -- by charging a small fee, probably 50 cents an hour per court. This money will be used to hire people to look after the courts. We will set up a Junior Softball League for boys 13 to 17 who are not playing baseball. We also plan on u Peanut League for boys 9 through 12 and a T-Ball league for boys 6 to 8. There will also be a Peppermint Patty League for girls 6 to 8. Slo-Pitch for men and women and the women's Pony Tail League have already been set up.

COURIER: What about swimming?

BOSS: We also have to set-up the swimming program. In this, we will hire Charlevoix people as much as possible for lifeguards and instructors.

COURIER: Any other summer activities?

BOSS: We want to have as much recreation as the people of the city want. We will put out questionnaires and run anything that's self-supporting. We should mention that the city is planning on lighting the second softball diamond so we can play later in the evening.

COURIER: What are your plans for the fall?

BOSS: We hope to carry on the Flag Football program for young boys, basketball and volleyball for men and women. From then on we will have to give it a lot of thought. We want input from everybody about what they want.

COURIER: How can the people help the recreation program?

BOSS: Right now we need coaches for the Junior Softball League, the Peanut League and the T-Ball League. We also need sponsors for the Junior League and the Peanut League.

COURIER: Where can you be reached by anyone wanting to help?

BOSS: They can call me at City Hall or at my home. My home phone number is 547-9658.

Erma Bombeck — Parents

They're called Stepparents.

They arrive on the parental scene too late for the beginning of your life and too early for the end of it.

It's a blind date between a child whose "real father" was a cross between John Wayne and Big Bird ("real mother" a composite of Ann-Margret and the Flying Nun) and a fledging parent who visualized a grateful Cinderella. (Or Oliver).

It's a twilight zone where the Brady bunch makes it look easy and the reality assures you it isn't.

It's an instant do-it-yourself parent kit stocked with hostility, bitterness, compromise, unsureness, jealousy, pride, love and determination.

"On a bad day it's slammed doors, whispers on "the telephone, eyeball-to-eyeball confrontation and tearful "You're not my mother!" (Father)

On a good day it's a gentle arm around your shoulder, a clumsy compliment, eyes that say I understand, and shared laughter that you thought would never come again.

All the ways of saying "I love you" for natural parents don't work for the stepparent.

"What time are you coming home?"

"Take your coat."

"No, you cannot go down the Ohio River on a raft."

"Go to bed. It's late."

It's a war and that's an invasion . . . a crossing of the parent boundary line by a stepparent.

They constitute one of the largest unorganized groups in this country. They have no special interest groups or lobbyists working for them. They hold no regular meetings, nor do they pay dues. They conduct no bake sales and carry no membership cards in their billfolds. That alone should make them unique.

Heaven forbid that anyone think I am suggesting a special day to honor stepparents. On the contrary, I would like to suggest we do away with the word altogether. (Along with senior citizen, gross, brussels sprouts and All Sales Final!)

Parenthood is not necessarily a side effect from giving birth. Some are good at it and some are lousy. Real parenthood is the one who is there to care.

Rock'n Roll Concert Appearing in July

Wasp Productions, Inc., a Lansing based promotion firm has announced it will present a weekend of pop entertainment at the Traverse City Glacier Dome on July 5 and 6.

Headlining the two shows on July 5th will be The Four Tops, formerly of Motown fame and now with ABC Dunhill records in Los Angeles. Billed with the Tops that evening will be special guest star Chubby Checker, "King of the Twist". Show times are at 7 p.m. and 10:30 p.m.

Then on Sunday, July 6 the "Salute to Rock 'N' Roll" continues. Featured entertainers are the British rock group Herman's Hermits, The Drifters, Danny and the Juniors, and reappearing Sunday will be Chubby Checker.

showtimes for July 6th will be 5 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Tickets for each night's "Salute to rock 'N' Roll" are available for $5.50 and $6.50 and are now on sale at Carey's Boot Shop in Charlevoix, Kurtz Music and Sound, Walker Music, and the Glacier Dome in Traverse City, and Johnson Clothing in Cadillac.

Looking for Graduation Gift Ideas?

June is not only the month of brides, it is the month of graduates.

Charlevoix High School graduation ceremonies will be held this coming Sunday afternoon and other schools and colleges are awarding diplumas this time of year.

The problem of what to give a young person as a graduation gift can often be answered by the graduate's needs and likes and future plans. The amount of money to be spent spent for the gift is also a determining feature.

Many shops in Charlevoix have items in many price ranges that would be excellent for graduation giving.

Some of the articles spotted along Bridge Street that would fill the bill are typewriters, pocket calculators, dictionaries, cassette players, radios and pocket cameras.

There are also binoculars, photograph albums, hunting guns, fishing equipment, camping equipment, boat accessories, radios, tape recorders, stereo systems, head phones, portable TV's and ear tape decks.

Old stand-bys such as watches and pen and pencil sets are plentiful as are shaving kits, travel make-up kits, manicure sets, cosmetics, perfumes and jewelry. Some of the more popular articles of jewelry are charm bracelets and charms, personalized and hand painted pieces, identification band and bill clips.

For the college-bound grudute who is looking forward to furnish a dorm room there is an endless number of suggestions, from hanging planters to alarm clocls.

Some clothes are the answer, and all up and down Bridge Street the shops have a fine selection of ready-to-wear articles for both men and women. Casual clothes in wash and wear or drip dry fabrics are most popular with young people.

If none of the above suggestions rings a bell, a new automobile or boat would probably be gratefully received by this year's graduate.

Charlevoix Gets Special Visitor

And Charlevoix learned last week that it's no different from other small towns after it got a chance to compare notes with Otsego, located just north of Kalamazoo.

The two towns exchanged officials last Monday and compared notes how each was able to resolve problems popping up in their communities.

The exchange was a part of Michigan Week with Mayor Ed Hansen and Councilman George Plumm travelling to Otsego with their wives, while Otsego Commissioner Bernard Gilliland came with his wife to Charlevoix.

There may have been a lot of ceremony with Exchange Day, but there were also some serious observations made on how each community operates.

"It was very interesting to compare notes on how the two cities are run," said former Councilwuman Jeannine Wallace.

Mrs. Wallace arranged the visit and accompanied the two Otsego visitors and Charlevoix Police Chief Jack Mol during their two-day stay in Charlevoix.

Gilliland arived Sonday afternoon, when he and his wife, Helen, were greeted and welcomed at The Lodge by Mrs. Wallace.

Beginning first thing Monday, after breakfast at Leotheusers, Mrs. Wallace and Mol took the couple on a general toor of the city.

Then it was on to the DNR Fisheries Station for a tour, followed by a visit to Charlevoix City Hall

In the afternoon, after lunch with several city and school officials at the Weathervane, the couple were escorted through the Coast Guard Cutter Sundew by Commander Roger Rozaoski.

Following that tour, Richard Krueger gave them a tuur of the Charlevoix Area Hospital. Then Joe McPhillips of McPhillips Flying Service showed the couple Charlevoix from an airplane.

In the evening, the Gilliland's were welcomed by the city at a special social followed by dinner at the Grey Gables.

After dinner, Gilliland was presented with a key to the city and gavel from Shipwreck Furniture.

He said his city's major project at this time is the installation of a new drinking water system.

The retired factory sales representative added that one of Otsego's proudest achievements is their city's fire department, operating jointly with a neighboring township. The department has eight trucks.

"I found it interesting that a city of 4,000 has similar problems," Mrs. Wallace said after spending two days with the Otsego visitors.

Mrs. Wallace said that after meeting with Gilliland, she was convinced Charlevoix needs a city charter.

Former Resident Authors Book

By FRAN MARTIN

If you can't find what you want, don't grumble, do something about it.

With this thought in mind, five early elementary teachers at a Corpus Christi, Tex., Day School did exactly that...combined their talents and came up with "Kindergarten Kapers", a book designed to fill the resource gap now being published by the T.S.Dennison Co. of Minneapolis.

The idea for "Kindergarten Kapers" was born at the first Baptist Church Day School where all five teachers of four and five year old chidren were discussing the problem of coordinated materials relating to the various subjects they were teaching. After pooling their ideas, the project, like Topsy, grew until, at the end of seven months, they not only had a saleable item but a publisher.

In a recent letter to her parents, Mrs. Chapman said that the book never would have become a reality if the interested teachers had not represented a diversity of talents. For instance, one of the quintet wrote many of the poems and another put them to music as well as contributed stories. A third wrote many of the plays and handled the signing of forms and contracts. Still another did the illustrations and numerous other original creations.

Mrs. Chapman's contributions was handicrafts, utilizing such items as egg cartons, paper plates and other easily accessible and inexpensive items. "As you can readdy see, the book was truly a cooperative effort" Mrs. Chapman added.

The concept of the book is to take one topic and expand it into several mediums ..poems, stories, songs, finger plays, handicrafts and illustrations, "all original", she emphasized.

Mrs. Chapman went on to explain that everything correlates. "A first year teacher, with no materials, could take this book and use all the related things on each topic thus eliminating countless visits to the library in a search for such materials I know what a chore this was for me when I started. I'm sure teachers will appreciate what we have done", she continued.

Mrs. Robert Chapman

Before any of the material was accepted for the book, it was tested for interest, degree of ease or difficulty and the relevance it had for boys and girls. Only the material to which the majority of children responded favorably was included in the book, she explained. The testing force included six classes of approximately 100 children.

The size, style and format of the book is unknown to its authors at this time. However, they have been assured it will be out in the fall and included in the publisher's fall catalog. It may also be found in bookstores.

They're encouraged about the enduring quality of the material which, they feel, will be as timely 10 years from now as it is today.

After tasting success on their first endeavor, the quintet is considering a follow-up. "However, when we stop to think of the seven months of hard work Kindergarten Kapers" represents, we wonder if we want to go through all that again."

Mrs. Chapman is a graduate of Michigan State University and lived in Novatu, Calif., before moving to Corpus Christi in 1970. Mr. Chapman is director of grocery buying and merchandising for the H.E.B. Grocery chain in Texas. They have one son, Gary, eight-years-old.

David Willett at the Ellsworth cemetery.

The forsythia bushes, can be seen for a long way off this year, as they are a bright yellow from top to bottom. Wild cherry trees are loaded with blossom, and the dandelions, real pretty, against the velvety green grass.

During Recognition Ceremonies

Some 275 Students Get Sports Awards

Two hundred and seventy-five Charlevoix High School students, or more than 50 percent of the student body, received athletic awards Thursday night, Dale Burge, High School Athletic Director, told the large crowd that gathered at the high school gymnasium for the annual All-Sports Award night.

He went on to say that this number was growing steadily revealing the fact that students are interested and participating in the many programs now available to them.

He acknowledged, as did the coaches, the fine work being done by the Sports Boosters who have underwritten the cost of the equipment, plaques for all seniors, and numerous other items relating to the athletic program in the schools. He acknowledged, particularly, Jim Alger, president of the group, through whose efforts so much has been accomplished by the group. He also expressed his gratitude to all those who have supported the programs and made them possible.

He then introduced the various coaches who presented awards to students who participated in the various sports. Like Burge, each in turn, acknowledged the support given his or her sport.

Coaches and the awards each presented follow: Wrestling, Norman Probert; football, Don Carey; girls' volleyball and track - Mrs. Marie Osterberg; Cross Country, Burge in behalf of the coach, Dennis Carr; cheerleading, Bayle Kaczynski, basketball and golf, Barry Anderson; Skiing, William Murray; Tennis, Charles Wright, Boys track, Gary Stutzman, who announced he was retiring as track coach; Girls' basketball, Mrs. Toni Felter and senior awards, Burge.

Following the program, the Sports Boosters hosted a reception in the cafeteria honoring the athletes and their guests.

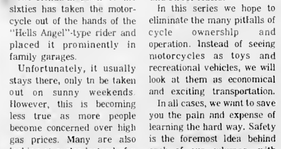
Tennis Talk



By CHUCK WRIGHT

Intelligent shot selection is the third essential ingredient to playing good doubles. With a good shot selection you can always be a competitive player in doubles.

The first two ingredients to good doubles is teamwork and making good use of angles. These were discussed in previous articles.

Many people try to overpower their opponents in doubles believing that this is the only way to win. Anyone who saw the World Champion Tennis doubles final two weeks ago, however, saw that both teams hit a tremendous variety of shots.

There is a definite place for power in doubles, of course, but there is an equal place for lobs, chops, slices and angles. Not only do you have to master these shots, you have to know when to use them.

For example, when you have your opponents scrambling in the back court, you should never hit a lob. Likewise, when you are scrambling and your opponents are at the net, you do not hit a slice.

A time and situation exists for all shots. The secret is knowing what shots apply to various situations. This knowledge comes only with experience and study. Know what shots you should theoretically hit and then go out and try them in games.

Here are some good shots to try in the right situation.

Assume your opponents are at the net. They hit a short shot that you have plenty of time to get to. Usually the correct shot to try is a hard drive down the middle.

You want the shot hard because this will give your opponents very little time to react at that short range. Down the middle is the correct spot because your opponents will be confused as to whose ball it is. They will either both go for it and collide or neither of them will try for it. When a hard shot is hit at close range, there is not enough time for anyone to call for it.

When you and your partner are caught out of position, hit a high, deep lob. This will allow you both to get back into position and stay in the point.

Assume and your partner are both at the net with your opponents deep in the backcourt. Your opponents try to blast a shot through. The correct shot is a drop shot. It is difficult to execute but extremely effective. Even if someone reaches it, they will be so out of position, you should have an easy putaway for your next shot.

Trying for winners down the line are not smart percentage shots in doubles. The only times you should try for the sidelines is when your opponents have left the alleys wide open. Even then you should give yourself a substantial margin of error.

Keep in mind two things when you consider your shot selection.

First, you do not want to beat yourself through careless mistakes. Plan your shots to be the smartest, highest percentage shots available in the situation.

Second, you want to keep your opponents off balance. Do not be too predictable in your shot selection. Make sure you have variety and utilize all the shots your ability allows.

Two Wheel Traveler

by Jon Hendra

The Honda invasion of the sixties has taken the motorcycle out of the hands of the "Hells Angel"-type rider and placed it prominently in family garages.

Unfortunately, it usually stays there, only to be taken out on sunny weekends. However, this is becoming less true as more people become concerned over high gas prices. Many are also looking at cycles instead of a second car because of high sticker costs.

There has been a lot written for cycle riders and dirt bikers, but very little for road and street riders.

In this series we hope to eliminate the many pitfalls of cycle ownership and operation. Instead of seeing motorcycles as toys and recreational vehicles, we will look at them as economical and exciting transportation.

In all cases, we want to save you the pain and expense of learning the hard way. Safety is the foremost idea behind each of our columns, with economy and comfort close behind. We hope to help both the commuter and tourer through the THE TWO WHEEL TRAVELER.

There's Plenty of Local Camping Available

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

Charlevoix County campgrounds are reflecting the early summer weather, anticipating a booming season.

Owner of the county's only private camp ground, Stewart Boal at Windmill Farms, on the Boyne City Rd., states that statewide private campground owners predict this summer will be busier than last, which was a record year.

"Because of the economy, people are going to stay close to home. They'll stay in Michigan instead of going to Europe or California," Boal explains.

"It costs $4 a night for a family, say of 5, to camp. If they stayed in a motel it could easily cost $50 a night," Boal points out. "Thus we expect a lot of business."

At Young State Park, on Lake Charlevoix, near Boyne City, one area is already bustling with campers.

"Our reservations are coming in steadily and we expect them to pick up even more," a spokesperson said.

Last year Young State Park had to turn away some 282 campers during the summer, because they were full to the brim.

Bells Bay State Forest Campground on Lake Michigan, south of Charlevoix, is extremely popular with local residents.

Bill Mittig, Area Forester, reports it was all but full to capacity by Thursday afternoon.

"We are almost always full on weekends and by July we are constantly full," Mittig observes.

"In the past few years we've seen a steady increase in use, of 10 percent or more a year.

"In State Forest campgrounds, this trend cannot continue, because we are just about at capacity now," Mittig concludes.

Bells Bay and the Beaver Island State Forest Campground are low density campgrounds, as are all State Forest sites.

This means the camp sites are well separated from each other, usually screened by trees.

There's no fee for camping at State Forest sites, but a 15 day total for any one campground per person, is strictly enforced.

Bells Bay's 44 sites, typify the setting of State Forest Campgrounds. Many individual camp sites are on or near the water, hiking trails wander off into the woods. The atmosphere is of old fashioned camping with fires crackling and a sense of aloneness with nature.

Young State Park has 300 sites and provides all facilities from electricity to flush toilets and showers.

The camp sites are closer together than in the state park system and such amenitites as a concession building and stores provide needed goods.

Last season at Young State Park the total attendance was 129,796 campers.

There's a $4 a day camping fee, plus a fee for motor vehicles. An annual sticker for cars if $5, which gains entrance to any Michigan state park. On a day-to-day rate, the fee is $1.

Wendel Willis who monages Whiting County Park, northwest of Boyne City, expects a busy season because Whiting Park has maintained its fee at $2.00 a night.

Whiting's 39 sites are spread out along the beach on Lake Charlevoix. There's a boat launching site and some docks for swimmers and fishermen.

Willis says that while Whiting does not take reservations for campsites, Whiting is almost fully booked for use of its recreation facilities and buildings for reunions and company picnics.

Whiting Park does not allow animals.

"I turn them away if they have pets," Willis says.

"I also turn them away if they want electricity. If they want to watch TV they might as well stay home," he says.

East Jordan Tourist Park, mainly a trailer park, at the junction of M-32 and M-66, offers all modern facilities to campers, as well as a playground, beach and boat slips.

Daily rates for tents, for which there are 38 sites, are $2.50. Trailers pay $3.50, but weekly, monthly and seasonal rates are available.

There are 90 trailers spots at the tourist park, 80 of which are held already by summer people who store their trailers on site for the winter.

Windmill Farms has daily and weekly rates for tenters and trailers, with electricity provided: $4 a day and $20 per week. Tenters who want rustic sites, more secluded and without electricity are charged $3.

The 50 camp sites are spread out over several hundred acres of rolling hills, valleys and wooded areas.

The camp ground has all facilities and the camping fee includes the privilege of using the swimming pool.

U.S. Coast Guard Honors Charlevoix Crewmen

U.S. Coast Guard Achievement Medals for outstanding achievement and superior performance of duty on 14 August 1974 were presented to Gregory A. Waller, Machinist Technician, Second Class, and Seamon Daniel Lee Blechel at a special ceremony held Wednesday at the Charlevoix Lifeboat Station.

Capt. William E. Lehr, Commanding Officer, U.S. Coast Guard Base Soo, made the presentation during a formal ceremony at the Lifeboat Station.

The pair, both attached to the local station at the time, were cited for their initiative timely display of leadership and decisiveness when coming on an accident near Grayling on the above date in which a U.S. Army officer was injured. The officer's National Guard jeep was overturned and the officer, who was found suffering from shock, bleeding profusely and dangling, unconscious, by his seat belt from the overturned vehicle.

After evaluating the situation which was threatened by the presence of spilled gasoline, Waller went to the aid of the injured man, applying pressure bandages, obtaining blankets and treating him for shock.

Bleehel, meantime, took action to organize National Guard personnel who seemed reluctant to approach the area because of the potential fire hazard from gasoline, directed them to obtain fire extinguishers, established a fire watch, re-routed traffic and kept onlookers from the immediate area.

Waller remained with the injured man until an ambulance arrived and transported him to the Grayling hospital.

Waller has since completed his enlistment in the Coast Guard and resides here. Bleehel is still attached to the Lifeboat Station here.

–Navy Fire Control Technician Seamnn Mark L. Peterson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald L. Peterson of 220 W. Garfield, Charlevoix, Mich., reported for duty aboard the guided missile destroyer USS Cochrane in the Western Pacific.

Fishing

that fish caught will not be killed.

Like a corrida where the brave bulls are set free, all who have tangled with the Atlantic salmon report the sporty fight well justifies setting the catch free in the stream.

Above the dam, on the Boyne, the fly only, catch and release regulations are not in effect. Swan reports the upper Boyne is a good brook trout stream.

The Jordan River is another famous Charlevoix stream. Swan rates the steelhead fishing fair and the night time brown trout fishing excellent. The Jordan is very popular with fly fishermen, but live bait and lures are allowed.

There are some 20 smaller in-land lakes with public access in Charlevoix County.

For the large mouth bass, blue gill and pike anglers, Swan recommends: Adams Lake, south of Charlevoix; Barney's Lake on Beaver Island; Deer Lake, south of Boyne Falls; Susan Lake on the Boyne City Road; and Six Mile Lake near the Antrim County line.

Other good fishing lakes are Font Lake on Beaver Island for perch and bass; Fox Lake on Beaver Island for rainbow; Lake Louise or Thumb Lake for rainbow, small mouth bass and smelt; and Walloon Lake which Swan calls "excellent;' for roinbow, lake trout, small mouth bass, northern pike and walleyes.

In the Beaver Island group, flog and High Islands are well known bass fishing spots.

DNR biologists such as Swan and Keller are the best sources for fishing information. Sporting goods stores in the area, also, will help and advise about some hot spots. Beyond that it's every one for himself.

Snitching un your favorite fishing hole has been compared to "kiss and tell" by John Voelker, who under the pen name of Robert Traver has written many authoritative books on fishing, as well as the novel Anatomy of a Murder.' Voelker, an occationel part-time summer Charlevoixian, has been known to try a fly on both the Boyne and Jordan Rivers.

Summer Jobs Hard Getting

There will be some summer jobs around but students will have to work hard to find them.

A spokesman for the Michigan Employment Securities Commission in Petoskey says that about the only possibilities for young people under 18 are work in restaurants, baby-sitting, maintenance and odd jobs.

However, waiters and waitresses in restaurants serving alcoholic beverages must be 18, leaving only kitchen, bus boy and clean-up jobs for younger people.

In the over 18 category there will be a few outside jobs ot reorts and camps. Construction jobs, which recently have been plentiful for the older student, are few and far between this year because of the slump in building. There will also be fewer jobs in retail establishments.

The manager of a local restaurant, when asked what he looked for in a prospective young employee said, "They must be at least 16, waiters and waitresses must be 18. Experience is not always necessary, but it helps. They must be clean and neat and have a "smiling personality." They must also be available through Labor Day.

Students wanting summer work should register at the Michigan Employment Securities Commission, U.S. Highway South in Petoskey. They keep list of employers who want help by the day as well as regular help.

Here's Where It's At

Yacht Club Plans Beach Improvement

Charlevoix's neighboring Depot Beach property will get an improved look under a project being undertaken by the Charlevoix Yacht Club.

The local boot club received the city's blessing last week to go ahead with plans for using a piece of city property located south of the beach for club use.

The property is presently filled with junk and overgrowth.

Josh Barnes, facilities chairman for the club, said they plan tu use the purcel for their club activities that include a sail training program involving over 100 Charlevoix residents.

Barnes said they want tu use the southern property instead of a site located north of Depot Beach because of its proximity to the depot building, for which the club is finalizing leasing negotiations as a club facility.

The club officer added that they hope eventuolly to build permanent docking facilities on the southern site, but they would later approach counell for a more pernanent arrangement.

Boyne Girl Gets Money For Return

Caring about other people's property has brought a $10 reward to nine-year-old Cheryl Allport of Boyne City.

Cheryl, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Allport, noticed a walkie-talkie radio lying on the ground, as had several other persons, but she picked it up and took it home.

A call to the police revealed that the radio belonged to the Boyne City Water Department. To thank Cheryl for returning the radio, the Boyne City Council voted to give her the reward.

JOHN CONNOLLY, who has retired after serving as Justice of the Peace and 90th District Court Magistrate for the past 25 years, and Mrs. Connolly were honored at a coffee hosted Wednesday afternoon by fellow workers at the Charlevoix County Building.

Connolly is pictured here receiving a plaque marking his retirement from George Lasiler, County Probation Officer and Probate Judge John Murphy as Mrs. Connolly looks on.

Charlevoix School District Residents Vote Monday

Charlevoix School District residents decide Monday whether or not they want new board leadership.

Residents may either retain incumbent Charles Elzinga or elect challenger Arthur Ranger to hold the four-year position.

The four-year contest is one of two races voters must vote on when the polls open at 7 a.m. next Monday. Vying for the two-year term were Dawson Way and Robert Cook.

Elzinga, just completing a four-year term on the board, says he is interested in offering the school district another four years of his time.

Having been involved in luring a superintendent and participating in school board functions, he says he has a broader knowledge of what Charlevoix Schools need.

Elzinga is a native of Charlevoix, attended local schools and served four years in the U.S. Army, including three years in Germany.

He has been associated with Farm Bureau Insurance since 1961 and has been the Charlevoix agent for the company since March 1965.

Challenger Arthur Ranger says he has broad experience in the education system, having taught at the university level and now at North Central Michigan College.

Ranger says he is familiar with present educational techniques that give him a background his opponent doesn't have.

Like Elzinga, Ranger is a native of Charlevoix. He also is a graduate of the University of Michigan School of Engineering, was liaison scientist with the Office of Naval Research in London, England, and was on the engineering faculty at Purdue University. He is now a private engineering consultant in Charlevoix.

When asked how they think the school district should solve its present building needs, Elzinga says the board has had some direction from the public in view of recent elections.

At this point, he said they need to look seriously at the present buildings and see what renovations can be made to them.

He said something must be done with both the middle and high schools, but with the present economy there is no way new buildings can be constructed.

Ranger says he is not totally familiar with what present building needs are, but he does realize that both the middle and high schools are overcrowded.

"I can't say that I have fixed ideas of what the district needs, I will have to become more familiar with anticipated growth and needs before I know," Ranger adds.

In terms of satisfaction with the present administration, Elzinga said the present superintendent is doing a good job.

"I feel he has good ideas," he said.

"His purpose is to serve the school district."

Elzinga said he hopes the district is able to hold on to its superintendent for some time.

Ranger says he has heard both pro and con about how the school is being administered.

The local engineer said he is neutral with the present situation and hasn't formed a fixed judgement as to whether changes are necessary, but he is certain this will be a priority once new members take their positions on the board.

When asked about the schools offering specialized classes that may only involve a small number of students, Elzinga said the district might have to consider offering some them again on an alternate year basis.

"I don't think we can do away with them, especially the ones that are college preparatory," he said.

Ranger said that when plenty of dollars are available, a variety of curriculum selections can be offered, but when operating under a tight budget situation they have to be examined carefully.

"They can be eliminated intelligently after they have been examined carefully," Ranger said.

How should discipline be treated in the school system?

"I feel each teacher has the responsibility within his class and the administration should be behind him," Elzinga says.

Ranger contends that the less discipline the better. He said the school learning center is not where discipline should be taught, it should be used only when necessary to handle the learning environment.

City Tells Utility Users To Pay or be Cut Off

Charlevoix electrical users may find themselves without power if they haven't been paying their utility bills.

City Council learned Monday that non-payers were served notice Saturday that they have 48 hours to make suitable arrangements to pay outstanding utility bills or be shut-off.

Acting City Administrator Robert Wexstaff said the electrical termination notices were posted on several hundred business and residential doors.

"We've had a real good response from the ones we have put up," Wexstaff told council.

The city official said he wasn't sure of the exact number of outstanding bills, but more notices will be posted on other buildings shortly.

The announcement came after Councilman Ralph McRae asked what was being done to pay over-due service charges and utility bills, especially those owed by various condominiums.

He estimated that more than $50,000 were owed by six condominiums.

One development, McRae said, owes $7,200 for water taps and another $14,400 for sewer.

While McRae said he was concerned about all the unpaid bills, Mayor Ed Hansen cautioned the council in making sure the city had a uniform, equitable policy for handling unpaid bills.

The mayor said collecting the bills was a matter of judgment—cutting lights and services may put someone out of business and the city may find it harder to collect.

Several councilmen indicated the city should consider collecting money in advance for sewer and water connections.

In other business, council:

—Accepted bids for two 1975 four-door police cars from Erber Ford for $7,158 with trade-in.

—Approved gasoline and fuel oil bids from Wayne Carter with regular at 36.2 cents a gallon.

—Made Police Chief Jack Mol's salary $12,000 a year to be in line with other department head raises recently granted.

—Doubled city parking violations. The new rates include a 50-cent fine for the first hour, $2 for overparking between 24 and 72 hours and $4 for after 72 hours. Other parking violations will be $2.

—Approved a request from the Charlevoix Yacht Club to use property immediately south of Depot Beach for use of club activities.

Last Rites Held for Mr. Freedman

Gordon L. Freedman, 58, industrialist and humanitarian, died Sunday at his home here. Death was self-inflicted according to Dr. Robert G. Martin, Medical Examiner.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the Winchester Funeral Home. Rabbi Philip Berkowitz officiated.

Known as Freedman Aircraft Engineering Corp. at the time, the company had come into being nine years earlier when Freedman, just out of Tri-State College at Angola, Ill., with a degree in Aeronautical Engineering, joined with his former instructor, Walter E. Burnham. They formed a partnership that manufactured propellors for small aircraft. The plant as first in the attic and basement of Burnham's home in Detroit.

In 1938 it was moved to Cincinnati where Freedman and his associates worked with the U.S. Air Force at Wright Field at Dayton in the development of propellors for many projects. With the beginning of World War II, the firm went into intensive war production making a wide variety of aircraft parts.

At the close of World War II, the plant reorganized and moved here and, with the market for propellors no longer available, turned to self-serve products including greeting card racks record cabinets and fixtures for Talon and Singer companies.

In late 1946, the construction of the corporation's first building of 16,000 square feet began. Until then existing buildings in the community had served the company's needs. The plant has been expanded over a period of time to its present size.

In September, 1972, the company was sold to the Rust Craft Greeting Card Co. with headquarters in the east. Freedman remained as president of the firm.

In May, 1970, Freedman gained recognition as the Small Businessman of the Year for the State of Michigan by the Small Business Advisory Council. At a luncheon at the Weathervane Inn honoring Freedman, Robert W. Phillips, District Director of the SBA, said that under Freedman's leadership Freedman Artcraft Engineering had become "a great influence on the economy in and around Charlevoix, employing upwards to 200 people."

Phillips went on to say that "the confidence that Mr. Freedman has in the economy and in the area around Charlevoix, plus his keen interest in the people who work for him, make him a worthy selection for the year's Michigan Small Businessman of the Year Award."

Freedman, a humanitarian, was active in numerous organizations. He was a member and director of Temple B'nai of Petoskey, the Community Chest Board which he organized and headed, the board of the Michigan United Fund, director and past president of the Charlevoix Area Hospital from 1948-73 and was instrumental in the construction of the hospital which was opened in 1954; a member of the Charlevoix Board of Education at the time the present high school was constructed, a director of the Charlevoix Development Corp. which brought new industry to the community, the Committee of Boy Scout Troop 11 and a director of the Scenic Trails Council, Boy Scouts of America, and a former member and past president of the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club.

He also was a charter member and former Vice President of the National Pilots Association, a member of the Advisory Board of

Two Candidates Seek 2-Year Post

Charlevoix School District voters have two new faces to consider when deciding who they want to fill the two-year vacancy on the Board of Education this year.

D. Dawson Way, district sales manager for Farm Bureau Insurance, and Robert J. Cook, retired teacher, both are interested in the spot created by the resignation of Larry Warner.

Warner resigned because he is planning to attend college full time and wanted voters to have an opportunity to name his successor in the Monday election.

The contest for the two-year term is one of two races voters must decide. Running for four-year terms are Charles Elzinga and Arthur Ranger.

Way, who is responsible for Far Bureau insurance sales and customer relations in 27 counties, is part owner of Scheid Northern Realty and developer of Sugar Bush Knoll subdivision on M-66 South of Charlevoix.

He is a member of the Charlevoix Flying Club, Tip-O-the-Mitt Life Insurance Underwriters Association, the Charlevoix County Farm Bureau, Lake Charlevoix Property Owners Association and the Assembly of God Church.

Cook was Industrial Arts Teacher in Charlevoix schools for 21 years prior to his retirement in 1973. He had taught at Copemish, Pellston and Harbor Springs for 11 years before coming here.

Since his retirement, he is serving as president of the Senior Citizens Housing Commission. He also is a member of the Charlevoix Area Planning Commission and is a director of the Sheltered Workshop.

When asked how Charlevoix should solve its school building needs, Way said the high school should be enlarged and the middle school should be maintained for a few more years.

Way suggested the school board consider relocating the athletic field on property that might eventually be used for the construction of a new high school. He said the present athletic field then could be used for high school expansion.

"As far as building needs are concerned, the middle school and high school have long since passed their student capacity," according to Cook.

"I think it (expansion) is a decision the board can recommend, but it's something the voters will have to face up to."

Cook said the district has three alternatives — build a new building, hold split-day sessions or consider 'year round school.

Both candidates feel the present administration is doing an adequate job and would want to serve on the board to evaluate the situation.

In response to criticism that the school system offers too many specialized courses that only attract small numbers of students, Way said the schools should equip a child so that he can later pursue his area of specialization.

"We cannot be the specialist in the high school here," he

Sea Lamprey Found Here

Lamprey eels are apparently back in Lakes Charlevoix and Michigan in greater numbers.

A number of local fishermen, including Jack Uhrick, report seeing an unusual number of lamprey eggs while snelt dipping this spring and say they have caught several fish with lamprey marks on them.

Over the signature "A Concerned Citizens Committee" the fishermen have sent an open letter to Governor Milliken, Senators Griffin and Hart and Representative Ruppe saying that "every measure must be taken to keep tight control over the lamprey before it regains any foothold, no matter how minor, in our waters, for without this control it will multiply into a major problem once again."

The committee adds, "Petitions will be forthcoming endorsing a reactivation of the lamprey eradication program, to obtain funds for the reduction of the threat to its most minimal degree, to keep the threat minimal, and hopefully to develop research ethods which might rid the lakes of their most dangerous predator."

Bill Gaylord of the United States Fish and Wildlife Service in Ludington told the Courier he had not heard of any great resurgence of lampreys all over the lakes this year.

Gaylord said this might be due to a particularly good spawning year, or that the lampreys are just appearing suddenly because of the late, cold spring.

The Fish and Wildlife Service is carrying on the same program for lamprey control that it has the last several years, according to Gaylord. The program consists of treating streams running into the lakes with TFM, a nitrophenol compound, every four years. TFM destroys most of the young before they reach the lakes.

Gaylord also said they would try to get a field team to Charlevoix to check the situation soon.

Lamprey eels have been a menace to commercial and sport fishing for a number of years. They are slimy eel-like creatures native to salt water which feed by clinging to the bodies of fish with their vacuum-cup mouths and sucking out blood and body fluids. Adults are usually about a foot long, mottled with brown and black on their backs, and have somewhat of a golden tint. Fish may be killed or seriously weakened by lamprey attacks.

It is believed that the lamprey invaded the Great Lakes by way of the Welland Canal in the 1930's and adapted itself to life in fresh water. In the early 1940's the damage caused to lake fish by the lamprey was noted when the commercial catch of lake trout in upper Lake Huron fell off sharply.

Here are the responses from our question asking whether or not Charlevoix needs four more tennis courts.

Charge for Tennis

We try to play a lot, but feel we should be charged a $1 an hour and pay some high school student to supervise, keep the courts swept, nets at proper height, etc.

People don't understand the rules there, and we have a lot of abuse of the courts because of this. I feel the rules should be posted for everyone to see. We, who use the courts a lot, understand that there is an hour limit, but nothing states that is the case.

We desperately need more courts in Charlevoix. This is a great sport for the entire family. With our limited court space now, the courts are filled to capacity. There is no room for the tourist at all. If they drive up there and see 18 cars and people waiting, and don't know the rules, or see them posted, he is going to go somewhere else.

Golfers Pay Way

The person who called in about the golf courses and the golfers pay for the upkeep of the golf course themselves. That's the main cry I have. To me, tennis players should pay for the tennis courts. If they want more tennis courts they should pay for them. I don't think he has any squack coming concerning the golf courses.

Why Not Season Permits?

I don't see why they don't sell season permits for the tennis courts. They could build more courts then and then they could have someone to supervise them. My golf fee this year was $10 to play golf for my family. It's not free, those in city have to pay a little less, but they still have to pay a fee.

No Flags

As I am just a newcomer to the Charlevoix, but never-the-less a resident, I feel I can speak my mind on something that concerns Charlevoix. Planning on coming to town to see the parade Monday, I was disappointed to see the weather so bad and the parade cancelled. My husband and I took a ride into town anyway, since it's always pleasant to drive around town. What amazed and depressed me was the glaring absenee of any personally presented flags. Up and down the streets we drove, including bridge, and the flags I could count would be numbered on one hand. Neither businesses or homes displayed our flag. One could not tell what holiday it was, as it could have been any weekend. In the town where we have recently moved from, main street had a parkway and every "Memorial Day" be it Memorial Day, Fourth of July, Veterans Day, the Chamber of Commerce assisted by the Junior Chamber, lined the main street and this boulevard with our flags. Every business that belonged to the Chamber was also presented with a flag to fly. You knew that it was a memorial holiday to drive through town. Can it be that with the world "fairly" at peace, at least with our country, these outward signs of flying our flag are being forgotten, thought to be square or bothersome, when we're in a hurry to get to the local ball game, or start the barbecue pit for the family get together? I hope not.

Allocation Board Sets County Taxation Rates

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix County Tax Allocation Board set the final tax rate for 1975 at a meeting held Thursday at the county building annex.

The tentative rate, which was approved as the final rate, allocates .20 mills to the Char-Em Intermediate School District, 1.0 mill to the townships, 4.7 mills to the county and 9.1 mills to the school districts.

In 1974, when a total of 15.2 mills was levied, the Intermediate District and the townships received the same as this year, the county 4.8 and the schools 9.2 mills.

The final rate was set by a vote of 7-1 with William Parsous, Rex Judkins, Lee Moerland, Ms. Anah Potter, Robert Sherman, Oscar Stroud and Philip Gregg voting aye and Ralph Hamilton, nay.

The members voted to meet at 1 p.m. June 10 to discuss the possibility of proposing that a fixed tax rate system be adopted. This would necessitate presenting a proposed rate to the County Board of Commissioners so that the residents of the county could vote on the issue.

Charlevoix High School Students Get Awards

ILO HELMS, member of the custodial staff at the Charlevoix High School for 14 years, was honored by the staff of the yearbook, the Rayder, when the 1975 edition of the book was dedicated to him. Kim Blanchard and Gayle Boss, co-editors, presented him with a framed copy of the dedication that will appear in the book.

Yearbook Dedicated to High School Custodian

By FRAN MARTIN

The Charlevoix High School student body met in the high school gym for the last time this year to see fellow students receive their awards.

Vane Smith, high school principal, as master of ceremonies, opened the Awards Assembly and introduced faculty members and students who made the presentations.

Heading the list was the dedication of the 1975 yearbook, the Rayder, by Kim Blanchard and Gayle Boss, co-editors of the publication. Miss Blanchard read the dedication message and then presented a framed copy of Ilo Helms, high school custodian for 14 years who is retiring at the end of the school year. Mrs. Helms and their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Norman Helms, were present for the dedication.

Mrs. C. A. Odmark, homemaking teacher, who is retiring at the close of the school year, was presented with a gift from her classes, a Crockpot, and a bouquet of roses by Kim Elzinga and Carla Wells.

Darrell Clark and Terri Probert, president and vice president of the graduating class, presented canoe paddles to their class advisor, Nelson Green and William Murray, as a reminder of the class trip via canoe down the Manistee river earlier in the week. The paddles are to be autographed by class members.

County Sees $3.4 Million In Fed Funds This Year

Charlevoix County governmental units received an estimated $3,438,000 in Federal grants-in-aid and revenue sharing money in the past fiscal year.

From the dollars and cents standpoint, how much did this money produce for the County?

Did the price it had to pay for these grants, by way of taxes allocated to the programs, make them worthwhile financially?

Under the various types of aid available--there are hundreds of them – assistance is offered to states and local communities for purposes ranging from welfare grants and child care to road building and education.

The cost to some localities, in the past year, proved to be greater than the aid received. Others got back more than they put in

A comprehensive state-by-state study of the programs, based upon Treasury Department figures, was made by the Tax Foundation, a non-profit research organization that keeps watch over government taxation and spending.

A breakdown of its figures indicates that the amount of aid received by Charlevoix County was relatively small.

In the State of Michigan as a whole, the grants totaled $1,801,000,000, the Government's figures show.

The amounts refer only to grants-in-aid and revenue sharing and do not include Federal spending in local areas for goods and services.

As to the cost of the benefits received, the Tax Foundation finds that some $2,100,000,000 of the taxes collected throughout the state went into the aid programs.

Charlevoix County's share of the cost was approximately $4,022,000, exclusive of matching funds.

Nationally, the figures show, $38.5 billion was distributed in grants-in-aid and $6.1 billion in revenue sharing, a total of $44.6 billion.

In 23 states the costs exceeded the grants received. The other 27 states came out on the plus side.

Indiana was the biggest loser, paying $1.56 for every $1 that was returned. Alaska was the chief gainer, paying only 36 cents per $1 of aid.

The inequity is attributed to the fact that some communities need more aid than others.

School Board Accepts Resignations

By FRAN MARTIN

The resignation of three members of the faculty from their respective coaching duties highlighted the regular meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education Tuesday night.

Four other retirements were also accepted.

Barry Anderson will continue as Vocational Education director on the faculty but has decided to give up his duties as head basketball coach after five years in the post for personal reasons. Anderson has an overall coaching record of 97-64, including time spent at Mackinaw City, and a record of 60-47 at Charlevoix. He will continue as golf coach, a position he has held during his seven year tenure here. He was an assistant basketball coach during his first two years here.

Gary Stutzman has resigned as head track coach because of his expanding responsibilities as head of the music department, a post to which he was named following the resignation of C.A. Odmark after 29 years in the post. During the five year period, his team captured three straight Michigan-Huron Shores titles, two Class C regional titles and various invitational meets.

William Murray will continue as art instructor after five years as ski instructor.

Mrs. Frances Novak, a teacher in the school system for 13 years, tendered her resignation, effective in June. She taught Latin and more recently high school math.

Three members of the custodial staff also submitted resignations, Mrs. Lois Williams after 5½ years and Ilo Hlnis and Willis Keiser after 14 years each on the staff.

Approval was given a summer band camp for the marching band and tentative consent given for a trip to Green Bay Packer game in November.

Two policies, in first relating to student parking regulations and the second to student records were approved and will become effective at once.

The sale of the Building Trades house in Hampton Village to Peter LaFavour was approved. Kenneth Boss, secretary, and Max Novak, president, were named as signatories for the transaction.

The purchase of Lot 19 in Hampton Village as the site of another Building Trades structure also was approved. The cost was 5,775.

The 1975-76 contract for Roy Fortin, assistant principal, which was contingent on the recent millage election, was approved.

Fortin announced that seven Adult Education students had completed classes and were eligible for graduation.

Supt. James McKinmy reported that the 9.1 mill allocation would necessitate cutting $7,353 from the 1975-76 budget. He also announced that 68 band instruments would be refurbished during the summer in preparation for the 1975-76 school year.

The Senior class was given the right to serve those concessions during the forthcoming school year not already assigned to the Sports Boosters.

The request to include a Group Cancer Insurance in the payroll deduction procedure was denied because it is not open to all employees The policy is offered through the American Family Iafe Insurance program.

June 10 was set as the date of the next board meeting in order to know the outcome of the school election.

Land Use Needs Federal Help

One of the most controversial pieces of Federal legislation is now being considered by Congress and we want to express our disappointment with the action taken by Congressman Philip E. Ruppe.

The bill is now in the final stages of consideration by the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, on which Ruppe serves.

If the bill becomes law, it would have dramatic effects on areas such as Northern Michigan in the regulation of development and land use.

In a recent news release, and during several public appearances, Ruppe has been defending his stand on either tabling the present bill or voting against it in its present form.

Ruppe says the people of Northern Michigan simply do not want a federal land use bill.

Rightly or wrongly, he said Northern Michiganders see any land use policy advocated by the Federal government as an attempt to block economic development of this area.

He says job development being sought by this area is that which southern lower Michigan has enjoyed for years.

In short, Ruppe says land use planning is seen as an attempt to make the North Country one huge park, a playground for those seeking a retreat from urban areas, while the rest of Michigan enjoys the fruits of economic expansion.

We don't argue with Mr. Ruppe that Northern Michigan does deserve the economic advantages now enjoyed by those in the south, but we don't agree with his approach.

We see nothing wrong with the North being used as a retreat for those coming from the city. This has been the basis of our economy for many years.

It seems to us that the concern should deal with Southern Michiganders coming up here and making permanent retreats, in some cases raping areas of land to build them.

If Ruppe considers federal legislation an attempt to block economic development (such as large multi-housing complexes, trailer courts or massive subdivisions) we would like to see the bill become law.

Our own community is demonstration enough that neither the local or state units of government have had the strength or willingness to regulate our land.

Ruppe claims that the federal bill would hinder rather than aid state and local governments working together in making reasonable land use decisions.

Secondly, Ruppe says the state government is given the decision-making power on whether or not to involve local governments in the land use planning process. This, too, violates the intent of the legislation which originally called for a meaningful, vital role for local governments' land use decisions, Ruppe adds.

We think Ruppe is taking a parochial view when he takes these types of stands.

Land use involves far more than a localized region, it emcompasses areas that may go well beyond county or state boundaries.

In either case, we don't think federal legislation setting up guidelines to identify critical environmental areas is intended to take over state and local control as Ruppe leads us to believe.

We look at this type of legislation as merely giving local units of government some clout in controlling growth.

We see nothing wrong with viewing Northern Michigan as a playground for many people to visit and enjoy themselves.

Our concern is whether or not there will be a playground for people for all over the world to enjoy in years to come.

Local government has not demonstrated to us that it has the ability or interest to make land use decisions. And in cases where interest has been shown, local units have had merely an advisory capacity.

We believe the role of land use planning should be in the hands of the state with local participation required through local planning commissions.

However, we also think that the federal government could provide a guarantee that something will be done at the state and local levels.

Ruppe points out that the bill is an expensive one-calling for an expenditure of $500 million in Federal aid.

We agree it is expensive, but how expensive will it be to replace or restore poorly used land?

We are disappointed that Ruppe has switched his position from a year ago when he was advocating strong land use legislation.

We think it is time for him to consider his stand and support protection of Northern Michigan. Too many developers have already shown us a need for land use regulation.

The time to act is now and this action can only be taken by people such as Phil Ruppe looking out for our best interests in Washington.

Employees Object to Taxes

May 19, 1975

Governor William Milliken
Governor State of Michigan
Lansing, Michigan 48933
Sir:

Last week we were pleased to see in our paychecks the effect of a Federal Tax reduction.

This week we were dismayed to see that what the Federal government has given, the State has taken away!

This week we were further dismayed to learn that the legislature of the State of Michigan has sent to the Governor an extended Unemployment Compensation Bill which will not benefit any of us, but will instead, take additional payroll dollars away from our budget in the years to come.

We further were shocked to learn that our payroll budget next year will be further reduced by an increased cost of Workmen's Compensation insurance attributed to the "ridiculous policies of the State of Michigan".

We point out that if the state continues these practices, it can expect to continue to lose employers and fail to draw new businesses into the state. The ultimate result of this is, of course, a condition where those working individuals living in Michigan will be outnumbered by the residents not employed, and more than half of our potential earnings will be taken out and given to others!

By this letter we urge the government of the State of Michigan immediately and at once institute a program of fiscal restraint and the requirement of at least a modest reduction in total state operating budget each year.

Further, that the state carefully examine its welfare relief and unemployment programs so that, like California, the total cost may be reduced while the benefits of the truly needy be increased.

By copy of this letter to our Representatives in Federal Government, we ask that similar restraint be practiced at the Federal level.

In summary, as employees of a small business located in northern Michigan, we object to ever-increasing portions of our take-home pay being confiscuted and turned over to others!

Sincerely,

LEXALITE INTERNATIONAL CORPORATION

President

Ruppe Answers Friske

Dear Mr. Friske:

I supported the recent Foreign Assistance Act as I felt it was to our political and economic advantage to do so.

Furthermore, I consider your attitude toward all foreign aid to be very unfortunate and reference to the additional debt for the benefit of forcigners to be less than generous. My grandparents emigrated to this nation, and you yourself are an immigrant; indeed, the greatness of this country is built on a foundation of hard work by "foreigners." We certainly can afford to share a small portion of our nation's wealth on "foreigners" in countries which have contributed to our own nation's heritage and which continue to contribute to our nation's welfare as allies in the world.

I voted for and supported the Foreign Aid bill which, at a cost of $3.7 billion, totals less than 1 percent of our Fiscal 1975 budget and only 4 percent of our anticipated defense expenditures.

I did feel that there was too much emphasis on military aid to the Middle East, but in view of over $1.2 billion worth of economic and food assistance, I felt it would be a wise investment in aiding poor, underdeveloped countries. Economic assistance will encourage the stability and obviously, growth of democratic, independent governments. Western Europe is today allied with the United States largely because this nation was willing to invest in foreign aid to those nations following World War II, thus preventing their fall under communist domination.

This country has relied in recent years on American military forces to maintain world peace. The price of this policy in Vietnam alone was 55,000 dead and over $160 billion expended. I am convinced that furtherug American influence and political philosophy through foreign aid and technical assistance has at least as much promise of success and at a price we can afford.

With best wishes,
Sincerely,
Phil E. Ruppe
Member of Congress

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

From a reader named Camille Smith came a letter saying: "Fitzgerald, you are in the same class with Scrooge, Dillinger and Baby Face Nelson . . . why don't you go jump into an alligator swamp?"

This was one of the sweeter responses to my column on Disney World which, incidentally, probably has an alligator swamp, $3 a jump, with a waiting list so long it includes the unborn.

After the beating I've taken from Mickey Mouse freaks, I'm convinced you could put the Disney label on leprosy and 90 percent of the world would sail, paddle or swim to Molokai Island. And they would all buy Lonie Laper T-shirts for the 10 percent who had sense enough to stay home.

So be it. There is no denying the human animal's unlimited capacity for enduring torture when it is called entertainment or fun.

How else can you explain why people actually watch such unbelievable TV shows as "Let's Make a Deal"? How else can you explain 500,000 spectators sweltering at the Indianapolis 500 race? race?

It is mob psychology. Emotions are contagious. That's why the TV shows use laugh tracks (and somewhere, I'm sure, there is a funeral home with a sob track). If a clown laughs and tells you it's fun to fall off a mountain, you'll go skiing. And you'll find the only way to get to the top of the mountain is to buy a $10 ticket from the same clown, who is really laughing now.

And how about golf? For over 20 years I've been trying to put a little ball into a hole by whacking or nudging it with a series of stupid clubs, none of them properly designed for the task. If it is so important to get that lousy ball into a hole, why don't I just use my hand, which is properly designed? Because some clown convinced me it is fun to swing and swear and sweat and take 5 hours to accomplish a 5-minute task. The clown's name was McGregor Spaulding Wilson.

A lot of stupid activities, such as golf, are justified with the explanation that they get you outdoors. So do lawn chairs and slow walks in the woods. So nuts.

The popularity of silly games is also often explained by something called "the joy of competing." The only joy I ever see on the golf course comes from the muscleheads who win all my money. Which isn't joy, it's greed. And the most spirited competition comes when it must be decided who will buy the first round. Which really isn't competition when I play because there's no one in my class. People I've defeated say I'm so cheap I have my pockets lined with oilcloths so I can steal soup.

So let each man enjoy his own folly. Even Disney World. My Mickey Mouse critics drew blood only when they speared me with another common justification for nonsense. They said Disney World provides great opportunities for families to do things together. And everyone knows the family that roller coasters together, throws up together. I was accused of being a nonfamily type guy who doesn't like children.

Not like children? Outside of opposing President Ford's bloody retrival of the Mayaguez, there is no more unpopular sin. I deny the charge. I love children. Just ask my 3 kids, or my 3 grandkids.

This is, I love kids until they get old enough to beg to go to Disney World. Then comes several years during which the laundry chute is a marvelous thing. It is the wisest means of communication between the parent upstairs and the child locked in the basement.

Who is Dillinger?

(Editor's Note: The following column, which appeared in the Courier May 27, 1970, recalls one of the sunnier days in the life of the late Gordon Freedman and his Charlevoix friends. The occasion was the naming of Mr. Freedman as Michigan's "Small Businessman of the Year."

To put the column in proper perspective, it must be remembered that 1970 was a difficult year for America. The long war in Vietnam had given rise to a factionalism that the nation had not experienced since the Civil War. Mistrust in government motives was rampant, particularly among the young. In accepting the award, Mr. Freedman couldn't resist playing the role of peacemaker.)

+ + +

Sometimes I wish I didn't become so emotionally involved at public gutherings.

Freedman, as you know was named Michigan's Small Businessman of the year by the Small Business Administration in connection with Michigan Week. More than 100 Charlevoixans gathered at the Weathervane Inn to congratulate him on receiving the award and wish him continued success with Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp., Charlevoix's largest single employer.

When all the fried chicken and mashed pototoes had disuppeared Mayor William Fochtman clinked on his water class for silence and the serious business of honoring Gordon Freedman began.

Fochtman talked of the courage Freedman displayed in establishing a manufacturing plant 24 years ago in a predominantly resort area creating jobs were there were no jobs.

He also talked about the high mortality rate of small businesses and how Freedman's "personal ability" has made Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp. what it is today.

Then he read messages from Gov. William Milliken, Willflow Corp. officers, Sen. Thomas F. Schweigert and Rep. Robert W. Davis, saluting Freedman on his achievement.

Throughout all of this I stood by the salad bar taking notes and wishing I had worn a light-weight summer sports jacket instead of a woolen suit. It was a warm, muggy day, as you'll recall, one of the first rerily summery days of the year.

Then Robert F. Phillips, district of the Small Busincs Administration in Detroit arose to add his uccolades to those of the mayor. Phillips said Freedman was a credit both to himself and his area and presented the honoree with the SBA award.

Now it was Freedman's turn to say a few words. He said he would be brief because his wife, Eleanor, would never let hlm talk too long.

He said all of the employes at Freedman Artcraft shared the award with him.

He said the business sucecss he has experienced is something that could only happen in the United States of America.

He said Freedman Artcraft Engineering Corp. wouldn't have made it without the SBA-"a bureaucratic set-up in the best sense of the word."

He also thanked the banks and the federal Office of Economic Expansion.

And he remembered the assistance and encouragement given him long ago by the late Bob Bridge and Harley Ochs, whose widows were in the audience.

Then he touched briefly on the internal dissension that is pitting American against American.

"We know all the bad things about America," he said. "We've gotten the picture. Now we can go ahead."

And he recalled how Bob Bridge once told him: "There's no one better than us."

Then he did an unusual thing. (A corny thing, he called it.) He asked us all to sing "America the Beautiful."

There we were in the dining room of the Weathervane Inn overlooking Pine River Channel – the most beautiful room, in the most beautiful building, in the most beautiful city, in the most beautiful country in this beautiful old world, on the most beautiful day of the year–and Gordon Freedman asked us to sing "America the Beautiful."

Suddenly the promise and the glory of this strife-ridden land of ours seemed to come alive and I was almost too choked up to sing. But I did.

Dear Sir:

Your front page article of May 21, relative to the resignation of Prosecutor Varnum demands a responsible clarification. the article in your paper was extremely inaccurate and unfair to Mr. Varnum as well as to this organization of concerned citizens who have endeavored to be of assistance to our local law enforeement and judicial system.

First, it should be pointed out that we have conversed and been in contact with many individuals within the law and judicial system including Mr. Varnum.

Second, at no time during this investigation was anything uncovered to implicate Mr. Varnum in any type of fraud, dishonesty or actions which would reflect adversely on his character.

As stated in the back of each membership card of the Anti-Crime & Drug Committee, the only goals of this organization are:

1. To retain a constitutional judicial system by preventing obstruction of justice. (2) To assist in the investigation of drug trafficking in this urea. (3) To support our local police and keep them independent.

If an officer's conduct is incompatible with these goals then it would be advisable that he be removed from office and this has been done in the past. However, in the ease of the Charlevoix Prosecutor's position, our recommendation was that the current workload in this county dictates a full time prosecutor whieh has already occurred in the neighboring counties of Antrim and Emmet. Mr. Varnum should be commended for his concern for the citizens of Charlevoix County and his action which will make it possible for this county to likewise have a full time prosecutor.

These facts were presented to the Charlevoix Board of Commissioners by our Vice-Chairman Ronald Erkfitz on May 14. However, typically your reporter overlooked this in favor of sensationalism which could be created by "rumor", as stated in the article. Are front page news articles based on "RUMOR"?? This type of irresponsible journalism is exactly what leads to justifiable criticism of some news reporters and their employers.

Sincerely,

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Larry Levengood

With the coming of summer uad more und mure people considering the purchase of laud in Northern Michigan, the District Health Department is advising prospective buyers to have land evaluations made to be sure the property they are interested in will pass sanitary code requirements. This week the Courier talks with Larry Levengood, Health Department Sanitarian.

COURIER: What is a Health Department land evaluation?

LEVENGOOD: It is a series of tests for the purpose of determining the suitability of property for development with on-site sewage disposal and on-site water supply. If a piece of property cannot pass these tests we cannot issue permits for septic tanks or water wells.

COURIER: What is the procedure for getting a property evaluation and what does it cost?

LEVENGOOD: In Charlevoix County, a person may either write to us at the Court House Annex in Charlevoix requesting an application or come in and get one. The application must be signed by the property owner or his agent, such as a real estate dealer. It is important that the application be fully completed so that we don't have to return it for further information, which adds to the time required to make the evaluation. people must tell us what they want to do with the property, whether they want to build a single family home, an apartment, or commercial building, and where they want to put the building on the property. We might say, "You can't build right here but you could build over there." Land evaluations cost $25.

COURIER: Are land evaluations required by the Health Department?

LEVENGOOD: No, they are a requested service, but they are the best way to test the suitability of land for intended use.

COURIER: When should land evaluations be made?

LEVENGOOD: They should be made before buying a piece of property, either vacant property or existing residences. Many local realtors make sales subject to Health Department approval. As for existing residences, it should be pointed out that some of these sewage systems were installed before present codes took effect. If they break down they will have to be replaced to meet present sanitary code requirements.

COURIER: What type of property especially should have a land evaluation?

LEVENGOOD: For obvious reasons, lake frunt property.

COURIER: What does a land evaluation consist of?

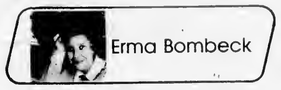
LEVENGOOD: We test soil borings and measure the distances of the proposed sewage system or water well site from other sewage systems and wells, and also from bodies of water such as lakes, rivers and streams.

COURIER: What percentage of land evaluations show the property to be unsuitable for proposed development?

LEVENGOOD: In 1974 we made 139 land evaluations. Of these, 49 showed the property unsuitable. Ten evaluations were made of property in which part of the property was found to be suitable and part unsuitable. four evaluations were made of existing premises in which the soil was found to be unsuitable.

COURIER: Besides making land evaluations and checking property for sewage system and water well permits, what does a Health Department Sanitarian do?

LEVENGOOD: Among our other duties are to inspect ambulances, camp grounds, restaurants, day care centers, mobile home parks, refuse haulers, septic tank pumpers, municipal sewage and water systems, recreation summer camps, swimming pools and schools. We also investigate nuisance complaints having anything to do with public health and environment.



Erma Bombeck

There is a special place in heaven for people who own pianos or urgans .... where the sun always shines, the instruments are always in tune, and the keys look when sone hamburger sits down to play Chopsticks.

Children are drawn to an organ or a piano....especially the ones who are tone deaf. My mother owns an organ. I have watched that poor soul deteriorate from an apple-cheeked loving grandmother to a sniveling, watery-eyed troll.

Believe me, it is not easy watching someone you love sit through 100 raggy choruses of "Long, Long Ago" (with drum attachment).

Every Sunday before going to Grandma's, I deliver the same: "Chopsticks" (played kids. "Do not – repent – do not ask Grandma to let you play her organ. It gets on Grandma's nerves. I know she pretends it doesn't matter, but I watch Grandma while you are thumping on the organ and last week she grabbed a plastic banana off the coffee table and crushed it in her hand. Take something to do.... a game, a baseball, or a sedative....but DO NOT PLAY THE ORGAN!"

Grandma meets them at the door with a big hug and the first words are out, "Can we play your organ, Grandma?"

The repertoire is always the sume, tired sermon to the lively); "Heart and Soul" (with another no-talent playing bass), and a pitiful stab at "Love Story" with one finger while the vocalist strains with "How do I begin.....begin (higher) ... begin (lower)... begin (Between the cracks)..." ending up eight keys later with the right note.

"They're not the King family, are they? said mother the other Sunday, knotting her handkerchief and biting on it with her teeth.

"Speak up, Mother," I shouted over the din.

"I said they're not the King family."

"Does their playing bother you?" I asked.

"No, why?"

"I saw a commercial once about a grandparent who was crabby when her grandchildren beat on the piano and it was because she was irregular."

"The noise could do that?" she asked.

"I think I have a solution, mother. Give me a week or so."

Last Sunday at mother's no one touched the organ. They watched TV, they played ball, they played ears and they took a walk, but not onee did they go near the instrument.

"What did you do?" asked mother. "Threaten them?"

"Nope! Gave them organ lessons with instructions to practice."

Woman's Club Plans Senior Event

Members of Charlevoix High School's 1975 graduating class will be guests of the Women's Club at a garden party Saturday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Frank D. Webb.

Assisting Mrs. Webb as hostess will be Mrs. Robert Wexstaff, Mrs. Anthony Stabnick, Mrs. Harvey Rosinsky and Mrs. Robert Martin.

The party has been a tradition of the Woman's Club since the club was founded in 1968 incorporating the membership of the former Dickens Study Club and the Shakespeare Study Club. The Dickens Club has previously hosted the party.

Here's What Charlevoix's Senior Class Plans to do Following Graduation

Today's economy and a change in attitudes is having its effect on future plans of the 1975 graduating class of the Charlevoix High Scool a profile prepared by the Counseling Staff reveals.

Seventy-two members of the class of 147 students or 49 percent are enrolled in formalized educational programs. However, 31 of these have enrolled in two or three year programs and 41 in baccalaureate programs. In 1974, 33 percent went for the four-year college as opposed to 28 percent of this year's class while the number entering two-year programs has jumped from 15 to 21 percent.

It is the feeling of the counselors who made the survey that the change is testimony to the high rate of unemployment and the general economic situation.

As a result, parents and students are opting for the less expensive means of education until they are certain finances are available. Another reason is the developing trend toward technical careers and the increasing unemployment of four-year degree people.

The number of students entering the armed services also is increasing, primarily as a result of the services becoming an attractive alternative to work or college and also because of the high level of unemployment. Ten members of this year's class or seven percent are entering the armed services as compared to three or four over the past few years.

Of the remaining 65 students, 17 have jobs now and will continne in them; 15 have jobs but will seek different employment; 14 are seeking jobs and have been counseled regarding the resources and the job market; two students plan to marry and not work; 11 plan to attend college at a later date; two of the three exchange students in the class will return to their home countries while the third will remain to attend a U.S. college and three students have given no plans for the immediate future.

Eighteen of the class plan to pursue health-related careers ranging from two year technician programs to graduate programs; another seven have been accepted into engineering programs.

A marked change in the number of students entering the field of education is reflected in the fact that only four plan this career, no doubt because of the abundance of people in the field. Three members of the class, all girls, will be attending a horse management course in Wyoming; two will attend college in Texas and another is enrolled in a two-year program in New York state.

Many of the students seeking employment possess skills gained through the various vocational programs offered by Charlevoix and Petoskey high schools.

The inability of these students to find employment testifies to the high unemployment in the area; i.e., they have specific skills but the jobs do not exist.

Central Michigan University (four year) and North Central Michigan College (two years) have each attracted 14 students; Northwestern Michigan College (two years), seven; Ferris State College, (two years), five; Michigan Tech (four years), four; Northern Michigan U., Spring Arbor, Western Michigan and the University of Michigan, (all four years), three each; Northwestern Community College, Powell, Wyo., (two years), three; Ferris State (four years), Michigan State, Lake Superior State, Eastern Michigan, Hope College, Adrian College, Albion College, Reformed Bible College, John Wesley, Hardin-Simmons U. and Prarie View A & M, all four year schools, one each; Butterworth Hospital School of Nursing (three years), one and the Culinary Institute of American (two years), one.

WJML
Power Voice of Vacationland!

The broadcast day at WJML starts at 5:30 A.M. with a flick of the switch and "Good Morning Northern Michigan." The voice that's been waking up the North Country for ten years now is that of Bill Supernaw, a native of Charlevoix, and the WJML anchorman. Bill leaves the air at 9, turning the microphone over to Wes McCoy, WJML's "Country Boy," who carries you through a day of music, news and weather until he relinquishes his seat at 3 P.M. Weekdays from 3 to 6, and Saturday and Sunday mornings, Jay Alexander takes to the air with a glib demeanor and a teasing manner that are unmistakable. And from 6 to midnight, it's the soothing voice of Danny Bayer that carries you through dinner and into the "Night Life." Every hour throughout the morning, after ABC network news, you'll hear Marty Glazek, WJML News Director and the newest addition to the WJML broadcast staff. But for every minute on the air, Marty is working an hour off air to gather the regional and state news that makes WJML number 1 in Northern Michigan in news. The WJML studios are tucked away several miles southeast of Petoskey in the quiet Bear River Valley, a ten minute's drive from the offices in Petoskey's Perry-Davis Hotel. Mike Harrington, WJML's Vice President in charge of programming, spends a good deal of time at both places, and you're likely to hear him on the air just about anytime you turn on your radio. These are the voices on WJML AM and FM, Number 1 in the North Country. Count on us to keep you entertained and informed this summer, and all year long.

Charlevoix Rayder Place 2nd in State

The Charlevoix Rayder track and field team, nine strong, was runner-up in the State Class C meet at Mt. Pleasant Saturday according to Coach Gary Stutzman.

The team had a total of 45½ points to place second behind Unionville-Sebewaing, defending champions, with 71 points. Bath placed third in the meet with 39 points.

The Rayder 440 yd. relay team captured a first place with a time of 44.5; Kevin Martin in the 220 yd. dash and the mile relay team placed second; Mike Street tied for third and Kevin Speer took a seventh in the broad jump and Phil Christ came in fifth in the shot put to account for the Rayder points.

This marks the first time in 37 years that the Rayders have won a Class C state trophy. In 1938, Richard 'Big' Bergmann won the runner-up spot single handedly as he placed first in the high jump and high and low hurdles and a fifth in the broad jump. He set a state record of 15.6 in the high hurdles that stood for 11 years. The late S.E. 'Irish' Coleman was Rayder coach at the time.

In Saturday's meet Coach Stutzman said that Charlevoix and Bath were competing for the runners-up spot down to the last two events in the meet. A second place in the mile relay and a first in the 440 relay gave the trophy to Charlevoix, its first since 1938.

The 440 yd. relay team which covered the distance in 44.5 was composed of Joe Kaufman, Kevin Speer, Mike Streeter and Kevin Martin.

The mile relay team of Jim Sundberg, Brian Williams, Ed Russell and Chuck Faust set a new school record of 3:30 in taking a second place in this event.

Martin's time of 22.3 gave him a second place in the 220 yd. dash and also set a new school record.

The 880 yd. relay team contributed its share to the overall total with a third place and a new school record. The time was 1:33.1 set by the team composed of Kaufman, Sundberg, Speer and Martin.

Streeter with a jump of 21' 8" tied for third in the broad jump. Speer came in seventh in this event.

Phil Christ with his best put of the season, 50' 10", placed fifth in the shot put.

This meet closed out Charlevoix's most successful season in recent years, a Michigan-Huron Shores Conference, Class C regional and state runner-up plus the Petoskey Relays, Soo Invitational and Rudyard relays and victories in league competition.

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

All those who do not like grateful eulogies should not read this article. The Charlevoix Varsity Tennis Team has just finished its regular season with an outstanding 12-2 record and a class C-D Regional Championship. All this in only its second year of existence.

None of this would have been possible without the support of numerous people and organizations.

Because of the cutback in state funds to the Charlevoix School System, the Board of Education was forced to cancel all funding for the tennis team.

Instead of letting the tennis team become a thing of the past, parents joined together and asked the board to allow the team to participate in an interscholastic program with the funds coming from donations and raffles.

Organized by Gunnar Lundteigen, the parents drove to all the away matches, paying for their own gas. For this, the team is grateful to the Gilberts, Hosmers, Lass's, Slone's, Malpeli's, Wierners and Lundteigens.

Edith Gilbert solicited and received generous donations from the Belvedere Club, the Chicago Club, and the Charlevoix Club. The Malpelis' also made a generous donation.

The parents used this money to set up a raffle with the full cooperation of Dick Oestrike and Portside Sports. Jack Grubaugh won the $150 first prize while Sandy Hufford was the $100 second place winner.

Although the school system was unable to financially assist the team this year, several people in the system were a tremendous help. Athletic Director Dale Burge scheduled about half of the matches and kept in constant communication with these schools. Joan Grubaugh not only maintained all the eligibility lists but she also had the unenviable task of letting the teachers know when students had to leave early for away matches.

Without the help of all these people the organizations, the 1975 tennis team would have been non-existent. If the team had a reverse 2-12 record with a last place finish in the regionals, the season still would have been a huge success. Mutual co-operation and effort in a common interest made the 1975 tennis season an extremely rewarding experience for all involved.

A final note of gratitude goes to the entire Charlevoix community. With only four public courts, it takes an understanding public to have a tennis team.

The team of twenty-five members used the courts for an hour and a half on weekdays and approximately three hours on home match days. Without a patient community, there could have been many more problems over the courts than actually occurred.

Some might ask if a tennis team is worth all this effort. To this, I can only reply: The most important educational lesson a youth can learn is the value of hard work, sportsmanship and mutual cooperation.

CHARLEVOIX LITTLE Leaguers played their Memorial Day Double Header Saturday. The game had been postponed because of rain on Memorial Day. Those winning prizes in the drawing held between the games were Myrl Keller, a sofa and chair from Don Brown's House of Furniture; Mary Balm, two prime rib dinners from Bourke's Steak & Stein; James Johnston, a shrimp dinner from the Argonne; Fern Best of Ellsworth, dinner at Juillerel's; and Christopher Burge, dinner from Juillerel's.

Thinclads Take Third Title

The Charlevoix Rayder thinclads captured their third straight Michigan-Huron Shores Conference and field title last Friday with a total of 85 points.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Each spring thousands of motorcycle buyers flood dealerships to spend hard earned money on the wrong cycle.

The wrong cycle is one unsuited to the use it will get. It is bought in haste, with little thought given to the real needs of the rider.

You can come very close to choosing your ideal bike by following two simple guidelines:

(1) CAPACITY - Consider the amount of weight you plan to carry fur long trips or on a regular basis. Include here; your weight, your passenger's, and that of your baggage. To this total add 25 percent. This figure gives you the carrying capacity of the motorcycle you need.

(2) POWER - This is harder. Power is rated in different ways. This makes comparison between makes difficult. The closest measure for our purpose is cruising speed.

Decide at what speed you intend to cruise and add 25-35 percent to that figure. This should give you a bike with adequate power to handle the unexpected, and carry your load.

The single reason for following these guidelines is longevity. Yours and the bike's. Overloading and underpowering cause dangerous handling and excessive wear. Both are extremely hazardous to your health.

These are minimum standards. Feel free to exceed them. It will cost, but the returns are longer life for the motorcycle and a safer ride for you.

Those new to biking should start on a new machine. You can't learn to ride if your cycle is always in the shop or torn to pieces on the drive. Most people give up on cycles because of bad mechanical experience inherited from a former owner.

A new bike warranty is some assurance that you will get the most riding time for your money. It also means that your mount should be mechanically safe. The real joys of motorcycling are the freedom and economy it offers. Learning the basics of good cycle maintenance rather than how to do a complete rebuild in your first weeks of ownership.

The bike you buy is important but so is the dealer. He provides your warranty service. This can make or break you or the machine.

Find a dealer with a good reputation. Talk to other riders to find out what kind of experience they've had with the one you're considering. Get enough opinions and always consider where they come from. The problem may be with the owner and not the dealer. There are more poor riders than unfair dealers.

Library notes

Biographies and autobiographies continue to remain very much in demand by our readers, and the reason is not surprising. Truth is so often more interesting than fiction.

'Princess Alice,' the biography of Alice Roosevelt Longworth is one of the most distinguished and noteworthy biographies which has come along for quite some time. Written by James Brough, no newcumer to the world of literature, the book gives us a sparkling count of the vivacious daughter of Teddy Roosevelt who captured the heart of the nation when she was only eighteen. Teddy was called a brilliant madman born a hundred years too soon, and Alice was a chip off the old block. She did dreadful, shocking things for a young lady in her era. She capered unchaperoned among groups of young men, bet at the racetracks and smoked cigarettes. And today at ninety-one she is still the toast of the town and as outrageous as ever. In her own words: "I'm the old firehouse. I give a good show." This exceptional book is recommended for everyone, and everyone will want to read it.

It would seem that enough material has been published about Judy Garland, the little girl who never grew up, to last awhile, but there is still another new biography about her, written by Anne Edwards who, we are told, has re-created the life, the sorrows, the joys and the disasters of the legendary woman. We withhold comment on this one.

'Clout' is another new biography. This time about Mayor Daley. 'Clout' in Chicago means "political boss" and-make no mistake about it-that is exactly what he is. Written by Len O'Connor, Chicago's most provocative news analyst, this is a carefully documented analysis and description of America's last great boss. Even Daley will be surprised at what the author discloses; for the first time, the tracks he thought he had covered so well are revealed. It is a spellbinding book if you are interested in learning more about Richard Daley.

'Another Part of the Wood' is a self portrait of Kenneth Clark. It is the absorbing story of an exceptional boy who, at the age of thirty, was appointed Director of the National Gallery. This is not just a book about the world of art. It contains a number of most incredible stories which he guarantees are absolutely true. We are most familiar with 'Lord Clark of Saltwood' because of his recent television series "Civilization".

Our final selection in this list of new autobiographies and biographies is 'Escape From the Shadows' by Robin Maugham. After a long career of writing novels and plays, the author turns now to give us a rather harrowing autobiography, a story of suffering and disappointment. He spares no intimate details in describing the constant struggle to escape from the shadows of his father, Lord Chancellor of England.

Camoletti and adapted by Beverly Cross, Mr. Johnson becomes a Paris Lothario with three fiancees. Each is an airline hostess and when their schedules cross the bachelor has problems.

Musical entertainment is next on the Cherry County bill as Ed Ames stars in The Fantasticks. This will be the first musical produced by the Playhouse in its twenty year history. The Fantasticks is America's longest running show and for this production the Cherry County Playhouse will depart from its one play a week schedule and feature Ed Ames from August 12 through 24.

The closing production August 24-31 has not yet been chosen.

The box office will open June 15. Prior to that date mail orders and ticket information may be sent to the Cherry County Playhouse, P.O. Box 661, Traverse City, MI 49684.

Auxiliary Selling Chances on Quilt

More money toward the purchase of a fetal monitor by the Charlevoix Area Hospital will be raised through the sale of tickets on a hand-made quilt.

The quilt, made by Mrs. George Willis, was purchased by the Women's Guild at the hospital. It is now on display at Haggard's Bath and Bed Shop.

Tickets on the quilt may be purchased from any member of the Hospital Guild or at the Show Case in the lobby of the hospital. Guild members needing more tickets may get them from June Cross, phone 547-9848, or Barb Steele, phone 547-4324.

Charlevoix Gardeners To Plant Flowers

The Charlevoix Garden Club will have a work session tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon starting at one o'clock to plant flowers in the Mercer Avenue and Michigan Avenue Gardens.

The flower plants are being donated again this year by Robert Elliott of Frank's Flowers. New Garden Club members participating in the planting are Kate Brady, Bonnie Hicks and Rosalie Menzies.

Women who will work in the Michigan Avenue plot ask motorists turning the Charlevoix-Michigan Avenue bend to watch out for them. Their only protection will be a couple of saw horses and brightly colored clothes.

45-year history of Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co

As Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co prepares to host a grand opening in its spacious new Alpena warehouse facility, members of management and staff are taking a glance backward at a business that has prospered since the beginning — even through a time when grocery retailing methods were undergoing a major change.

Alpena Wholesale came into existence in 1930 as successor to the National Grocery-co, but the seed for the business had been planted many years before.

The basic organization was originally founded in 1890 by Frank C. Holmes, a member of a prominent Alpena family during the era, who operated a wholesale gorcery company until 1920. At that time, National Grocery-co purchased the business from Holmes and continued in operation for the next decade.

During the time that the wholesale grocery operation was growing out of infancy in the hands of Holmes and the National Grocery-co, another viable Alpena business was becoming established in the community — the Douville Bakery. Fate had it that the business interests of the two firms would meet one day and follow a common path.

Leave Lumber Camps

During the winter of 1884, Mr. & Mrs. Jeremiah Douville were working as cooks in the lumber camps of NorthEastern Michigan, near Alpena. They worked at this for some years of their early married life. In the spring of 1885, after the camps broke up for the warmer months, Mrs. Douville told her husband of her desire to quit working in the camps and to start a business of their own in Alpena.

Since their knowledge was basically in cooking and baking, they opened a wholesale bakery in the city that spring. The firm's goods were delivered by horse and van in the city, and by horse-drawn stage and railroads to the outlying communities.

The business grew and, with the advent of the automobile, the Douville firm started delivery by truck — eventually operating seven wholesale routes and two retail stores, and covering an area of 90 miles around.

The baking business continued to prosper and, in time, was turned over to Louis Douville — son of the founders.

Louis Douville, being young and aggressive, proceeded to make investments outside of the bakery. It was at that time, in 1930, that National Grocery-co had announced plans to go out of business.

Sees Needs

The younger Douville, recognized a need to keep the wholesale grocery business going as a supplier to his bakery, talked to other Alpena businessmen about purchasing the firm.

Joining Douville as partners in the new venture were H. Clare Masters, an Alpena shoe merchant; Richard Piepkorn, a coal dealer in the community; and Robert Polzin, who operated a downtown Alpena grocery store, said to be one of the finest in northern Michigan.

The partnership continued until 1941 when Douville bought out Masters, Piepkorn and Polzin. In August of 1943 Stephan H. (Jasper) Nowak, Harold Parks and George Mishica came into the business as partners.

The firm continued in the old style of wholesaling — the staff calling on the trade and taking orders. They were able to work with Grand Traverse Wholesale Grocer-co in Traverse City and the Soo Wholesale Grocer-co in Sault Ste. Marie in developing a limited line of private brand merchandise under the name of "Cherry Blossom." Included was coffee, tomato juice and a few other items — thus increasing buying power by combining orders.

In 1946 Douville heard about the Independent Grocers Alliance (IGA) — a voluntary association of retail food dealers working under the IGA banner nationally. He went to the IGA headquarters in Chicago to find out about the new method of wholesaling and developing stronger retailers.

Joins IGA

Douville was greatly impressed and wanted to join IGA because he felt it was an answer to the wholesale and retail competition of national chains which were coming on strong at that time. He could see the advantage of the wholesalers and retailers working together under the guidance of IGA in developing retail, independently owned stores throughout the area. The stores would have the image of national chains and be able to compete and keep the retailers strong and make them a viable force in the retail food market field.

Douville secured an IGA franchise for Alpena Wholesale and proceeded to adopt the principles of the Alliance. He convinced retailers that the new program appeared to be the path to follow. Salesmen were taken off the road and orders were taken using a new order form method.

Alpena Wholesale instituted a cost plus pricing in the warehouse, developed group advertising, aided in site selection and evaluation, store design and construction, equipment, layout and procurement. Additional services and benefits were extended to customers in the form of interior and exterior store decor, business counseling, accounting, personnel training, insurance programs, building, equipment and other insurances, and weekly market news.

Area Extended

Prior to joining with IGA in 1946, Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co had a service area extending south to Tawas, north to Cheboygan and west to Gaylord. With the IGA franchise, the firm was assigned Alpena, Alcona, Cheboygan, Crawford, Iosco, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties and part of Emmet County. In 1953 the territory was expanded to include Antrim, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Wexford, Manistee, Mason, Lake, Benzie, Leelanau and Missaukee Counties and the remainder of Emmet County. All of Chippewa County and the eastern half of Mackinac County in the Upper Peninsula were also put into Alpena's service area in 1963.

All of the above-named factors combined to develop and help Northern Michigan retailers grow and become more profitable. The Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co business growth factor is approaching 30 per cent per year.

It is notable to point out that the company handled more business during certain three-day periods last summer than in all of 1946 — the year the IGA franchise was secured.

In terms of employment growth, Alpena Wholesale Gorcer-co started with 10 staff people in 1930. That number has grown to a work force of 42 this year.

Douville met an untimely death in an automobile accident in 1946, just as the company was being launched into a bright future in association with IGA. It was at that time that his son-in-law Fred Johnston joined the company as a stockholder.

Mishica continued on as a stockholder until his retirement in 1956 and when Parks retired in 1961, Johnston became the company president. Gerald and Tom Nowak came into the company as executive vice-president and vice-president respectively upon the retirement of their father, Jasper, in 1968.

Move to new warehouse

Until recently the firm was located at 224 W. Fletcher-st, in the original building constructed by Holmes. Two additions were attached to the original warehouse over the years. The nearby Detroit & Mackinac Railway warehouse building was also leased to provide more storage and working space.

Since 1955, four cash and carry warehouses of 5,000 square feet each were opened in Alpena, Gaylord, Cadillac and Petoskey to serve smaller stores, restaurants, gasoline stations and the like. Another cash and carry store is under construction in West Branch, and is scheduled to open in June. It is estimated by company officials that the cash and carry outlets serve 350 customers annually.

Ground was broken in June of 1974 for a new and modern warehouse complex located on Industrial-av in Alpena's North Industrial Park. The move to the new facility was made in January of this year.

According to Johnston, the new building provides 66,000 square feet of warehouse space and an additional 4,000 feet for offices.

Johnston pointed out that in the new building, there is nearly 1.6 million cubic feet of storage feet as compared to only 300,000 cubic feet that was available in the Fletcher-st building.

The firm's entire Alpena operation is now located in the Industrial-av building, with exception of the cash and carry outlets.

Originally Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co sold only dry groceries. The list has been expanded to include cheese, frozen food, and some fresh meat.

Customer services

Another service to Alpena Wholesale retailers is a direct billing program, whereby goods are delivered directly to the stores by packers. The store owner signs for the goods, and then is billed by Alpena Wholesale.

Alpena Wholesale is presently capable of supplying a store with its entire stock. A store accounting service is also available, if the retailer desires to use it.

A frozen foods service is one of the most recent additions to the Alpena Wholesale marketing program. A 6,000 square foot freezer has been added at the new warehouse, providing 135,000 cubic feet of storage space for the some 300 varieties of frozen items that will be stocked. The firm will also be the first to handle Fabbrini pizzas on a warehouse basis.

Alpena wholesale started in 1930 with two delivery vehicles. Now the company has 7 tractors and 10 trailers — three capable of transporting frozen foods. The firm always had rail service.

The Alpena warehouse is the supplier for 48 IGA stores in Northern Michigan, and an additional 80 other independent stores.

That basically is Alpena Wholesale's history.

Last Saturday the company hosted the people it does business with for a weekend celebration, including a banquet for 300 people at the Civic Center Saturday night. The new warehouse building was open for inspection on Sunday for the same people.

Other open houses are scheduled for invited guests at 6:30 p.m. June 6 and from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 7 for the general public.

Dear Fred:

Congratulations on your new warehouse and distribution center. Your company's decision to go ahead with its new 70,000 sq. ft. facility in Alpena is certainly an important milestone in the economic growth of the northern lower peninsula. Even apart from the direct employment it will provide, this project will tend to stablize further the business strength of your region.

For many years, as you know, our Office has been concerned with the economic health of Alpena and that part of the State of which it is the metropolis. We have noted with sattisfaction the development of your industrial park in which the new warehouse will be located and the efforts which have been made to further the area's development. The confidence which your company has expressed in the future of that region by its new investment provides a positive contribution to the area's economic future.

I am looking forward to viewing the new facility and having the opportunity to offer my congratulations in person to you and your associates.

Yours very truly,

45-year history of Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co

As Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co prepares to host a grand opening in its spacious new Alpena warehouse facility, members of management and staff are taking a glance backward at a business that has prospered since the beginning — even through a time when grocery retailing methods were undergoing a major change.

Alpena Wholesale came into existence in 1930 as successor to the National Groeery-co, but the seed for the business had been planted many years before.

The basic organization was originally founded in 1890 by Frank C. Holmes, a member of a prominent Alpena family during the era, who operated a wholesale gorcery company until 1920. At that time, National Grocery-co purchased the business from Holmes and continued in operation for the next decade.

During the time that the wholesale grocery operation was growing out of infancy in the hands of Holmes and the National Grocery-co, another viable Alpena business was becoming established in the community — the Douville Bakery. Fate had it that the business interests of the two firms would meet one day and follow a common path.

Leave Lumber Camps

During the winter of 1884, Mr. & Mrs. Jeremiah Douville were working as cooks in the lumber camps of NorthEastern Michigan, near Alpena. They worked at this for some years of their early married life. In the spring of 1885, after the camps broke up for the warmer months, Mrs. Douville told her husband of her desire to quit working in the camps and to start a business of their own in Alpena.

Since their knowledge was basically in cooking and baking, they opened a wholesale bakery in the city that spring. The firm's goods were delivered by horse and van in the city, and by horse-drawn stage and railroads to the outlying communities.

The business grew and, with the advent of the automobile, the Douville firm started delivery by truck — eventually operating seven wholesale routes and two retail stores, and covering an area of 90 miles around.

The baking business continued to prosper and, in time, was turned over to Louis Douville — son of the founders.

Louis Douville, being young and aggressive, proceeded to make investments outside of the bakery. It was at that time, in 1930, that National Grocery-co had announced plans to go out of business.

Sees Needs

The younger Douville, recognized a need to keep the wholesale grocery business going as a supplier to his bakery, talked to other Alpena businessmen about purchasing the firm.

Joining Douville as partners in the new venture were H. Clare Masters, an Alpena shoe merchant; Richard Piepkorn, a coal dealer in the community; and Robert Polzin, who operated a downtown Alpena grocery store, said to be one of the finest in northern Michigan.

The partnership continued until 1941 when Douville bought out Masters, Piepkorn and Polzin. In August of 1943 Stephan H. (Jasper) Nowak, Harold Parks and George Mishica came into the business as partners.

The firm continued in the old style of wholesaling — the staff calling on the trade and taking orders. They were able to work with Grand Traverse Wholesale Grocer-co in Traverse City and the Soo Wholesale Grocer-co in Sault Ste. Maric in developing a limited line of private brand merchandise under the name of "Cherry Blossom." Included was coffee, tomato juice and a few other items — thus increasing buying power by combining orders.

In 1946 Douville heard about the Independent Grocers Alliance (IGA) — a voluntary association of retail food dealers working under the IGA banner nationally. He went to the IGA headquarters in Chicago to find out about the new method of wholesaling and developing stronger retailers.

Joins IGA

Douville was greatly impressed and wanted to join IGA because he felt it was an answer to the wholesale and retail competition of national chains which were coming on strong at that time. He could see the advantage of the wholesalers and retailers working together under the guidance of IGA in developing retail, independently owned stores throughout the area. The stores would have the image of national chains and be able to compete and keep the retailers strong and make them a viable force in the retail food market field.

Douville secured an IGA franchise for Alpena Wholesale and proceeded to adopt the prineiples of the Alliance. He convinced retailers that the new program appeared to be the path to follow. Salesmen were taken off the road and orders were taken using a new order form method.

Alpena Wholesale instituted a cost plus pricing in the warehouse, developed group advertising, aided in site selection and evaluation, store design and construction, equipment, layout and proeurement. Additional services and benefits were extended to customers in the form of interior and exterior store decor, business counseling, accounting, personnel training, insurance programs, building, equipment and other insurances, and weekly market news.

Area Extended

Prior to joining with IGA in 1946, Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co had a service area extending south to Tawas, north to Cheboygan and west to Gaylord. With the IGA franchise, the firm was assigned Alpena, Alcona, Cheboygan, Crawford, Iosco, Montmorency, Oscoda, Otsego and Presque Isle counties and part of Emmet County. In 1953 the territory was expanded to include Antrim, Charlevoix, Grand Traverse, Kalkaska, Wexford, Manistee, Mason, Lake, Benzie, Leelanau and Missaukee Counties and the remainder of Emmet County. All of Chippewa County and the eastern half of Mackinac County in the Upper Peninsula were also put into Alpena's service area in 1963.

All of the above-named factors combined to develop and help Northern Michigan retailers grow and become more profitable. The Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co business growth factor is approaching 30 per cent per year.

It is notable to point out that the company handled more business during certain three-day periods last summer than in all of 1946 — the year the IGA franchise was secured.

In terms of employment growth, Alpena Wholesale Gorcer-co started with 10 staff people in 1930. That number has grown to a work force of 42 this year.

Douville met an untimely death in an automobile accident in 1946, just as the company was being launched into a bright future in association with IGA. It was at that time that his son-in-law Fred Johnston joined the company as a stockholder.

Mishica continued on as a stockholder until his retirement in 1956 and when Parks retired in 1961, Johnston became the company president. Gerald and Tom Nowak eame into the company as executive vice-president and vice-president respectively upon the retirement of their father, Jasper, in 1968.

Move to new warehouse

Until recently the firm was located at 224 W. Fletcher-st, in the original building constructed by Holmes. Two additions were attached to the original warehouse over the years. The nearby Detroit & Maekinac Railway warehouse building was also leased to provide more storage and working spaee.

Since 1955, four eash and carry warehouses of 5,000 square feet each were opened in Alpena, Gaylord, Cadillac and Petoskey to serve smaller stores, restaurants, gasoline stations and the like. Another eash and earry store is under construction in West Branch, and is scheduled to open in June. It is estimated by company officials that the cash and carry outlets serve 350 customers annually.

Ground was broken in June of 1974 for a new and modern warehouse complex located on Industrial-av in Alpena's North Industrial Park. The mnve to the new facility was made in January of this year.

According to Johnston, the new building provides 66,000 square feet of warehouse space and an additional 4,000 feet for offices.

Johnston pointed out that in the new building, there is nearly 1.6 million cubic feet of storage feet as compared to only 300,000 cubic feet that was available in the Fletcher-st building.

The firm's entire Alpena operation is now located in the Industrial-av building, with exception of the cash and carry outlets.

Originally Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co sold only dry groceries. The list has been expanded to include cheese, frozen food, and some fresh meat.

Customer services

Another service to Alpena Wholesale retailers is a direct billing program, whereby goods are delivered directly to the stores by packers. The store owner signs for the goods, and then is billed by Alpena Wholesale.

Alpena Wholesale is presently capable of supplying a store with its entire stock. A store accounting service is also available, if the retailer desires to use it.

A frozen foods service is one of the most recent additions to the Alpena Wholesale marketing program. A 6,000 square foot freezer has been added at the new warehouse, providing 135,000 cubic feet of storage space for the some 300 varieties of frozen items that will be stocked. The firm will also be the first to handle Fabbrini pizzas on a warehouse basis.

Alpena wholesale started in 1930 with two delivery vehicles. Now the company has 7 tractors and 10 trailers — three capable of transporting frozen foods. The firm always had rail servicе.

The Alpena warehouse is the supplier for 48 IGA stores in Northern Michigan, and an additional 80 other independent stores.

That baseeally is Alpena Wholesale's history.

Last Saturday the company hosted the people it does business with for a weekend celebration, ineluding a banquet for 300 people at the Civic Center Saturday night. The new warehouse building was open for inspection on Sunday for the same people.

Other open houses are scheduled for invited guests at 6:30 p.m. June 6 and from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. June 7 for the general public.

Dear Fred:

Congratulations on your new warehouse and distribution center. Your company's decision to go ahead with its new 70,000-sq. ft. facility in Alpena is certainly an important milestone in the economic growth of the northern lower peninsula. Even apart from the direct employment it will provide, this project will tend to stablize further the business strength of your region.

For many years, as you know, our Office has been concerned with the economic health of Alpena and that part of the State of which it is the metropolis. We have noted with satisfaction the development of your industrial park in which the new warehouse will be located and the efforts which have been made to further the area's development. The confidence which your company has expressed in the future of that region by its new investment provides a positive contribution to the area's economic future.

TableRite meat program gave IGA a boost

No phase of IGA's headquarters operation is more important than the TableRite meat program. Previous to the inauguration of this program in 1952, IGA members lacked the one great weapon of their chain competitors — the systematic meat buying and controlled merchandising methods.

The entire meat program is run on the premise that chain competition if offering quality meat, that IGA retailers in a given area must offer meat as good or better and win in the field of operating efficiency and merchandising. While many IGA wholesalers in the growing areas employ their own meat selectors, headquarters also employes four meat selectors who do the buying for all wholesalers not in the growing area. All IGA meat selectors are headquarters trained and use the same methods. Their basic instructions are: (1) Buy meat of quality at least equal to that offered by competing chains, (2) In addition to quality, be sure of good conformation. On the latter score they must excercise particular care. A chain meat manager must accept a carcass of poor conformation but the IGA meat manager may reject it.

All meat is selected at the packer's plant (packers' branch house facilities are used for delivery only), and once chosen is rolled "TableRite" so that the retailer not only may be assured he is getting IGA selected beef but may also benefit from the increasing prestige of the trade name as it is applied to a growing list of meat items.

Headquarters participating in the TableRite program does not end with the buying function. Wholesalers are encouraged to put on one or more cutting tests per week (depending on the size of the territory serviced). These cutting tests are conducted in one of the stores and attendance limited to personnel of two or three nearby stores. This way all who attend take an actual part in the cutting. Carefull record keeping is stressed as indispensable to the program.

The advantages of IGA's meat program are summarized as follows:

1. Eliminates salesmen-frees retailers' buying time for selling, administrative and merchandising activities.
2. Insures dependable quality at all times.
3. Insures dependable conformation.
4. Eliminates shorts.
5. Provides better balanced suggested retail price list for competitive selling.
6. Provides a better advertising and promotions program.
7. Provides opportunity for supervision.
8. Provides up-to-date information (at all times) on retail meat merchandising trends.
9. Provides better control of inventory.
10. Enables the retailer to make maximum net profits while satisfying his customers.

Alpena Wholesale Grocery-co Executive Vice-President Gerald Nowak points out that there is a wide range of quality within the various government grades of beef — choice, prime, standard. He said that is where the IGA selectors go to work, picking out the top beef within a certain grade.

Nowak said IGA currently has six selectors operating in the midwest, primarily in the major beef-growing sections of the country.

"These selectors work on a personal basis. For instance, they know what type of beef a certain store owner in Alpena wants," Nowak said.

IGA retailers pay for this service, at the rate of about two-thirds of a cent per pound.

IGA idea was born in 1926

One night way back in 1926, three gentlemen sat in a train going from Chicago to Poughkeepsie, N.Y., and they were discussing the plight of the independent grocer who at that time was rapidly fading from the American scene.

They recognized his weaknesses ... he had no vast buying power, no concentrated merchandising, his prices were high, he offered credit and free delivery, and thus had a high cost method of doing business, and he was unable to match the advertising expenditure of the chain stores. Lastly, he lacked a name or a banner under which he could fight for the necessary things for survival.

These three gentlemen conceived the idea of IGA and within the next few days plans for IGA were formulated, and a wholesaler and 25 stores had signed up. This was the start of one of the greatest movements of all times to bring independent business to the forefront.

A philosophy for business

Editor's note: Following is the text of Alpena Wholesale Grocer-co's philosophy:

"We believe in being a source of strength and growth to our customers, IGA members, and suppliers and that all of our transactions with them be based on honesty and truth.

"We believe we should help develop the people in our organization to their maximum potential in a climate that creates a high degree of employee morale.

"We believe that the products and services we offer must be of the highest quality so that we may merit the respect, the confidence and the loyalty of our customers, IGA members, and consumers.

"We believe in being good citizens ... taking an active interest in community projects and civic activities.

"We believe all of our activities must be planned and executed so that the company can develop its leadership and be regarded highly in the industry.

"We believe in earning a reasonable profit so that the company will remain financially strong to enable our continued growth and thus, perpetuate this philosophy."

Retail grocers achieve independence under IGA

IGA firmly believes that every member retailer is entitled to the greatest possible return he can get on his investment of money, time and effort.

At the same time, IGA also believes that operating a retail food store is a public trust ... that every retailer has a responsibility to himself, his community, and the voluntary group movement of which he is a part to run the very best food store in his trading area.

In line with this thinking, IGA suppliers make a careful analysis of every trading area to determine what type of store the people want and will support. Then, all the resources of the IGA organization are made available to help the retailer create that kind of store.

Once the store is right for its community, the retailer is given every assistance to help keep it that way. Long-range sales volume objectives are established each calendar period. If the retailer fails to make his objective, an immediate search is made to find out why. Once the causes are determined and corrected, the IGA advertising department develops a special promotional program that will produce sufficient store traffic to bring sales up to quota.

IGA suppliers also maintain a business service department which serves as the retailer's bookkeeping and accounting service. Periodic profit and loss statements are rendered with a complete analysis of the retailer's operation and recommendations for plugging up any profit leaks which may be costing him money.

Success in any commercial undertaking is always a two-way proposition. In other words, for IGA to have grown to its present size, it has been necessary for it to perform a variety of useful services for its retailers. Similarly, for IGA to have performed these services, it has been necessary for individual retailers to assume an obligation to the organization, also.

Here are some of the ways in which IGA expects its retailers to cooperate so that both they and IGA can continue to grow:

1. IGA asks every retailer to proudly identify himself and his operation as a member of the great international IGA family. This means through dramatic, official IGA identification on the building proper, as well as in promotions, advertising, publicity, and community relations.

2. IGA asks that retailers cooperate 100 per cent in all merchandise programs. This includes the TableRite Meat Program, TableFresh Produce Program, IGA Dairy and Bakery Programs, as well as all other IGA private labels so that no opportunity is missed to build a growing consumer market for merchandise that can be purchased only through IGA stores.

3. IGA asks that all retailers cooperate fully — on a year-around basis — with their supplier's advertising and promotional program. This generally entails an expenditure of no more than one per cent of sales. Yet, it assures continuous, week-in and week-out impact on the market to build a constantly stronger consumer awareness of the IGA name.

4. IGA asks that its member retailers channel all purchasing through their IGA suppliers to keep building their purchasing power, enabling them to buy more effectively and making it possible for the suppliers to constantly enlarge their supplementary dealer services and facilities.

5. IGA asks that all its retailers think in terms of growth and expansion. The secret of success for hundreds of outstanding IGA operations in the United States and Canada has been a continuous process of store improvement until volume reaches a level of $4 per square foot of sales space, then expansion. Any retailer who conscientiously works to such a timetable is sure to succeed.

Stolt Road Controversy Ends Up in Public Hearing

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

The possibility of Hayes Township's Stolt Road remaining a gravel-dirt road running through a climax forest and pasture land, will go before a public hearing sometime within the next six months.

The hearing announcement comes after Mrs. Todd Warner, a property owner along the road, presented a petition Monday to the Charlevoix Road Commission to preserve the road as a Michigan Natural Beauty Road.

Don Graham, Road Commission Chairman, is accepting the petition, explained that a public hearing must now be held within six months.

Stolt Road, a secondary road, has been slated for improvement by the Hayes Township Board.

In April, the Hayes trustees unanimously agreed to proceed with plans to improve the road, as they had originally budgeted, despite protests raised by the Warners.

The township budgeted $25,000 for the project.

The Warners, self-employed sculptors, who live and operate in their pottery studio-residence on Stolt Rd., objected to Hayes Township's improvement proposal arguing that they and their employees were the major users of the road. They maintained they were content to forego such services as mail delivery and the school bus routes, to preserve the one mile section under question.

The township trustees amazed by the opposition to road improvement, reaffirmed their earlier decision at a meeting May 5.

While most other property owners along the section supported the township's decision, the Warners have said they have a slim majority against change, based on road footage ownership.

Mrs. Warner cited Tom Hamlin, owner of a large dairy farm on the road as supporting them.

"We do not object to having the road improved. We know we need a new road bed and widened hills, Mrs. Warner told the road commission Monday.

"But, on the basis of the situation of the road, the number of residents and the usage, it doesn't justify a 66 foot right-of-way.

"We'd like to have the road improved, widened but not ripped off."

The Warners and the proponents of road improvement seem to be in conflict over the definition of "improvement."

According to statements made by Irv Sturm, Road Commission Engineer, at the Hayes Township May 5 meeting, and confirmed by Commission Chairman Graham, road commission standards are such that improvement generally necessitates a right-of-way up to 66 feet. The 66 foot right-of-way extends from ditch to ditch, including the road bed.

The Warners pointed out that in most places the present road is only between 12 and 20 feet. Widening to meet Road Commission standards would entail deep cuts into the timber stands of maples, beech, basswood, ironwood, elm and ash, which line the majority of the road.

The improvement plans also call for leveling the road by pushing the hills down into the valleys.

While the Warners acknowledged the hills are a problem, particularly in winter and muddy seasons they said they seek a compromise of widening the road on the hills.

Mrs. Warner presented the commissioners with what she hoped will be another stumbling block to their plans.

At the request of the Warners, Consulting Engineer Arthur Alvin Ranger researched their property abstract.

"To the best of my knowledge there is no record which establishes a legal right of way for Stolt Rd., Ranger said.

The central theme of Mrs. Warner's plea was the need to preserve certain roads for their scenic beauty.

Mrs. Warner told the Commissioners that she and her husband "understand that the commission would have to purchase property for the road. We will sell a reasonable amount for a reasonable price."

She indicated that "reasonable" meant just enough for improvement to make the road safe and passable.

Robert Cook Elected to School Board

Charles Elzinga Re-elected

The Charlevoix Board of Education will again have a seventh member, effective tonight (Tuesday) when Robert J. Cook, retired Vocational Education teacher, is seated to complete the unexpired term of Larry Warner who resigned in April so his successor could be elected rather than appointed.

Cook defeated a second candidate, D. Dawson Way, by a margin of 373 to 260 votes for the two year term resulting from Warner's resignation.

Incumbent Charles Elzinga, who was a candidate for re-election to a four-year term, won over challenger, A. Alvin Ranger. Elzinga won by a 369-269 vote.

Other members of the board are Donald Brown, Max Novak, Ms. Ardeth Wieland, Kenneth Boss, Elzinga and Claire C. Martin.

Tax Board Petitions for Fixed Millage

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners will be petitioned by the County Tax Allocation to place before the voters of the county a proposal for 'fixed millage' following action taken Monday by the County Tax Allocation Board.

By a vote of 5-3 the eight-member board proposed 4.9 mills for the county; 1.0 mill for the townships; 20 mills for the Intermediate School District and 8.9 for the schools for a period of three years.

School districts were especially anxious to have a 'fixed millage' because, as Supt. James A. McKimmy said, "we can do some long-term planning if the people will approve the proposal".

The first millage proposed was for five years and totaled 15.2 mills with 5.0 for the county; 8.9 schools; 1.1 mill, townships and .20 mill, Intermediate District.

This year the county will receive 4.7; schools, 9.1; townships, 1.0 and the Intermediate District, .20.

Voters of the county will have an opportunity to vote on the proposed fixed millage at a special election tentatively scheduled for November.

What's the Latest Scoop on Charlevoix Parking Meters?

By PEG OHLE

Those coin-eating monsters--parking meters--appeared at the curbs last week so we decided to write a little story about them.

We had some questions to ask. How many meters are there in Charlevoix? What is the fine for over-parking? How much parking time does one get for a penny?

We solved the last question by inserting a penny in the meter. The indicator showed we had 12 minutes worth of parking. Which brought up another question. 'There's a sign on the meters which reads, "Parking time limit, 60 minutes." If that is the case, why is there a slot for dimes? At one cent for 12 minutes, maximum parking time should cost five cents. Slots for pennies and nickels should be sufficient.

Then we noticed, in smaller print, "For convenience, 60 minutes for one dime." Which mean, we guess, that if you don't have five pennies or one nickel the machine will gladly accept your dime for 60 minutes of parking, but don't expect any change back because the machine is not equipped for that kind of money handling.

Answers to the other questions were just as hard to get. Nobody in City Hall knew how many parking meters there are. "Ask Pat Doan," they said, "he put them up." As to the cost of a parking ticket the answers were, "Twenty-five cents," and "I think fifty cents. Better ask Pat Doan."

Pat Doan is the male meter maid in Charlevoix. He's hard to find during the day unless you just happen to over-park, but we were lucky enough to reach him.

Pat reported there are 206 meters in Charlevoix (he counted them) and they operate from 8 o'clock in the morning until 6 o'clock in the evening. Each little ticket for over-parking will cost twenty-five cents, Pat said.

But this was all before the City Council met last week. Considering the parking situation, they decided to amend the parking ordinance and came up with a whole new schedule of fines.

So that everyone may know what it will cost to violate the law, here is the revised schedule for various offenses:

(a) PARKING METER VIOLATION If paid within 0-24 hours, $0.50. From 24 hours to 72 hours, $2.00. Excessive meter Violation $4.00. After 72 hours $2.00.

(b) OVERTIME PARKING $2.00.

(c) DOUBLE PARKING $2.00.

(d) NO PARKING ZONE $2.00.

(e) PARKING TOO FAR FROM CURB $2.00

(f) ANGLE PARKING VIOLATION $2.00.

(g.) OBSTRUCTING TRAFFIC $2.00.

(h) PARKING ON SIDEWALK $2.00

(i) PARKING IN FRONT OF DRIVEWAY $2.00

(j) PARKING WITHIN INTERSECTION $2.00

(k) PARKING WITHIN 15 FEET OF FIRE HYDRANT $2.00.

(l) PARKING ON CROSS WALK $2.00.

(m) BLOCKING ALLEY $2.00

(n) PARKING WRONG SIDE OF STREET ON DESIGNATED STREETS $2.00

(o) IMPROPER PARKING $2.00

(p) NO PARKING 2:00 A.M. to 6:00 A.M. (Dec. To April) $2.00

However, down in the fine print it says that the amendment will not take effect until twenty days from date of its adoption, which was June 2.

Here are the responses from last week's question asking whether or not we need to make U.S. 131 a four-lane highway.

Does Not Favor

I am not in favor of 131 being made into a four-lane expressway in northern Michigan due to the increased speed dangers and traffic that will congest our area here.

What's the Hurry

About this U.S. 131 being made into a four lane expressway in Northern Michigan. What's the hurry? At a 55 MPH speed limit I don't think an expressway is necessary, let's take time and look how beautiful N. Michigan is.

Regarding your question of 'Should U.S. 131 be made into a four-lane expressway in Northern Michigan", I can only say emphatically, "NO!" What we do need is more money allocated by the state for improvements to the present roads, particularly paving of the shoulder of the road for use as bicycle lanes and a safer means of pulling off the traveled portion. Too many people are attempting to thrn Northern Michigan into a Lansing, Grand Rapids, or Detroit. Expressways would be a sure way of bringing that sort of grief to us just that much sooner. My family and I elected to live here with lower wages, fewer services, etc., but with the greater advantages of a more relaxed way of life--the same reasons why the "downstaters" want an expressway so they can race up here more often, offering outrageous prices for property and driving up the property values for the rest of us who don't make $20 to 30,900 per year. I'm not opposed to light industry, but let's keep our vacationland vacant.

Newspaper Problem

Your story last week on Charlevoix County's trash problems reminds me once again that there is no place in the area to get rid of newspapers, bottles and cans without dumping them. These items are collected for recycling in many parts of the country. Recycling not only keeps dumps from filling up so fast but also helps conserve our natural resources. It would be a real service to the community if some group would organize to set up a recycling center which, with the high cost of paper and other materials, would probably be self-supporting and perhaps even profitable.

Ruppe Looks At Land Use

One of the most controversial pieces of federal land use legislation is now being considered by Congress and Phil Ruppe hopes that's just as far as it gets.

The bill is now in the final stages of consideration by the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee, on which Ruppe serves.

If the bill becomes law, it would have dramatic effects on areas such as Northern Michigan in the regulation of development and land use.

In a recent interview with the Courier, Ruppe defended his stand in opposing the bill– a switch from several years ago.

"I think it is just not popular," Ruppe says.

"When I first supported the bill two years ago, I really didn't know that much about it."

But during his last campaign, the veteran Congressman found out that opposition to the bill mounted significantly.

"A lot of people think that if land use legislation were to come, it should come through state initiative and not through federal initiative," he continued.

"A lot of people say that if people in the state want a land use bill, then let them pass it."

Ruppe makes no apology for his change in position.

He says that two years ago the bill had a better local government section.

However, the Northern Michigan Congressman says the present bill does not require the state to employ local units of government to help draft and implement a state land use policy.

"Also, there is concern...that the state would have the right to identify areas of more than local concern or areas of critical environmental concern."

With the state having this power, Ruppe says there will be a tendency for more northerly parts of the state to be designated as environmentally critical areas because there would be less political pressure than if it were done near Detroit or Ann Arbor.

In addition, Ruppe says that the designation power would probably be given to the Department of Natural Resources, which already is unpopular.

Ruppe says he has received very little pressure to support the bill. The only two national groups supporting the bill appear to be the American Farm Bureau and American Retail Federation, composed of stores such as Sears and Penney's

He says the federation supports the bill because it thinks the federal government is already into land use regulation with several other federal laws regulating air and water pollution. The federation claims this federal land use bill only would be creating an agency to coordinate existing agencies and programs.

Those opposed to the bill, Ruppe says, are people involved with mining, farming and lumber.

Considerable opposition appears to be coming from small land owners.

Fluoride Treatment Isn't So Bad--Ask Eight-Year-old Heidi Sell

85 Youngsters Participate in Health Program

HEIDI SELL gets flouride treatment

Eight-year-old Heidi Sell wasn't sure if she was going to like Thursday afternoon

It was the Charlevoix second grader's turn to go to the library.

If Heidi had been going to the library to get some books, the Thursday afternoon trip wouldn't have bothered.

But, Heidi wasn't going to the library for books. She was going to the library basement for something called "fluoride."

She was one of 85 Charlevoix youngsters who voluntarily went through the program sponsored by the Michigan Department of Health and District No. 3 Health Department

"I didn't know at first if I wanted to do it," Heidi said after going through the treatment that takes only minutes.

"But after I did it, I'm glad I did."

Heidi said she wasn't exactly sure what the program was for, but she thought it had something to do with the prevention of tooth decay.

"I don't want to get any cavities when I grow up," she added.

According to Heidi, fluoride treatment is simple. All you need is some courage.

"It tastes like salt water," she said while describing the treatment.

"They sort of do a bunch of things I didn't quite like."

Heidi admitted she was one of several who didn't care for the toothpaste that was used to clean her teeth.

But once her teeth were cleaned, she said there was nothing to the application of fluoride on her teeth.

State Health officials estimate the topical flouride program reduces tooth decay by forty percent, compared with the sixty to sixty-five percent reduction in cavities obtained with fluoridated water.

The fluoride program should not be considered a substitute for regular care of teeth either at home or by the dentist.

Although fluoride applications can help prevent cavities, it is still necessary for children to brush their teeth thoroughly, particularly after meals.

Applying the fluoride solution on the children's teeth was Mary Bennett, from West Bloomfield, a senior dental hygiene student at the University of Michigan.

Students Should Submit Academy Requests

Northern Michigan young people who are planning to seek admission to a United States service academy may now submit applications for the class entering in July, 1976.

Any young man who is a legal resident of the 11th District may apply for nomination. Those interested, according to Ruppe, should write him at his Washington office, located at 203 Cannon House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515. The deadline for submitting completed applications is September 30, 1975.

Ruppe noted that with the exception of the United States Merchant Marine Academy, entrants must be male students. This legal requirement would change, however, if a bill passed by the House of Representatives recently becomes law. Ruppe voted for the legislation, which is now awaiting approval by the Senate.

Send Your Kids to Camp Daggett

Even though school has been out for only a few days, are you beginning to wonder what you're going to do with your children this summer?

You might consider sending them to summer camp.

Unlike parents in many communities, Charlevoix residents can give their children a summer camping experience for a lot less money.

In fact, a one-week session costs only $40 if you send them to Camp Daggett on Walloon Lake.

Camp Daggett is a non-profit organization that serves both Emmet and Charlevoix Counties.

Because it gets the support of all service clubs in both communities, it is able to offer a summer experience to local youngsters at a very low cost.

Local youngsters can go to camp for $40 for one week or $75 for two weeks.

The camp for boys and girls has been in operation since 1925.

This year the camp will be celebrating its 50th anniversary and hopes to invite camp alumni back in the middle of the summer for a special celebration.

The camp's first director, Walter MacMillan of Petoskey, is expected to be on hand.

Campers attending any of the six sessions may do anything from sailing to archery during their stay.

The camp specializes in water skills.

Campers sleep on bunk beds and must supply their own bedding.

A registered nurse is on duty 24 hours a day, and the camp is served by two Petoskey hospitals.

Those interested in sending their children to camp may write Camp Daggett, Box 120, Petoskey, or contact either Curt Thompson or Ed Shanahan in Charlevoix, who serve on the camp's board of directors.

Animal Shelter to be Built

After months of making plans and changing plans, Charlevoix County is about to start building an animal shelter.

Last week the Board of Commissioners accepted the bid of $16,290 from the Petrie Construction Company of East Jordan for a 26 foot by 42 foot masonry building, to be constructed adjacent to the Sheriff's headquarters in Charlevoix.

Previous plans called for a pole-type metal building but complaints from residents in the area about possible noise from barking dogs in such a building brought about the decision to go into a masonry building.

Choice of the site near the Sheriff's headquarters was made so that the animals could be easily cared for. The present shelter in Boyne City does not meet state standards and has been under attack for some time by state officials, who cite the lack of water, heat, electricity and ventilation.

The Charlevoix County Humane Society will work closely with the County for better, animal control, licensing, and in finding owners for lost animals and homes for unwanted ones.

Charlevoix Historical Society Elects New Officers and Directors for 1975

The Charlevoix Historical Society elected new officers and two new directors at its regular meeting last week.

They are Edward Beutner, president; Robert C. Miles, first vice-president; Albert Smith, second vice-president, John LaRue, treasurer; Mrs. Carl F. Kohler, secretary; William H. Ohle, director; and Vincent Olach, director.

Hold-over directors of the Society are Mrs. Edith Gilbert, George Nipson, Mrs. Joanne Zinn and Robert Burns.

The next meeting will be held July 1 at 8 p.m. in the Community Room of the First State Bank. Mrs. Gilbert will talk about the old Chicago Beach Hotel at that meeting.

Charlevoix Cracks Down On Overdue Utility Users

Charlevoix's crackdown on over-due utility customers last week came as good news.

City workers began nailing down big placards lettered in red on the doors of businesses which were seriously in arrears.

The owners were notified they had 48 hours to settle up or make arrangements to pay.

While the city has not deprived anyone of water or electric service, city fathers have made it clear they will no longer tolerate unpaid bills.

Although some have questioned the taetic of physically nailing a placard on the door of a local business or home, the move apparently has drawn more response than the many notices sent out to past-due customers.

In fact, City Administrator Robert Wexstaff has said the response has been encouraging, with several paying well over $500 in arrears.

No one apparently knows the exact amount of money that is owned the city in past-due accounts, but Councilman Ralph McRae has estimated that unpaid utility bills and water and sewage tap-in fees amount to well over $50,000.

Much of this money, according to McRae, is owed by Charlevoix's new condominiums.

Although there seems to be a tendency to lump condominiums into one group, it should be mentioned that Charlevoix's Chez Charlevoix condominiums are not among those that have not paid their city bills.

It should also be noted that some of the owners have made a strong effort to cooperate as much as they can with the city in abiding by its requests.

To avoid any future misrepresentations of who has and has not been paying city bills, the city should consider getting money in advance for water and sewer tap-ins.

The pay-in-advance policy was brought out by several city officials at the last council meeting. We feel this type of policy has a lot of merit.

The city should continue with its strong collection policy, so that residents know they can't use city money and take advantage of other taxpayers.

Help Summer Visitors

A local summer camp has a motto saying, "The Other Fellow First."

With school out and summer now confronting us, it might be a good time to take heed of the summer camp's motto.

Unlike many other communities, Charlevoix has a large number of visitors flocking into its shops and beaches.

Living here the year around, it is easy to forget that these visitors represent the life blood of this community and make it possible for many of us to be able to live here all year.

Take time this summer to help visitors with directions when they are in need and attempt to make their visit as pleasant as possible.

Their return trip at a later time could mean your stay for another year.

Hart Will Be Missed In Legislature

Senator Philip A. Hart quietly called it quits last week and said he will not run again.

The Michigan Democrat is now serving his third six-year term.

"No person is irreplacable and no one institution is that important," Hart said in his prepared statement last week.

"The guard should be changed with some regularity."

Hart, 64, was first elected to the Senate in 1958 and has become one of the chamber's foremost liberal spokesmen.

Hart has often been criticized for the stands he has taken.

While Michigan has powerful gun and hunting lobbies, he has campaigned to ban or control handguns.

Even though the auto industry is one of the biggest in Michigan, the U.S. Senator has supported Ralph Nader's safety campaigns and has crusaded for breaking up concentrated industries, including auto companies.

His proudest accomplishment was the landmark 1965 Voting Rights Act, which has changed the face of politics in the South and much of the rest of the nation.

While Hart says no one is irreplaceable, we think Michigan will have a tough time finding a replacement who will be able to match his accomplishments.

Answers Flag Problem

Dear Sir:

In answer to the comment on "Hotline", captioned "No Flags" (June 4, 1975 Courier) let me state:

We do welcome suggestions and criticisms from Charlevoixans, newcomers or old-timers; often we need to be jacked up, now and then, including our outward expressions of natural pride and patriotism.

However: Etiquette of the Flag demands that the American flag not be flown in the rain. I quote:

"The flag should be displayed from sunrise to sunset on all days when the weather permits...(on Memorial Day, half-staff until noon)...It should not be displayed on days when the weather is inclement..."

I, too, felt disappointed that I could not hoist my own flag because of the rain.

Sincerely, (Miss) Florence Garden

"Saluting the Past, Charlevoix Looks to the Future"

When you mention participation in the bicentennial, the first thing that comes to most peoples' minds is a project done through group effort and one that usually involves some means of funding.

Be daring! Think for yourself.

You may not receive all the heralding and pats on the back after your project is completed, but you have gained a satisfaction that can only be yours.

Smaller scaled projects also leave their mark upon time. One of the brightest will be Charlevoix High School's Student Council's effort to paint the town and confuse the dogs. Take a look at the fire hydrants and trash cans next time your strolling through the park. Do any of the faces look familiar? They are caricatures of the kinds of people who settled this area.

Not to be outdone when it comes to coloring, the Boyne Falls Bicentennial Commission sponsored a bicentennial coloring book contest for its elementary school children. There was a first and second place winner for each grade from kindergarten through sixth grade. The prize for first place was a gift of $5 and the second place winner received a ticket for the rodeo which will be at their festival this August. Being from "out of town" ranked Dr. John Lignell, Bill Fetus, and myself as "experts" with the necessary qualifications needed to be judges. I must say this experience was a first for all of us and quite enjoyable.

Another way you could celebrate our nation's bicentennial is to take an active interest in your local government. Don't just follow the reports of what happened at your city council meetings, attend them! Unless you're there to voice an opinion at the appropriate moment, you are letting a handful of people make your decisions for you. Personally, I think twice before I let other people make my decisions for me.

The whole point of the bicentennial is to stimulate your interest in what is happening to your nation. Needless to say, it all begins at the grassroots level, and that means you. The only way a system is going to work is if you contribute a little of your effort. No guarantees, but your chances are a whole lot better.

There are many other ways in which an individual can participate in his community. Are you a person who enjoys many of the summer's festivities? Get out there and do your bit to help. Put a costume together. Help build a float. If you own a boat, decorate it and join in the Venetian festival. Do something to celebrate other than just being a spectator. Sure, it means a little extra work, but your enjoyment of that same festival is increased tenfold because it has become a part of you.

If it Fitz

by Jim Fitzgerald

Major General Kenneth Houghton didn't mean to, but he reminded me I'd completely forgotten to celebrate the 30th anniversary of a day I swore I'd never forget.

That was May 8, 1945; the day World War II ended in Europe. Yes, poor readers, this is a war story. . .

When news of the German surrender came, I was in a hospital in a suburb of Munich. I had been suffering there for several days. Back home in Michigan, I had already been hailed as a hero. In the Alibi Bar there was a colorful sign, saluting me as their first alumnus to be struck down in battle by syphilis. "He risked his life for us, bravely ignoring the warnings of the training films," the sign said.

Actually, I had the flu. I got sick sleeping on the stupid ground in the lousy rain. That's why, even today, when someone suggests I go camping, I automatically retort: "Why should I, our side won the war, didn't it?"

Anyway, by the time the army shuffled my fever-racked body through several tent cities and finally into a hospital, I was no longer sick. But I kept moaning and even put a hunk of soap in each armpit. It is a military myth that you can give yourself a fever by putting soap under your arms. All it does is force you to walk with your arms tight by your sides.

But I stole a few extra days in bed anyway. I told the doctor I walked that way because I'd swallowed my rifle. I think I offered to prove it by spitting bullets, or something like that. It's been 30 years and I can't remember everything.

You may wonder what's the point in revealing my cowardice at this late date. The point is that I wasn't a coward, I was a typical soldier. We weren't really chicken, but we weren't fools, either. Happiness was where the bullets weren't. Foot soldiers are the same today.

Whenever you hear a soldier begging the doctor to let him out of the hospital, even though he has 2 broken legs, so he can "get back to my buddies and kill some more rotten Germans" -- whenever you hear that you know there's popcorn for sale in the lobby.

Major General Houghton, who turned my calendar back to 1945, is commander of the 3rd Marine Division. It was his men who attacked the wrong island in the bloody retrieval of the Mayaguez in Cambodia. He beat his breast on TV and explained why it was such a great victory for his boys:

"At the risk of sounding like a warmonger, I would describe it as elixir for morale. These young marines have been training and want to get out and do a job." That's what he said.

An "elixir" is a potion with magic powers to restore the cure. The general is claiming his men get bored and puny just training to kill. It makes them feel much better to experience the real thing -- to shoot at live targets and to be shot back at in return.

Of course, the elixir failed the marines who died in the Mayaguez adventure. It didn't do much for those wounded or missing, either. And it probably doesn't help those parents much to know their sons weren't bored when they were killed.

Given a choice, in 1945, most marines would pick a weekend in San Diego as a much greater elixir than invading an island.

At the risk of sounding disrespectful, I'd say General Houghton should be selling the popcorn in the lobby.

Clockwise

The other night my Keeshond Holly and I took a walk just before the sun went down. Although I normally like to have some little say about where we go, this night I let Holly call the shots.

We crossed Dixon-ave. and walked west toward Lake Michigan. A few seconds later we were passing the Lodge with its spooky witch-hat turrets puncturing the evening sky.

Then we trotted across Michigan-ave. and continued toward the lake. Only we didn't make it to the shore. Midway, Holly yanked me sharply to the left and we were soon in the Old World atmosphere of the Weathervane Terrace motel.

We scooted under the overpass and down the steep sidewalk that leads to Pine River Lane and the Weathervane Inn. I noticed when we reached the lane how the dying rays of the sun were caught by the many panes of beveled glass on the "bay window" of the terrace. What an ideal place to use beveled glass, I thought.

The Weathervane Inn was busy and the parking lot was jammed. The smell of something good wafted from the kitchen out into the roadway and Holly sniffed appreciatively. A few paces further on I caught a whiff of wood smoke emanating from the massive stone chimney. It smelled just as good as the kitchen odors.

A man and woman were standing across the lane near the Charlevoix Oil Co. driveway examining the wavy roof of the Weathervane Inn.

"How do they get the shingles to lie flat?" she was asking.

"I dunno. Probably steam 'em or something. C'mon, let's go. I'm hungry."

Holly tugged me across Michigan-ave. once again and then led me south into the first business block downtown. From the middle of the drawbridge I looked back across Round Lake to the A-frame, the "roundhouse" and the "castle" on the North Shore. The fading light enhanced their storybook qualities.

At Alice Jane Dows, Holly took a sharp-left down to the city parking lot and then tugged me south again to the little lot behind the Charlevoix Agency with Col. Green's cherry tree still growing in the middle of it. (Col. Green moved to Charlevoix after the Civil War). The rear of the Agency building is nothing pretentious, but it has a pleasant "here's-where-I-belong" look about it that stops visitors in their tracks.

Then Holly and I walked up Clinton-st. to Bridge-st. and north toward home. In the middle of the bridge, we stopped to marvel again at the Weathervane Inn whose sparkling windows were mirrored in the channel waters.

Suddenly it dawned on me that all the buildings Holly and I had admired on our little walk were the handiwork of the late Earl Young, a man whose artistic and architectural talents were so individual and so striking that they branded his identity on the finished product.

No one but Earl Young could have built the Lodge or the Weathervane Inn and Terrace, the whimsical houses on Round Lake or the little Charlevoix Agency business office on Round Lake, which he didn't actually build but which he remodeled in his own image.

(Incidentally, the Agency building is where Mr. Young and his mother went into the real estate business shortly after moving to Charlevoix in 1900.)

Of course, Holly and I didn't hit all of Mr. Young's landmarks on our short trip downtown. We missed completely the block of houses at Park and Clinton-sts. which Mr. Young remodeled with stone and wizardry into a gingerbread village right out of Hans Christian Andersen. Rooflines curve beguilingly like the waves on Lake Michigan and mortar dripples down stone chimneys like the work of careless elves.

Out at Boulder Park, stone houses designed and built by Earl Young are more conservative, but they still stop traffic on Lake Shore-dr.

Oddly enough, Mr. Young, who died Memorial Day weekend at age 86, considered himself more of a real estate salesman than an architect. He wasn't trained professionally as an architect and I always had the impression he felt uneasy in the presence of other architects, even young whipper-shappers fresh out of college.

But Mr. Young's genius superceded any deficit in his formal training. Building was his natural forte and stone was his favorite medium. He was accused of having every boulder in Charlevoix County catalogued away in his capacious memory for future use in buildings yet unborn.

Few men leave behind so many tangible monuments to their artistry as Earl Young. And few monuments in this tear-'em-down, build-'em-up world are more worthy of preservation than Mr. Young's fanciful homes and business places.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Edith Close

The gardening season is in full swing in Charlevoix, so this week the Courier interview Mrs. R. H. (Edith) Close, president of the Charlevoix Garden Club.

COURIER: What is the purpose of the Charlevoix Garden Club?

CLOSE: Our purpose is to beautify our homes and the City and to cultivate love and knowledge of trees, plants and flowers.

COURIER: When was the club organized and how many members do you have?

CLOSE: We were organized in 1939. We have 35 active members, 15 associate members and eight honurary members. Our active membership is limited to 35 because we meet in members' homes. Associate 'members are those who, for some reason or other, cannot attend most of our meetings. Honorary members are those who have belonged to the club for 25 years.

COURIER: What are some of the projects of the Charlevoix Garden Club?

CLOSE: We have several projects. Each year we send a local school teacher to the Environmental School at Higgins Lake. We promote the sale of trees for Arbor Day. We have a lunch-range landscaping plan for Charlevoix High School, with the help of John Campbell. Each year we plant a tree or shrub on the school campus. So far we have planted two pin oak trees. We also maintain the planter in the library and this year we are planting and maintaining the planter across the front of the post office. It is being done in red, white and blue colors. Each year we plant and maintain the flowers in the plot on the corner of Michigan and Petoskey Avenues and the island on Mercer Boulevard. Bob Elliott of Frank's Flowers donates the fluwers. From June through September we sponsor the Garden of the Month contest and give a placque for the gardens judged best on both the south and north sides of town.

COURIER: That's a lot of activity. Anything else?

CLOSE: Yes, we make favors for Christmas trays at the hospital. This year we made calico flowers for May Day decorations at Grandvue Medical Center. We have asked the City to start a compost pile instead of disposing of all the leaves. At our regular meetings we have lessons on such subjects as birds, planting vegetable gardens, planting a strawberry barrel and use of driftwood. All year we take slips from our plants and sell them at flea markets to raise money for our projects. In August we will take a field trip to Gwen Frostic's studio in Benzunia

COURIER: Who are the other officers of the Garden Club who help carry on your program?

CLOSE: Mrs. David Fowler is first vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Stebbins is second vice-president, Mrs. Rodney Stebbins is secretary and Mrs. Kenneth MacLean is treasurer. All of our members are "working members".

COURIER: Are you affiliated with any other garden clubs?

CLOSE: We are members of the Federation of Michigan Garden Clubs, from whom we get ideas for meetings and projects and lecture slides.

No one knows what their life expectancy is, but I have a horror of leaving this world and not having anyone in the entire family know how to replace a toilet tissue spindle.

It's an awesome thought to have four grown people wandering around in a daze saying, "I thought she told you how," and another saying, "If I knew she was sick I'd have paid attention."

The tissue spindle isn't the only home skill that has been mastered by no one at our house. Consequently, I have put together a simple family survival manual when Mom is away....even for a weekend.

REPLACING TOILET TISSUE SPINDLE: Grasp old spindle and push gently to one side where there is a spring action. The spindle will release and you discard the old cardboard. Slip un new roll and insert une end of spindle in the spring action side and listen for a click into place.

WASHING TOOTHPASTE OFF SIDE OF WASHBOWL: Before toothpaste is allowed to harden become a permanent part of the enamel, swish water from faucet over affected areas and give a gentle nudge with washeloth or hands. Sink will be ready for next sliobee.

TURNING ON STOVE: Hot meals required a hot stove. If the stove is gas, ignite by turning dial or handle and hold match over burner. If stove is electric, take forefinger and push firmly on button of desired heat. Caution: Do not put food directly on burner, but put it on a pan first.

CLOSING A DOOR: This looks harder than it is. When door is ajar, make sure it is free of foreign objects (children, feet of salesmen or packages), then grasp it firmly by the handle and give it a push until you hear it click. Slamming the door will not make it close any firmer than a push.

TURNING OFF A LIGHT: The same principle is used in turning off a light as it is turning it on. If it is a wall switch, you flick the switch up or down until you no longer see the light. If it is a chain mechanism, you cumpress chain between thumb and forefinger and give it a tug. The light will extinguish.

OPERATING A CLOTHES HAMPER: Don't be intimidated because there are no dials or instructions on the lid. Bending from the waist, you simply pick up a sock, a pair of pants, or a towel, lift the lid of the hamper and feed soiled clothes into it. The Good Fairy will take it from there.

Keep this manual handy for easy references. After all, if I have to take these skills with me when I go.... I'm not going!

DON'T BE FOOLED 14KRGP-12 KGF

The two symbols above are legal stampings for jewelry. However, the schuyter or peddler was an uninformed public to sell items of this nature as solid gold.

The 14K and 12K do mean solid gold but the RGP stands for "Rolled Gold Plate" and the GF indicates "Gold Filled". Both of these are a thin layer of the karat gold over a basemetal, usually brass.

Jewelry sold in stores at this quality are in the middle price ranges and are never set with large diamonds and only rarely with small stones. Rings made of rolled gold plate or gold filled are destined to fast only a short time and cannot be sized.

If you don't know your jeweler.... we'd love to get to know you!

Zen Tennis, anyone? This is not an Oriental religion but a new philosophy on how to play good tennis.

While Zen Tennis is a fairly far out approach to tennis, many of its characteristics can be extremely helpful to tennis players of all abilities.

Basically, Zen Tennis is the mere principle of "mind over matter" or, in this case, mind uver body. Once a player has made a mental picture of what a particular shot would be like, the Zen Tennis philosophy assumes that the body should be able to duplicate the shot.

The feel and the coordination from the shot comes, therefore, from the mind. The body is only the instrument which the mind uses to carry out the physical elements of the shot.

As your opponent hits an approach shot and charges to the net, the key is to mentally visualize the shot you are going to hit next. With the right concentration and the right feel your body instinctively follows through on this mental vision. Trying too hard to become too tense automatically defeats the purpose of the minds vision.

With this philosophy, winning and losing is a less important end. The ultimate ideal is to play beautiful (yes, almost spiritual) tennis. If you play beautiful tennis, what difference does it make if you win or lose?

While it is hard to swallow the entire philosophy of Zen Tennis (I am afraid I like to win too much), much of the doctrine can be helpful in either teaching or learning tennis.

Relaxing is an essential ingredient to improving. Trying too hard and becoming extremely tense makes it virtually impossible to improve your tennis game. Zen Tennis takes the worry out of tennis. Mentally visioning a shot and then trying to physically duplicate it is an excellent device to get the tennis player from worrying about the results.

Knowing what a shot should look like and convincing yourself that you can make the shot is a tremendous confidence builder. With Zenn Tennis, the player can envision even the most difficult shot and believes he can make it. Even if the shot is a little too difficult, confidence can make it easier to learn.

Using a Zen Tennis approach, correcting a students faults becomes much easier. The instructor gently points out a flaw in a student's stroke. The student then mentally corrects the flaw, practicing the stroke both mentally and physically. It is realy astounding what can be accomplished by the powers of mental correction.

Playing tennis mentally is quite important to the all around player. Zen Tennis is the ultimate in mental tennis.

A quick note on the public tennis courts: My congratulations to Ike Boss for SCHOOL'S OUT...and so are the kids!

THINK SAFETY

...it's summer vacation!
Here they come . . . hundreds of youngsters, delighted with the prospect of summer! Because they are young, they won't always be careful—they won't always think about the danger of dashing into streets without watching traffic. That's why motorists must be doubly careful now, when so many youngsters will be out on the streets. Think of the children—think safety!

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Buying a used motoreycle is a good way to get rid ut unwanted money.

The only reason for buying used is to get the bike you need, but can't nfford new.

Only two types ot used bikes exist. Gems and junk.

The differences between the two are not always easy to spot. So, if in doubt enlist the aid of someone who really knows their cycles.

Hopefully, you've determined your true needs and have narrowed the field to one make and model. After all you can't shop for cherries by looking at lemons.

Start with the dealer. The new model is the best standard by which to gauge the used ones you're interested in. Take it for a test ride. Talk with the dealer about the bike und find out why it's better than earlier models. If he can tell you about weak points that have been corrected this will help you spot putential trouble in the older bikes.

Next, look to your classifieds. They tell you not only who is selling what you wunt but gives you an idea of the average asking price in your area. Expect to pay about ten percent less than asked but save the extra for repairs and additions your bike will require.

Your ideal bike should be a clean inachine with original paint und in nearly stock condition. Avoid radical changes and gobs of newly replaced components that hide the true treatment given the bike.

If it lonks right, then check:

OIL—It should be clean and full. This stuff is bike blood. Make sure it's had enough often enough.

HANG OUTS—Grips, levers, pegs, mirrors, and mufflers show scrapes and dents from falls, meaning poor riding. Watch ont if they're all new.

TIRES—Should have even wear. Irregularities mean misalignment or possibly a bent frame. A lot of side tread wear means hard cornering, has been the rule for most of the tires' life.

SHOCKS—Should align vertically. If they don't the bike has taken a hard fall or may have been hit from the side.

If these major points check out take the bike for a test ride.

1. Start with a cold engine.

County Commission Tables Resolution

Nuclear Plant Considered Safe

The Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners believes that Big Rock Nuclear Plant is a safe operation.

A resolution concerning Big Rock, which had been tabled at a previous meeting of the Board, was removed from the table at last week's meeting, voted upon and defeated.

The resolution, presented by Commissioner Martin Paul os a member of the Health Committee, was acted upon after the Board heard several representatives of Consumers Power Company, which operates the plant, tell about its operation.

The resolution requested that the Commissioners ask Consumers Power to remain closed (it has been closed for repairs since January 16) until it meets Nuclear Regulatory Commission (NRC) minimum standards; that Consumers carry insurance to supplement the $560 billion liablity limit established by law in case of a major nuclear accident; and that Consumers publish an evacuation plan for Charlevoix County in case of a nuclear disaster.

Robert Hilty, Northwest Division manager of Consumers, told the Commissioners that Big Rock does not operate unless it meets NRC standards; that additional nuclear disaster insurance cunnot be bought; and that an evacuation plan for Charlevoix County is in the hands of the Charlevoix County Sheritf and the Charlevoix Fire Department.

Big Rock, which went into opernlion in 1962, was the third nuclear power plant built in the country. In ostmg the safety of such plants, Hilty pointed out that there has never been a death or injury of an employee from radiation or other causes, that there has never been overexposure to the public; and that the overall accident rate is lower than that in the average industrial plant.

Have owner start bike and observe case of starting. Idle should be smooth when the bike warms up.

2. Cover a variety of speed ranges and road conditions.

3. Hit the red line in a lower gear and listen for the sounds of an early death. A healthy engine won't complain.

4. Check clutch by accelerating from 20 m.p.h. in high.

5. Suspension should track straight and not get funny in the corners. Likewise it shouldn't bottom out unless you drop it in a manhole.

If all this has satisfied you, leave a deposit and take the machine to a mechanic. Listen to his opinion of the bike's condition. What you pay him may be the best money you'll spend. It can make the difference between owning a gemar juok. It can make a big difference in what you pay initially--- but... more importantly, what you may be required to put into it continually.

Something New for Father's Day

By PEG OHLE

Fathers come in all shapes and sizes and ages. Some are fathers of several children, some are fathers of only one, some are step-fathers, some are foster fathers, but they are all "Father", "Dad", "Daddy", "Pop", "Pa", or even "The Old Man" to someone.

Next Sunday is Father's Day, the day set aside to honor the first man in the lives of all of us.

Father's Day is a fairly recent special day. It was conceived by Mrs. John Bruce Dodd of Spokane, Washington in 1909 as a suitable tribute to her father, who raised his family alone after the death of his wife.

Today, Father's Day is usually a day of gift-giving, with everything from neckties to lounge chairs promoted as the ideal gift for Father.

Gifts are great, but for those looking for additional ways to honor Father, here are some ideas.

Even young children could draw "Daddy" a crayoned picture with a suitable message such as "I luv you".

An older one could scrawl a note reading, "I'll cut the grass for you for the next month."

Or, "For Father's Day I'm cleaning out the garage and washing the car."

What about surprising him with his favorite meal, be it corned beef and cabbage with lemon meringue pie or fried chicken with strawberry shortcake?

Sunday morning Father might like to hear you say,

"Today you don't have to do anything you don't want to. You may watch all the sports programs on television, take a nap, go fishing, or whatever you want. We won't bother you."

There are numerous other ways to help make Father's Day a happy one for him, depending upon what he likes and what you can do, but he'll appreciate whatever it is.

Charlevoix Township Drops Regional Planning Group

Cooperation between Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township was dealt another serious blow this week.

Charlevoix Township announced they will no longer participate in the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission with the City of Charlevoix.

The township action, according to several officials, should have come as no surprise.

"The board wanted to drop for the last three years because we didn't feel we were getting any benefit from it," said Virginia Cunningham, township clerk and Regional Planning Commission member. The commission was formed in 1968.

She said the township had held on this long because it wanted to keep up cooperation and rapport with the city.

"I think the Planning Commission is real fine and has come up with some good things," she continued.

"The whole thing is that whatever we turn over to the city, they don't do anything about."

The township official cited several areas where she felt the city failed to act on recommendations made by the Regional Planning Commission.

Among those recommendations were plans for improved traffic flow through Charlevoix and off-street parking.

John Haggard, chairman of the Regional Planning Commission, said he had only unofficially heard the township was no longer associated.

"Officially, I haven't heard," Haggard said.

"What they plan to do I have no idea."

Haggard said the township action will make it more difficult to coordinate zoning.

The commission chairman said he was not sure what the township board's position was, other than it thinks the planning commission was not doing them any good.

"During the three years I have been on there, we haven't really had any real questions asked by the township," he continued.

"All the majority of work is what the city asked us to research."

Haggard said he was disappointed that the township didn't stay with the commission. He said last year he fought the township to stay on one more year and at that time the township said it would be the last year.

"With government the way it is, you can only fight so much," Haggard added.

Several officials said they were disappointed with the City of Charlevoix for not adopting the zoning ordinance recommended in the Charlevoix Comprehensive Plan of 1970.

Michigan Amateur Starts Soon

The 332 entries in the 64th annual Michigan Amateur Championship Golf Tournament are expected to converge on Charlevoix this weekend prior to the opening of medal play at the Belvedere and Harbor Point Golf Courses Tuesday.

Tee off time at both courses will be at 8 a.m. Tuesday and Wednesday with foursomes leaving the clubhouses at 10 minute intervals until 2:50 p.m. each day.

After two days of medal play, the field will be cut to 64 players as match play begins at the Belvedere course Thursday morning. Play will continue throughout Friday with the semi-finals scheduled for Saturday morning and the finals Saturday afternoon.

Bob Chapman of Farmington, 1974 champion, will not be present to defend his title. A student at Stanford University where he is a member of the golf team, it is believed he is presently participating in the NCAA tournament.

Only four former champions will be seen in this year's tournament. They are Peter Green of Franklin, Melvin "Bud" Stevens of Livonia, Glenn H. Johnson of Grosse Ile and Doug Hankey of St. Johns.

Green might be considered a favorite to repeat as a title holder. He has been playing strongly in recent tournaments in which he was entered. He went into the semi-finals of the North-South Amateur tournament at Pinehurst, N.C.,

DNR Approves Charlevoix County Solid Waste Plan

Charlevoix County's Solid Waste Management Plan appears to have the blessing of the Michigan Department of Natural Resources, but it may be a while before it goes into action.

County officials learned last week that the DNR's Solid Waste Management Division will recommend that the 52-page document prepared by the Charlevoix County Planning Department be approved.

The DNR's approval marks the end of almost a year's work by the county planning department in developing a plan to take care of the county's solid waste.

Charlevoix, along with Michigan's other 82 counties, has been working on plans that must meet present and future disposal needs through the year 1990.

The county generates some 21,000 tons of trash a year and projects it will climb to 26,142 tons by 1980 and 32,789 by 1990.

Until now, the three municipalities and 15 townships have been taking care of their own solid waste.

However, the Department of Natural Resources says there is only one legally operating landfill within the county. The privately owned sanitary landfill is located in Eveline Township and covers the City of Charlevoix and five neighboring townships.

One other exception is Beaver Island, which has been allowed to operate a modified landfill.

According to the DNR, all other landfills in the county are operating without licenses.

County officials are hopeful that the entire county will participate in its proposed plan, but at this point that can only be speculation.

Boyne City, for example, has already said it will take the DNR to court for refusing to grant it a license.

Others may follow similar suit.

Boyne City officials, when they purchased the 160-acre landfill site some time ago, had the approval of the Michigan Department of Health and can't understand why it can no longer be approved.

County Planner William Mercer said he hopes this new plan will solve some of the problems now confronted by local governmental units.

The county proposes to have on-site transfer units, where people can deposit their trash where they do now and then the trash would be taken to one central landfill.

Transfer to the central landfill could either be handled by a private company or several units could buy a vehicle and haul trash themselves.

Costs for establishing a transfer station are estimated at between $30,000 and $60,000.

The central landfill site is proposed to be located in Eveline Township where Charlevoix Garbage Service runs its operation.

If another landfill is located on the eastern side of the county, as is being considered, the cost is estimated at $350,000.

Mercer said meetings are now being held with local units to hear reactions on the county proposal.

Life-Long Charlevoix Sailor Makes Tug Boat his Yacht

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

What is the appeal of a tug boat that it could turn the head of a life-long sailor?

For some it may be the romantic democracy of a scrappy little tug nosing an elegant ocean liner, such as the Q.E. II, into a harbor berth.

Perhaps for Cliff Biddick it's disdaining a rudder for a "kort nozzle."

Or maybe it is just the fun of building an authentic cut-down version of a tug, to ply Lake Charlevoix and be an unlikely committee boat for yacht club races.

Cliff Biddick

Biddick, Yard Manager at Irish Boat Shop, just says he has always liked tugs and so his red, black and grey replica was created over the past winter.

RAM, the tug, replaced HEATHER the 45 foot schooner, on which Cliff and Bridget, his wife, had been living for almost two years. According to Cliff, it had to happen when Bridget felt they had to choose between living on HEATHER and escaping civilization, or a house and Cliff's work.

"I had no idea how old she was, maybe 20 years," Cliff recalls.

"She looked like a work boat with a chicken coop on top–a cabin added by a later owner."

Cliff laughs when he remembers how everyone questioned his project, especially when he first tried to launch the original.

"We agreed with McCutcheon to test it in the water before buying it. The engine was so far forward and the boat was so out of balance it tried to nose into the water.

"We took it right back to McCutcheon," Cliff says. "He said 'Don't be in such a hurry, move the engine and add ballast,' which we did and it seemed to work."

Having determined a basic sort of sea-worthiness, Cliff began the tug-creating process.

Part of the procedure involved a research trip to New York, where Cliff and Bridget decided, "after climbing on and off a lot of tugs," that the "Moran tugs were the best looking in New York."

Another self-styled tug buff says the Moran tugs, a family outfit, were the models for the movies and TV series "Tugboat Annie."

RAM's conversion included adding two feet of tug-shaped stern. Cliff cut off the boat's stern, which he finished in fiberglass.

Tugs have a high bow and lower, flat, stern, which meant more cutting down of the deck line and building a new shear clamp–the wooden structural support under the boat's rails–for rigidity.

Not so much for authenticity but balance Cliff moved the engine bed back, to midships. But since RAM's motor is a 4-cylinder gas engine, Cliff painted it yellow to look like a tug's traditional Caterpillar diesel engine.

The kort nozzle instead of rudder is one of the more esoteric tug accountrements, which intrigued Cliff. A kort nozzle is the combination of the boat's propeller and a large cylinder in which the propeller spins. By changing the angle of the cylinder vis a vis the line of direction of the boat the wash of the propeller is changed, thus forcing the boat to turn. The effect is similar to the thrust of a jet.

Cliff says, "the kort nozzle is more effective than any rudder. It is equally good in forward and reverse."

Inside a pilot house, Cliff captains from behind a typical ship's wheel, which turns gears attached to a cable running to the kort nozzle.

Since a gear shift is still missing, Cliff is dependent on his friend and "silent partner", Kirk Post to man the engine room. Post shifts gears on orders from Cliff.

A distinctive tug's towing bit stands on the forward part of the after deck, a high rising set of double TTs.

The black smoke stack is a fiberglass replica of the real thing, through which Cliff has run his engine's exhaust pipe.

Just ahead of the stack is the tug's mast. Properly used for towing lights, Cliff has modified the mast to carry starting signals for yacht club races.

One thing lacking from the 20 foot tug is its "puddings."

Puddings are thick rope bumpers hanging over a tug's bow, to protect it while it shoves the big ships around.

While Cliff anticipates more pulling than pushing, he is researching how to make proper puddings.

Ralph A. Morse, whom Cliff calls his benefactor and after whom RAM was Christened, has donated coils of ¾ inch rope for the pudding project; but Cliff admits he isn't sure how to proceed in this massive knot tieing process.

Nuturing a certain yen to cruise, but do it tug-style, Cliff and Bridget are dreaming of putting on a couple of berths and heading for the New York State Barge Canal.

Meanwhile, boaters on Lake Charlevoix shouldn't question their eyes if they see a tug chugging around between palatial yachts and racing sailboats. It isn't a stray.

Here are your responses to our question on whether or not Charlevoix Township should be charged to use city facilities.

This week we are interested in knowing who you think should replace Senator Philip Hart, now that he won't seek re-election. Tell us your choice and why by calling the Courier Hotline at 547-6559.

Favors Fees

I am in favor of paying a fee for recreation facilities to the City. I live in Charlevoix Township, but I don't feel as it should be just Charlevoix Township. I am sure other townships use these facilities just as much as Charlevoix Township people do, so let's make it equitable to all.

Should Not Charge

In relationship to the question should Charlevoix Township pay for using city recreational facilities I don't think that they should. We do not charge any of the people that come up every summer, and during the winter for the skiers to go to the ski resorts to use our parks, our beaches and our woods. If we do that, we'll give to charge the people that come up for the summer. Besides, what type of relationship will this do to Charlevoix. The public relations is going d with everyone in the township when the question for merging comes up.

Extra Bonus

I was out at the Community Garden that is near the airport and I found that I had an unexpected bonus where I had planted my seeds. I planted them north to south and later I noticed something was growing across the garden east to west. I did not know exactly what that was. It was not a weed for there were about five or six plants of whatever it was all in a row. I took an expert out to see exactly what that might be. Expert pronounced that it was a bumper crop of swiss chard growing in the area that I had put in and I'm appreciative of the fact.

Why Singled Out?

Why should Charlevoix Township be singled out for paying for use of the recreational facilities in Charlevoix? If one township is billed, they all should be. My husband plays in the basketball league, and he has to pay even through we live in town now.

Flags Flying

I am writing an answer to the person who wrote that he/she was very disappointed that there were no flags flying on Memorial Day.

Flag etiquette clearly states that a flag should not be flown during bad weather. Also, according to the laws governing the display of the flag, it may be exhibited at any time during the 24-hour day at discretion of individual displaying it. However, if a flag is to be displayed at night, special lighting is required. Unfortunately, not many companies who do display their flags around the clock bother to supply special lighting.

I was up in Charlevoix Memorial week-end and I think the rain on Memorial Day would be classified as bad weather and the people in town did the proper thing by not displaying their flags.

Judge Saves Cash

District Judge David W. Fershee informed County Commissioners last week of proposed personnel changes in the Court.

The changes include moving Yvonne Archambault up from Deputy Clerk-Stenographer to Clerk-Deputy Magistrate, Marilyn Blauman from Typist to Clerk-Stenographer, and Howard Talboys from Magistrate to Chief Magistrate.

Gilber Sturgell would remain as Deputy Magistrate in East Jordan on a per diem basis and a new person hired under CETA as a typist.

According to Fershee, under the previous schedule the total salary expense, excluding per diem and CETA employees, was $22,575 per year. The proposed changes would make the total $21,656, a savings of $925 to the County.

THE CHARLEVOIX Garden Club has awarded the south side Beautiful Garden Plaque for the month of June to Frank Kubicek, 707 Grant Street, (above) and the north side plaque to Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Chamberlain, 527 Petoskey Avenue. The gardens of W.M. Dixon, 105 Lincoln Street, and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Saltonstall, 408 Mason Street, received honorable mentions.

Gives Legislative Run Down

Ostling Explains New Proposed Tax

EAST - JORDAN — Small business owners may be taking a larger tax bite under a new proposed business tax now being considered by the Michigan Legislature.

State Representative Ralph Ostling, R-Roscommon, told East Jordan Rotarians Tuesday that the proposed "Business Privilege Tax" would replace seven existing Michigan taxes if enacted.

However, the state legislation could offer tax breaks to large manufacturing firms, retailers with substantial inventories and mechanized farms, such as dairy farms.

Industries such as construction, professionul and personal servicea, repair servicea, insurance, food servicea and retailers with low inventories would likely pay higher taxes.

"The person it is going to cost the most is the small businessman involved in service," he said.

Ostling said the bill was introduced as a measure to encourage new business to come to Michigan and at the same time increase employment. If the tax is enacted, it is estimated that the state would gain $180 million additional a year in revenue.

However in a resort area like Northern Michigan, Ostling said the proposed tax would be of little benefit. Ostling plans to oppose the bill.

The State bill (House Bill 4640) proposed a business privilege tax to replace corporation income tax, financial institutions income tax, corporation franchise tax, the business portion of the intangibles tax, savings and loan privilege taxes, domestic insurance company privilege tax, and the tax on inventory property levied by local governments.

The proposed Business Privilege Tax is sunilar in some respects to the former Business Activities Tax employed in Michigan from 1953 to 1967.

In his legislative update, Ostling said:

–School districts can expect to see a new law that will limit teacher strikes to two weeks and establish a school calendar ending on the third Friday in June.

–Doctors will see state backing of malpractice claims until they can insure themselves.

–Property owners may see a proposed constitutional amendment to eliminate a portion of school financing based on local property taxes. He said this may be done by 1976.

Christian Scientists Plan Special Talk

Prejudice of every kind can be removed through the power of divine Love, God.

This is a theme of a public lecture on Christian Science to be given Friday June 20 in Traverse City by Glen C. Livezey of Chicago.

"As we base our lives in God as absolute Love, we abandon the prejudices of materiality," Mr. Livezey will explain. "Instead, we find more joy, peace, gentleness in our lives."

Mr. Livezey will speak in Traverse City Senior High Auditorium at 8 p.m. under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist.

Mrs. Ellen Allen will introduce the lecturer. Mrs. Susan Schmidt is handling arrangements for the event.

The lecture, entitled "Let Your Basis Be Love," is open to the public without charge.

A former businessman, Mr. Livezey held executive positions in the advertising business for 15 years.

From 1964 to 1969 he was with The Christian Science Monitor's advertising department as manager of the Philadelphia and Midwestern advertising offices and National Advertising Manager.

In 1967 he entered the public practice of Christian Science. He is currently on extensive tour as a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

Charlevoix CETA Employees Sitting on Pins and Needles

By PEG OHLE

Sitting on needles and pins.

That's what some 12 to 15 Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) employees in Charlevoix County are doing.

A bill that would have continued funding for public service jobs under Title VI of CETA was vetoed by President Ford two weeks ago and the veto subsequently upheld by members of the House of Representatives, including area representative Phillip Ruppe.

Funding under Title VI of CETA amounted to $285,562 last year and provided jobs for about 70 County residents.

Funding under Title II amounted to $150,000 for the County during the last nine months, but the figure for the twelve months beginning July 1 has been cut to $99,813, necessitating the elimination of some jobs.

However, at a meeting of the 10-County Northwest Regional Manpower Consortium in Traverse City following the veto it was determined that funds from Title VI could be transferred to keep some of the jobs going for a while.

Charlevoix County has between $25,000 and $26,000 in unallocated Title VI funds which could be transferred, but this amount will not go far toward extending the jobs.

CETA jobs are spread throughout the County, with persons working for the County, the County Road Commission, the Sheriff's Department, the courts, the schools, the Health Department, the cities, the townships, and several other public agencies.

The vetoed CETA funds were part of an overall $5.3 billion measure passed by Congress to provide jobs for the unemployed. Of this amount, $137 million would have come to Michigan.

Washington sources have indicated the President did not object to the CETA funding in the bill, but that he did object to some of the other more costly items in the measure.

Following the President's veto and the House's failure to over-ride it, Michigan Governur Milliken urged Congress to adopt a less costly version of the bill which would be acceptable to the President.

Speaking in Boyne City recently, Representative Ruppe said he had received complaints from some areas that persons were being transferred from county, city or other public payrolls to CETA rolls, which in effect was not providing jobs for unemployed persons. Ruppe added, however that he felt in this time of distressed economy, there should be some public jobs program.

Alton "Bud" Shipstead, regional administrator of the Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium, appeared before the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week to explain how CETA operates. Funds are allotted by the Federal Government to each state, then to each area of the state on the basis of population and unemployment figures.

In the more populous areas funds are directly to the city or county, but because of the smaller population of Northern Michigan they are allotted through consortia made up of representatives from several counties.

Charlevoix County is part of the 10-County Northwest Michigan Manpower Consortium and is represented on it by County Commissioner Lee Moerland.

Shipstead told the commissioners that in hiring persons for CETA jobs, if and when more funds are available, priorities should be considered on the follwing basis:

(1) Unemployed heads of households with dependents.
(2) Unemployed youth.
(3) Unemployed veterans.
(4) Unemployed minorities.
(5) Other low income groups.

THERE'S PLENTY for area youngsters to do this summer.

Plenty of Summer Activities

Recreation Galore for Kids

Area youngsters, you shouldn't have a problem finding something to do in Charlevoix this summer.

Pick a summer activity and you'll probably find it taking place.

Charlevoix Recreation Director Ike Boss says his program is one of the best in the state and is offering a host of activities.

"I think we have one of the best recreation departments for a town this size in the State of Michigan," he says.

Boss says the city program attempts to stress recreation for people of all ages instead of placing emphasis on competition.

Even those as young as five-year-old can get involved in several city recreation programs.

Boss says they can take swimming lessons at either Ferry or Depot beaches for $3 or $5, depending on whether or not they are a city resident.

The city expects well over 400 kids to participate in the program that is offered to everyone five or older.

Even a pre-school swimming program to get three and four-year-old youngsters accustomed to water may be offered this summer.

Those who are six and older may play in one of a half dozen softball teams being offered by the city.

Six-year-olds start with T-ball, while the older girls and boys participate in the peanut and junior leagues.

For youngster, eight or older, tennis and golf lessons are available at the city tennis and golf courses.

Boss says he is also attempting to organize a volunteer arts and crafts program, but plans haven't been confirmed as yet.

Besides the organized sports, area residents may take advantage of Charlevoix's three beaches–Lake Michigan, Depot and Ferry Avenue — under the watchful eye of a certified Red Cross Lifeguard.

Lifeguards are expectd to he on duty near the first of July.

The public beaches will be guarded from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m., seven days a week, except Ferry Avenue which will be open from noon to 6 p.m.

The city also has shuffle board courts available at both East Park and Lake Michigan beaches.

Those interested in learning how to sail may take advantage of the Charlevoix Yacht Club's sailing program expected to get underway by July 14.

If all goes according to

Swimming Lessons Offered

Swimming lessons for children five years of age and older will begin July 7 at the Depot and Ferry Avenue beaches under the sponsorship of the Charlevoix Recreation Department.

Classes will be held every week day morning Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Registratinn may be made at either beach Friday, June 20, at 1 p.m. There will be a registration fee of $2 for each student or $8 for the family of City of Charlevoix residents.

A fee of $5 per student or $10 per family will be charged for non-city residents.

All students must register in advance and all fees inust be paid in advance. Those unable to sign up on Friday may do so at the Recreation Office in City Hall no later than Wednesday, July 3.

Basketball Sign-up

The Summer Basketball Program will begin Tuesday, June 17 at the high school gymnasium, and run until August 1st, according to Dave Moyer, who will he heading up the program.

The schedule will be as follows: Monday & Wednesday, 6 p.m.-7:30 p.m.–6th, 7th & 8th grades; Monday & Wednesday, 7:30-9:00 p.m.–9th & 10th grade; Tuesday & Thursday, 7:30-9:00 p.m.–College & Adults; Monday thru Thursday, 6-7:30 p.m.–Varsity.

CHARLEVOIX COUNTY is starting to crack down on old buildings.

County Marking Unsafe Buildings

By PEG OHLE

Some derelict and unsafe buildings in Charlevoix County have been posted and owners told they must tear them down or make necessary repairs.

It is one of the duties of the County Building Inspector to condemn such buildings.

The State Building Code describes unsafe buildings as "those that are or hereafter "shall become unsafe, unsanitary, or deficient in adequate exitway facilities, or which constitute a fire hazard, or are otherwise dangerous to human life or the public welfare, or which by reasons of illegal or improper use, occupancy or maintenance, shall be deemed unsafe."

The Building Inspector must examine every building or structure reported as dangerous, unsafe or constituting a fire hazard and serve notice on the owner, specifying the required repairs or improvements to be made to render the building safe and secure, or requiring the unsafe building or portion thereof to be demolished within a stipulated time.

If the property owner does not respond to the notice, the matter is turned over to the County Prosecutor for action.

What to do about unsafe and derelict buildings in the City of Charlevoix has been a matter of discussion at several recent Council meetings. While no buildings have been posted or action taken against owners, several owners have been given warning notices, according to the City Administrator's office.

Complaints about derelict buildings in the City have muted not only the unsightly appearance, but the dangers to small children playing around them and the possibility of fires which could spread throughout the neighborhood.

Building Inspector Resigns

Robert E. Trumble, who last week quit his job as head of the County Department of Building Inspection, told the Courier he did so because he did not get the raise he understood was to be forthcoming at the end of his six months' employment.

Trumble was hired by the County Board of Commissioners last November to administer the new Building Inspection Code at a salary of $10,500 a year. He said he had asked for $12,500 but took the job at the lower figure to "prove himself", and with the understanding he would get a raise after the trial period.

Apparently no criticism was made of his work.

Trumble submitted his resignatinn by letter to the Commissioners at their May meeting, following which ads were run to secure a successor. Applications for the job will be opened by the

Editorials/Opinions

Local Politics Sad

Charlevoix Township's decision last week to give up participation in the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission came as no surprise to those closely involved in local government.

In fact, the township announced a year ago that it would be involved with the planning commission for only another year.

Yet, when the final decision was reached by the township board, many felt a great disappointment.

The commission was formed nearly 10 years ago to tackle problems shared by both the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township.

Since Charlevoix Township is divided in two by the City of Charlevoix, it was thought that a joint planning commission would be able to insure consistency in land use and regulation.

The two governmental units were even able to get together to finance the writing of a comprehensive development plan for the entire geographic area.

On paper, cooperation between the township and city through a joint planning commission seemed logical. Even the use of the same development plan appeared to be a good move.

But, in this spirit of cooperation, one element was forgotten–politics.

Some apparently thought the hatchet could be buried and the two competing units of government could get together and benefit the entire area.

It would be easy for us to sit back and point fingers at who is to blame for dissolving the regional planning commission.

Obviously, Charlevoix Township is to blame because the township board refuses to fund the commission any longer.

However, that really isn't the case.

The township says it just got tired of never getting anywhere with the city after working months on planning several projects.

They cite specifically a plan to improve traffic flow in downtown Charlevoix and the creation of off-street parking.

The township also claims they have derived little benefit from the planning commission.

The city, on the other hand, claims the township has never really given the planning commission many projects for them to deal with.

They also feel work is being done on the parking problems and that it is only a matter of time.

So then, who is really to blame?

We feel it is a handful of small-time politicians who are worried about losing their domains.

The dissolving of the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission is only one of a series of recent actions demonstrating that both kingdoms will continue for many years to come.

Unfortunately, the constant political battles will hurt more than those directly involved in the conflict.

One major concern will be the regulation of development in the area.

Without cooperation between the communities, Charlevoix will probably be able to offer the area another "Miracle Mile" like in Traverse City, where there are blocks upon blocks of hotels and restaurants emptying on to the same highway.

Both communities have already demonstrated they can provide fire protection. And what does that prove? For one thing, it shows the taxpayers we can duplicate services.

The township and city have also shown us that we can adequately provide separate water systems.

In the near future, the area can probably look forward to other serious and expensive duplications.

Perhaps the two communities should go one step farther and build a wall between the two city limits. Then they could start charging admissions to see each other in action.

Dissolving the Charlevoix Regional Planning Commission is a serious step backwards for the community.

The direct effect from that move may not be realized for many years to come.

Reduce Utility Cost

Concerned about rising utility rates?

Attorney General Frank Kelley recommends that individuals take the following action:

–personally appear at public hearings of the Public Service Commission concerning proposed rate increases.

–urge city, county or township officials to appear at the rate hearings on behalf of all the citizens of the community.

–in voting for candidates for Governor and the legislature, consider where these candidates stand on utility rate issues. Since the Governor appoints the members of the PSC, and the legislature enacts the laws under which utility rates are regulated, the philosphy of the Governor and the members of the legislature have an important bearing upon the quality of utility regulation we get in Michigan.

Letters to the editor

Davis Congratulated

To the Editor,

As a member of Common Cause, a group that has been working for political reform legislation to open up Michigan government to its citizens, I want to congratulate Senator Robert Davis. Because of his leadership in helping sponsor the most comprehensive political reform bill ever placed before a legislature in the United States, we have a chance to banish big money and secrecy from our politics.

We are fortunate in this area to be represented by men with the courage and vision of Senator Davis. By stepping out in front to lead the fight for reform, he will undoubtedly incur the wrath of the big special interest lobbyists who like the game the way it is currently played in Lansing.

I hope that every citizen who cares about winning our government back will let this man know how much we appreciate his efforts. Also, it is terribly important to write to our State Representatives and urge them to support the quick passage of House Bill 5250 and Senate Bill 880. A strong showing of public concern is crucial to the passage of this important legislation.

Sincerely,
Douglas Melvin

Disagrees With Editorial

Gentlemen:

Your Editorial entitled "Land Use Needs Federal Help" requires an answer so that both sides of the question can be understood.

In the first place, this is just another Federal grab of States Rights. Why should the Federal Government tell you or me how best to use our land. Look what happened when Washington decided Education needed Federal help. Washington now controls the schools, text books, prayer in school etc. with the big stick If it is not obeyed.

That and this proposed legislation are both in violation of the Fifth Amendment of the Constitution.

Land Use Control means people control and we have enough of that now.

The first estimate of the cost of this control is $100 million dollars and you can guess which way this will go as time goes on.

This legislation should be defeated. Write your Senators and Representatives if you are opposed.

When Betty Ford went to Europe with Gerry, she took her hairdresser with her. Which is a lot classier than a black Ace comb in your hip pocket.

My wife Pat always travels with a wig so, she says, she can swim underwater and still look nice for dinner. She has never been underwater in her life. She never goes into a pool above her toenails. At the ocean in Miami, she spreads her blanket in Georgia in worries about the tide coming in.

So the wig, which travels on a phony head in a wicker basket, is never used. It just takes up space in the car trunk and gives me 1 more bulky item to load and unload and scream about.

"All this dumb thing does is take up space," I screamed.

"Marcia would take up more space," my wife answered. Marcia is her hairdresser. My wife yearns for class, like the First Family has. She wants me to learn how to fall down without getting drunk first.

Pat was suggesting I should be grateful I don't have to rent 2 rooms at the Holiday Inn, one for Marcia and her drier. After a few years, husbands learn to be properly grateful for such windfalls. The first time I complained about the money Pat spent on shoes, she said I should be grateful she wasn't a centipede. Incredibly, I had never looked at the shoe situation that way, even though in high school I went steady with a centipede.

The relationship between a woman and her hairdresser is a fascinating thing. I always said this, even before I saw the movie "Shampoo." In case you missed it, this film stars Warren Beatty as a stud hairdresser who puts the make on all his pretty customers. This doesn't worry me. Even if Marcia were Marvin, I'm certain my wife would never be unfaithful during her noon appointment every Wednesday. If is at this time she learns what's happened in town during the past week.

Clockwise

By BOB CLOCK

I read a magazine article the other day on Norman Lear, the TV producer who has brought us such shows as "All in the Family," "The Jeffersons," "Maude," and "Hot L Baltimore"—comedies that make us wince before they make us laugh;

The reporter spent a day with Mr. Lear, followed him from script conference to stage set, to business meeting, to lunch with the sponsors, and back to another script conference. It sounded like a fairly typical day in the life of a high-powered TV producer and the mere recounting of it in a magazine article made the reader weary.

But just when my interest was starting to flag I noticed that Mr. Lear and I have a common complaint: Neither of us has time to do all the reading we would like to do.

"And I could read 'Major Barbara' every day of my life," Lear said.

"Major Barbara." I hadn't even thought of that old social bombshell by George B. Shaw in more than a quarter century. It was an old timer when I read it 25 years ago, having been written shortly after the turn of the century. I couldn't imagine what Shaw had said then that Mr. Lear found so all-fired important today.

So I went down to the library and checked out the only copy of "Major Barbara," a Penguin paperback so old it cost only 65 cents new. After reading the first few pages that night, the whole story of "Major Barbara" came back to me and I could pick out a number of reasons why Mr. Shaw is Mr. Lear's favorite writer.

For one thing, Mr. Lear would like the plot. "Major Barbara", as you'll recall, is the story of the daughter of a upper middle class English family who secures a commission in the Salvation Army in order to be of some earthly use to her fellow man. Major Barbara, like other members of her family, also is ashamed of the source of the family fortune: Munitions. Her father, Andrew Undershaft, is co-owner of one of the largest cannon factories in the world, to the everlasting disgrace of his estranged wife and three children. Mrs. Undershaft accepts Mr. Undershaft's blood-stained money to run her household, but the two parted company so long ago that Mr. Undershaft remains a stranger to his son, Stephen, and two daughters.

But as the children grow up without any saleable skills to speak of, Mrs. Undershaft invites her former husband home to meet his progeny in hopes that additional wherewithal may be forthcoming.

Major Barbara won't accept a penny of her father's money for the Salvation Army, but she hustles him down to the SA shelter in hopes that rubbing shoulders with the poor and downtrodden of London will somehow soften his rock-hard sense of values. Instead, her...colleagues eagerly accept a donation of 5,000 pounds from the old munitions maker and Major Barbara is so incensed at their hypocrisy that she resigns her commission on the spot.

Undershaft, the man who makes it possible for the nations of the world to wage war, emerges not only as victor but hero.

The hard-hitting, dynamic Undershaft certainly is a man Lear would admire because he culls his own shots and controls his own destiny—much as Archie, George Jefferson, Walter and other of Lear's TV characters attempt to do—sometimes with indifferent success. You might say that Undershaft is a successful Archie Bunker, operating on a higher plane for larger stakes.

Mr. Lear also would be fascinated by the pages of Cockney dialect that Shaw has incorporated into the scene at the Salvation Army shelter—an authentic reproduction of London's language-of-the-streets in 1900. If you read it aloud, you may not understand it, but you'll sure sound Cockney.

"Barbara" also is a scathing indictment of the role the military-industrial complex plays in government. Mr. Undershaft makes no bones of the fact that he and his money-grubbing partner, Lazarus, are the real movers and shakers of the British Empire, with both houses of Parliament eager and willing to do their bidding.

Frightening, isn't it, that governments and politics have changed so little in three quarters of a century?

Mr. Lear has good reason for reading "Major Barbara" every day of his life.

False Advertising Claimed

Editor:

There is a theater in the city of Charlevoix that advertised a movie for 99 cents (ALL ADMISSIONS!) for June 1, 1975. This was advertised in the Charlevoix Courier on May 28, 1975 and also in the Petoskey News-Review May 30, 1975. That night, June 1, 1975, the owners suddenly raised their price to $2.00.

I realize this is an easy way to make quick money, luring the movie audience to their theater with the assumption they will pay 99 cents, to be sold at the ticket window it is $2.00, but it is obviously a case of false advertising and a rip-off. If you were one of those who were "taken" on Sunday, June 1st I would suggest you write to the Grand Rapids Better Business Bureau and also contact the Charlevoix Chamber of Commcree as I have done. Perhaps nothing will come of it but it really is too bad when a small group of businessmen can get together and knowingly take the little guy for a ride, assuming he will never notice. It will not do any good to contact the owners of the theater as I have tried this by talking to each one of them for over a week and they refuse to rectify the situation.

Mrs. Harland D. Speer
Rt. 3, Pine Point
Charlevoix

EDITOR'S NOTE: The theater owners were contacted by the Courier and told that a sign had been placed in the lobby indicating that the special rate was good only through May. They said it was unfortunate that it accidentally was left in the advertisement appearing in several newspapers. The owners said they let those expecting to get for $1, in for that price. They added that Mrs. Speer's son was one of the people let in for the $1 rate.

A Special Tribute

Editor
Charlevoix Courier
Charlevoix, Michigan 49720

Dear Sir:

I am moved to a personal yet public tribute to three men whose vision, artistry, and industry shaped the Charlevoix of my childhood. I join with the families of Harold Kohn, Earl Young, and Gordon Freedman in sympathy, and with past and present citizens of Charlevoix in celebration of the unique contributions of these gifted men to our community.

Sincerely yours,
Carrie Duerr Venema

For the Sake of Beauty

Every Wednesday evening, after editing that week's newspaper, I go home and Pat tells me the good stuff I didn't publish. I sob in frustration and tear the newspaper into little pieces as she reveals all the news the editor missed.

There is no way my wife would give up her weekly gossip session in favor of mere lust. Sorry about that, Warren.

On extended trips, when my wife complains about the condition of her hair, I often suggest she visit the fancy hairdresser just off the hotel lobby. But no, only Marcia can be trusted with Pat's hair. At noon on Wednesdays, wherever we are, she bows her head toward home – and cups her ear. What are they saying at Marcia's mecca?

There was a morning at home when Pat was so ill she couldn't get out of bed. At noon I made a special trip home to see if she were still breathing. I'd forgotten it was Wednesday. She'd gone to the beauty shop in a coma; she came home in an ambulance.

It is chiseled in granite somewhere that it is against the law and nature for a woman to miss a hair appointment. In cases of extreme emergency it is permissible to trade appointments. It usually takes 56 phone calls to locate a woman who will trade an 11 o'clock on Thursday for a noon on Wednesday. Sometimes it is necessary to make multi-cornered trades in which Pat gets Sue's appointment and then trades it to Shirley for Dawn's appointment which Shirley got in exchange for Laura's. It is no wonder Warren Beatty was sometimes surprised at who he woke up next to.

And after all that, she comes home and says: "It'll look a lot better once I comb it out."

Once she combs it out, it looks like it did before she went.

I wonder what that centipede is doing?

Meet Charlevoix ...Dan Tollas

Dan Tollas, young Charlevoix artist, recently received a $500 scholarship from the Arts Committee of the Charlevoix Waterfroot Art Fair. This week the Courier talks to him about art and artists.

COURIER: Are you a native of Charlevoix?

TOLLAS: No, but I started school here in first grade and graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1972.

COURIER: When did you first become interested in art?

TOLLAS: It was in my junior year in high school, when Bill Murray started teaching art. The department got off the ground and I got involved. I started drawing and painting.

COURIER: Where are you studying now?

TOLLAS: Last fall I entered the Cleveland Institute of Art.

COURIER: How did you happen to go there?

TOLLAS: Well, it's a long story. After high school I went to Grand Valley College and studied liberal arts. I was frustrated and quit after a year and a half. I was planning on going to Europe when I talked to my friend Bill Steffel, who had gone to the Celeveland Institute, and he suggested that I try to get in. It was a last minute thought. I put together a portfolio and was accepted. I love it.

COURIER: What subjects did you study last year?

TOLLAS: I studied English and history and took basic art courses to establish disciplines to produce work. Next year I will start my major, ceramics.

COURIER: Many people think that art is a risky field in which to try to earn a living. How do you feel about that?

TOLLAS: The art field is crowded but if a person works hard he can earn a living. I'm not worried. I'll probably never make a lot of money but that's not important to me.

COURIER: What do you plan to do after you graduate?

TOLLAS: I could teach, but mostly I would like to start a studio of my own.

COURIER: Have you ever shown your work at an art show?

TOLLAS: No, but this year I am entering the Charlevoix Waterfront Art Fair and the Portside Art Fair in East Jordan.

COURIER: Is your work for sale anywhere?

TOLLAS: Yes, it can be seen at Bill Murray's Little Gallery on Petoskey Avenue and at Artists Lansing at Brownwood on Torch Lake.

COURIER: What subjects do you like to paint?

TOLLAS: I paint mostly landscapes. I like barns and boats, too, and have done lots of close-ups of subjects such as trees and branches.

COURIER: You like being an artist, don't you?

TOLLAS: Yes, artists can produce something that is worthwhile. I never get bored because each picture is different.

COURIER: What are you doing this summer?

TOLLAS: I'm working at Medusa as a laborer. Doing shovel work.

Erma Bombeck

I heard of a couple the other day who, in their later years, enjoyed financial independence they never dreamed possible.

However, due to maladies, their respective diets are limited to baby foods.

Is that a kick in the head? It's the old saw – when you need it, you can't afford it . . . when you can afford, you can't enjoy it.

We used to drive around on Sundays and look at houses built to accommodate a growing family. The only ones who could afford them were couples whose children had grown. The idea of all those empty bathrooms used to keep me awake at night. (I had a nail outside of ours with a card reading, "This number being served.")

It's cruel to even bring it up, but these are just a few of the observations that are probably in your future and mine.

When you no longer have to read a menu from the dollars and cents column, you'll have to read the parenthesis (20-minute wait may be too long).

When you can afford to have your hair frosted, your teenagers may have streaked it for you.

When you can afford to have a cleaning lady take the fingerprints off the walls, you may not have any fingerprints living at home.

When your trees are big enough to hang a swing from, there will be no one young enough to use the swings.

When you can afford sexy clothes, you'll have forgotten why you are wearing them.

When you have time to get a tan, researchers will have discovered it makes you look older and is unhealthy.

When you can afford to "get away from it all," it will take more effort to go than to stay.

When you have more than a $5 balance in your checking account, you'll have an accountant to manage your affairs.

When you have a complete set of matching glasses for eight, you'll only need two to set the table each night.

When someone gets around to baking you a birthday cake, the candles will be a fire hazard.

My big fear is that by the time I have time to explore who I really am and find my true identity, I'll discover I'm average.

Better to live with baby food than that.

Tennis Talk

By CHUCK WRIGHT

Once the novice or the intermediate player learns to hit the forehand and backhand fairly consistently, he normally thinks that the next step is to hit the ball as hard as possible.

This is a very poor assumption. When learning to play tennis, the first priorities should be consistency, placement and, lastly, power. Therefore, after learning to hit your forehand and backhand consistently, the next step is to learn to place your shots.

Placement is developed only as you gain confidence in your ground strokes. It is an effective weapon in all aspects of tennis. If you are moving the ball around, placing it wherever you want, it is extremely difficult for the opponent to hit good, forcing shots against you.

By moving the ball all over the court and changing the speeds of your shots, you can make it virtually impossible for your opponent to gain a rhythm. If you can keep him off balance, you have the game won.

Power does have an important plce in tennis. It should not become a goal, however, until you have reached a certain level as a player. Power is only essential for the top-flight tournament player, not the local, club player.

I have often repeated this common statistic: at all levels of tennis, over 75 percent of all points played end in a mistake. At the intermediate level, this statistic climbs to almost 90 percent. Obviously, if you can eliminate your mistakes, you can increase your chances to playing winning tennis.

That is why consistency ranks even high on the priorities list than either placement or power.

If any player sacrifices his consistency and placement effectiveness with power, he will definitely become a poorer player. If this player can develop the power while simply maintaining his established level of consistency and placement, then his overall game will be improved.

Basically, tennis is a game of discipline. Working on the right things and in the right order is essential to becoming a good player. If the developing player becomes too impatient and tries to skip a step or two, then he will probably have to go back and learn the basics all over again.

Remember, consistency first, placement second, and power third.

Two Wheel Traveler
by Jon Hendra

Much of motorecycling is keeping your head. If you quit using yours and pull the dumb stunt that sends you flying, you'll probably get a second chance if you're wearing a good helmet. Helmets are the difference between minor mishaps and collecting on your life insurance.

Now that helmets are mandatory in almost every state the choice left to the rider is which helmet to wear. Helmets vary in style and construction. The poor ones are better than nothing, but not much. So make your last line of defense as good as possible.

Helmets are shock absorbers that are meant to be used once. They feature a hard outer shell resistant to impact and penetration, and inner layer of polystyrene, and finally soft foam padding covered with material.

Shock or impact can reduce the effectiveness of this system; sometimes with little visable damage. After any impact your helmet should be discarded or returned to the manufacturer for inspection or repair.

One of the great helmet arguments centers around shell materials and whether fiberglass nr polyearbonate is superior. Until it is settled, the choice of style and reputable manufacturer should be first in the buyer's mind.

No one helmet is best for all riding conditions. I have two. Around town I wear a magnum style that gives odded protection to the temples while not limiting peripheral vision or impairing hearing. On the road I generally use a full coverage

Trades Class Will Build

The Charlevoix High School Building Trades class will be constructing another house next fall as the result of recent action by the Charlevoix Board of Education.

The board approved the purchase of Lot 17 in Hampton Village as the site of the house. Cost of the lot was $5,400 plus 50 percent of the taxes for 1975 and the sewer assessment. The action was by a vote of 5-1 with Robert Cook abstaining and Max Novak voting the action.

The results of Monday's election which was won by Cook for the two year term and Charles Elzinga for the four-year term to succeed himself were given by Supt. James A. McKimmy. Cook, who is filling an unexpired term, was sworn in at the meeting.

Pink hydrangea pinnts and candelabra accented the altar of the church, candles and greens were placed at the windows and white bows marked the pews.

Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Saunders, of East Jordan, are parents of the bride and the groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ruhl Metzger, of Charlevoix.

Alan Sibinic, of Ypsilanti, pianist, played traditional wedding selections and accompanied Kathy Mussey, soloist, of Boyne Falls as she sang, "The Wedding Song" and, "Of Love I Sing."

A traditional gown was chosen by the bride. It was fashioned of dotted swiss with long sleeves and a ruffle at the bottom of the guthered skirt. White cotton lace accented the wrists, yolk and ruffles. A headband of matching lace secured her waist length veil of white net and lace. She carried a white Bible covered with a corsage of blue, lavender and pink carnations and a white embroidered lawn handkerchief that had belonged to her great, great aunt and had been carried by her mother on her wedding day.

Susan Saunders, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor and another sister, Diane Saunders and a sister of the groom, Candy Metzger, were bridesmaids.

They wore dotted swiss gowns in blue, lavender and pink, respectively. The gowns featured short puffed sleeves and a long gathered skirt trimmed with white cotton lace. Their wide brimmed garden hats matched their gowns and each curried a wicker basket of carnations, dyed to match their gowns.

Arnold Strong, of Bliss, served as best man and groomsmen were Stunrt Cunningham, of Charlevoix and Steve McCarey, of Petoskey.

The guests were seated by Blain Saunders, brother of the bride and John Vlasak, brother-in-law of the groom, of Two Rivers, Wisc.

A reception was held in the United Methodist Church Hall, in Charlevoix, hosted by the parents of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Griffin, of East Jordan, aunt and uncle of the bride, assisted as host and hostess.

The mother of the bride chose a floor length gown of aqua polyester for the wedding and the groom's mother chose a floor length gown of pink in double knit. Both wore a corsage of blue, lavender and pink carnations.

A rehearsal dinner was hosted by the groom's parents on the eve of the wedding at the Grille, in Charlevoix.

Following a honeymoon in the New England States, the couple will reside in Charlevoix. Both the bride and groom are teachers. She graduated from Central Michigan University and he, from Northern Michigan University. (Martinchek Studio, of Petoskey)

School Board Approves

Building Principals Get 10% Hike

Salaries for principals and non-certified personnel were the major issues at the recent meeting of the Charlevoix Board of Education. In addition, one teacher was hired and one transferred from the Middle to the High School faculty.

Salary increases represented a 10 percent increase and were approved by a vote of 4-2 with the newest member of the board, Robert J. Cook, abstaining. Voting nay were Max Novak and Ms. Ardeith Wieland. Salaries for Ralph Rayner, elementary principal, and Vincent Chew, Middle School principal, were set at $18,332; Vane H. Smith, high school principal, $21,475 and Roy Fortin, assistant high school principal, $17,285. The increases were included in the 1975-76 budget.

At the same time, the master contract with the Charlevoix Custodial Services Association was ratified and the non-certified personnel represented by this group given a 10 pereent increase in wages and benefits. Bus drivers received approximately a five percent increase and will receive other compensation as the result of trips. These increases were also included in the budget.

After approving a job description for the position of Physical Plant Director, Robert Smith, who recently retired from the U.S. Coast Guard, was hired to fill the position. Novak and Mrs. Wieland voted no on this issue.

Steven Stargardt was employed as the vocal music instructor in the system. He will replace Mrs. Carol Elliott who taught one-half day and Mrs. Frances Tollas who taught one hour per day. The first year he will be at the middle school with a limited time at the high school. Ms. Evelyn Peters, who has been teaching fifth grade, will take over the instrumental music program in the middle school following Gary Stutzman's advancement to head of the music department following C.A. Odnark's retirement.

Stargardt, a graduate of the University of Cincinnati Conservatory of Music, taught in the Cincinnati system for four years and at Bellaire for two years before joining the "New Found Spirit" musical group for the past two years.

Kenneth Bartley was transferred from the middle to the high school as math and science teacher to succeed Mrs. Frances Novak who retired recently.

County Considers Switchboard

Charlevoix County offices may soon be serviced by a switchboard.

In a report to the Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners last week Commissioner Ralph Richardson noted that there is no more room in conduits leading into the County buildings to handle additional telephones.

There are approximately 150 phones in the main County Building and Annex at the present time and with expanding offices it is anticipated that more will be needed.

Richardson said it would cost $838 to install a switchboard and monthly costs would amount to $602 as compared with the present $520. The County would also have to hire a switchboard operator and furnish a space for the equipment.

The subject has been referred to the Building and Grounds and Personnel committees of the Commission.

JEWELRY and SKIN ALLERGIES?

(First of a three part series.)

IT MIGHT BE CHEAPER TO BUY fine jewelry than to pay a dermatologist's bill, according to a leading physician, Dr. Jean Claude Bystryn.

Dr. Bystryn and dermatologists throughout the country frequently encounter an allergy known as Contact Dermatitis which appears as a big red rash on the skin. Its cause? Generally, the nickel found most frequently in cheap jewelry! "Nickel," says Dr. Bystryn, "is used as an alloy. It is particularly common in cheap jewelry which is often nickelplated.

Platinum contains no nickel and therefore is the safest. Sterling silver contains little nickel and is consequently very safe." -

What about gold? (Cont. next week)

Charlevoix 4th Graders Buy Library Books

MIKE FELS, a Charlevoix fourth grader, unveils his class present.

By Steve Young
Charlevoix Elementary School

Mrs. Chew's Language Arts class made a newspaper called "Chew's News and Interviews".

We sold five hundred copies of them and made a total of $36.00.

Our class voted and instead of spending it on forty kids with ice cream and a party - we thought about our school. We went to the park place and bought 4 books on Laura Ingalls Wilder - and Mr. Milke thought so much of our good deed he gave us 2 books. Then we went to Mr. Neff a local artist and bought a set of hand carved seagulls for the library.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Robert (Catherine) Tidmore of Marinette, Wis.; three sons, Michael J. of Marquette, James O. and Joseph E., Jr., of Charlevoix; two grandchildren; a sister, Mrs. Arthur (Mary) Pischner of Manitowoc, Wis., and three brothers, J. Council Considers Shuttle Service

Shuttle bus service for Charlevoix? Sound impossible?

Not according to plans proposed Monday by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

Chamber President Peter Pace asked city council to consider establishing a shuttle bus service for the city and immediate surrounding areas.

He said the chamber would be willing to operate the line if the city would underwrite them up to $5,000 for any losses that might incur during a three-month trial period.

In light of present gasoline price projections, Pace said the bus would benefit the car driver, as well as younger people and citizens who could use public transportation.

"We have so many employees down in the valley driving to work and taking up much needed parking," he added.

Mayor Ed Hansen agreed that something is in order, but wondered if it should be handled by private enterprise.

Council referred the matter to committee for further consideration. In the meantime, the chamber said they would canvass the community for reaction.

In other action, council:

--Accepted a bid for salt at $18.35 a ton from the Diamond Crystal Salt Company.

--Approved a request to close Clinton Street from Grant to Park fur a neighborhood block party on July 4.

--Agreed to hire the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce to hand the fireworks display for Venetian Festival for $1,000.

Jack Wheeler of the State Department of Building Inspection has been in Charlevoix the first part of this week to take care of any urgent problems but it is not known how the local department will be operated until a new Building Inspector is installed.

The County Department of Building Inspection is responsible for all structural building inspection within the County, with the exception of the City of Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township, which are operating separately under the direction of Arthur A. Ranger.

When buying a helmet make sure it fits. It should be snug and not wobble when you shake your head. It will break-in during the first weeks of use but a helmet bought too tight will remain a headache forever.

If the ones you're looking at pass the Z-90 standards it's a good helmet; if it has the Snell Foundation sticker it's better yet.

GIRAFFE

Giraffes are the tallest of all animals, sometimes over 18 feet tall. They eat leaves from the treetops by using their very long tongue to pull the leaves off. Because their necks and legs are so long, Giraffes must kneel down to get a drink of water or eat from the ground. They have short horns with rounded ends and a short, stiff mane. Giraffes are common to the central and southern African plains.

Stolt Road Controversy

Warners Quit; Hearing On

By SARA GAY DAMMANN

A public hearing will be held concerning the future of Hayes Township's Stolt Road despite the request to withdraw a petition designating it a "Michigan Natural Beauty Road," according to Irv Sturm, Charlevoix County Road Commission Engineer.

Sturm informed the Courier that he had received a letter from Mrs. Todd Warner, initiator of the petition with her husband, requesting the withdrawal of the petition for "personal reasons."

Sturm said that "a very specific procedure" is required once a petition is initiated.

"One signer of the petition can not withdraw a petition when there are other bonified signatures on it." (In this case there are 60 when only 25 are required, Sturm said).

This conclusion was reached by the Road Commissioner and his lawyer, even though the person withdrawing was the originator of the petition.

"By law, the Road Commission must proceed with the hearing," Sturm concluded.

Sturm said he could not comment on what the "personal reasons" might be.

The Stolt Road improvement controversy has focused on a debate between Hayes Township Trustees and the Warners over the presently rough, dirt road which the Warners had hoped to maintain in its natural state, but for which the Township had budgeted $25,000 for improvement.

The road passes largely through a climax forest – a forest in delicate ecological balance – and some pasture land.

The Warners, and at least one other property owner on the road, had felt that minimum improvements were more desirable than improvements required by county road commission standards.

Other Stolt Road property owners had indicated that they wanted the road improved.

In April, the township trustees unanimously voted to improve the road.

The Warners protested and circulated the petition, which Mrs. Warner presented to the road commission on June 9.

At the same meeting, Mrs. Warner questioned whether the Road Commission had a legal right of way for the sections of Stolt Road which border the Warner's property.

The Warners asked consulting engineer Arthur Ranger to research their property abstract to support their contention that no right of way existed.

Mrs. Warner indicated that they would only agree to "sell a reasonable amount of property for reasonable price," indicating they would not agree to sell enough to allow for the 66-foot right of way which the road commission said was required.

All concerned agreed Stolt Road needs improvement.

The debate has been on how much improvement and how much damage improvement means to the hardwood forest.

The road commission has argued that it must widen to specific standards, which include a 66-foot right of way if necessary.

The rafts will be lined up behind the Chamber of Commerce building at the foot of Antrim st. to begin the race around a marked course on Round Lake.

It will end off East Park where prizes will be awarded.

Prizes of $40, $30, $20 and $10 will be offered for the top four best times in the race and $10 for the most creative raft according to Don Voisin, chairman of this event for the Chamber.

The Flea Market, to be held in East Park, had already attracted 35 entries on Monday morning and more are expected before the event opens at 9 a.m. Saturday.

"One person's junk can be another's treasure. I'm sure that visitors to the market will find many treasures" Olach said in announcing the variety of entries.

He said "flea markets are always fun so this event should offer a lot of entertainment for everyone."

As for the Fourth of July picnic, Jack Uhrick, general chairman of this event, is planning an old-fashioned picnic beginning at 11 a.m. and continuing until 4 p.m. at the Ferry ave. beach on Friday, July 4.

Besides the good food, the games for the kids (and grown-ups if they want to play) will be the highlight of the event. Uhrick lists such entertaining events as a sack race, three-legged race, an egg throwing contest, a pie eating contest and a watermelon seed spitting contest.

The contestants will be divided into specific age groups with trophies being awarded to the top winners.

In addition, there will be Don Meggison's barbecued chicken cooked over an open grill, potato salad, baked beans, rolls and a beverage. For adults, it will be $3.50 and for kids under 10 years $2.00 each.

This weekend will also offer the semi-finals and finals in the Michigan Amateur Golf Championship at the Belvedere Golf Course on Saturday.

The tournament which attracted more than 300 Michigan amateur golfers opened Tuesday a.m. at the Belvedere and the Harbor Point golf courses for two days of medal play. Match play will begin at the Belvedere course Thursday

Judge Fershee Announces New Drunk Program

By PEG OHLE

Persons picked up in Charlevoix County for driving under the influence of liquor may soon be able to take advantage of a program announced this week for Emmet County.

District Court Judge David Fershee told of the Referral Program he is starting in an attempt to stem the rising number of drinking and driving offenses that are being processed through his Court.

Under the program, a defendant charged with the offense of driving under the influence of liquor, who has no previous drunk driving convictions, and who was not involved in an accident as a result of his arrest, will be offered an opportunity to plead guilty to the charge of driving while impaired.

If the defendant accepts this offer, he will be required to enter the court referral program voluntarily. The program will consist of a minimum of six weeks of meetings, during which time the problems of driving after drinking will be thoroughly covered by the instructor. The program will be conducted by the Tri-County Substance Abuse Center.

If the defendant successfully completes the program, he will then return to the Court for sentencing. Should he fail to complete the program successfully he will immediately be called in for sentencing by the Court.

Judge Fershee says the identification of the drinking driver, and the treatment of his problem before he is involved in an accident, or perhaps kills someone, is a priority item of his Court.

The main ineentive for taking the reduced charge of impaired driving and participating in the Referral Program is that it is less costly in fines, jail sentencing and license restrictions.

Judge Fershee indicated that if the Referral Program for drunken drivers is as successful as he hopes it will be, it could be extended to cover other drunken offenses, such as "being drunk and disorderly."

Judge Fershee also said that the crime of having an open container of liquor in a motor vehicle should beeome a more serious crime because persons found guilty of this offense could well be those found guilty later of drunken driving.

Currently, approximately four persons are arrested in Charlevoix County weekly on drunken driving charges.

The Emmet County Referral Program is the first in Northern Michigan.

Fill Out Page Four Questionnaire

Are You Interested in a City Shuttle Bus Service?

Plans for a city bus shuttle are beginning to be nailed down by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce.

The chamber is already starting to canvass the community for its reaction towards having a local shuttle service in the area.

Appearing in this week's Charlevoix Courier is a questionnaire the chamber wants local residents to fill out and return to its office as soon as they can.

The questionnaire comes only a week after President Peter Pace approached city fathers with the bus proposal. But, before any further moves are made, the Chamber wants to know what the community thinks.

In its questionnaire, the chamber simply wants to know who in the Charlevoix area would take advantage of the program, as well as where they would like to see a bus route.

You simply have to fill in the blanks on the questionnaire and return it to the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce office.

Talk of having local shuttle runs began several years ago when residents wondered if some type of service should be provided for those boating into Charlevoix and not having land transportation.

But the transportation question died down until the Chamber started looking into the question at a recent meeting.

Moved by recent news that gasoline prices will continue to soar upwards and downtown parking continues to become a problem, the Chamber decided to reopen the question.

Pace says the chamber is proposing to secure a private transportation company to operate two 30-passenger buses through the area.

Under proposed plans, the buses would make hourly trips through the area starting at 6 a.m. and continuing as late as midnight.

Shuttle service would be provided Monday through Saturday for 25 cents per trip for adults and 25 cents for two trips for children.

The chamber is considering a route that would begin on the south side of town to Ferry Beach along Stuver up to May Street, it would continue from the high school to Belvedere and then downtown. Then it would go through the north-side along Dixon to Depot Beach to the golf course and then up to Pine Point and continue on Waller Road to North Point and back downtown via McSauba Road, Michigan Avenue to Michigan Beach.

Depending on the season, the buses would eatch the public beaches, ball diamonds and ice rink, as well as make rounds to the hospital, airport, bowling alley and south motels.

Exact costs of the proposed system haven't been pinned down yet, but the Chamber has asked the city council to underwrite them up to $5,000 during a three-month trial period.

Council has said they would take the matter up in committee.

"You could be solving 10 to 15 percent of the parking problem right off the bat."

The chamber president said that many downtown merchants would probably rather ride a bus to work than try to find a spot downtown.

"A lot of people might not have two cars if they could go on a bus," he added.

When asked why the Chamber didn't let private enterprise come in and solve the transportation needs, Pace said he thought if the private sector had been interested they probably would have done it in Charlevoix and other communities some time ago.

"The chamber with all our functions can't afford to be in the bus business either," he continued.

"We just don't have the personnel."

He said the chamber was attempting to find a company that would physically run the buses, if the chamber handled receipts and paid bills.

Pace said he hoped the bus would be a break-even proposition.

In addition to eliminating traffic and parking problems, the chamber said the program would also:

--Provide point-to-point transportation for residents, particularly children, senior citizens and those unable to drive.

--provide transportation and increase business activity for transients for motels and boats.

--develop a year-round system that will provide transportation to and from employment, and thereby implement an energy conservation program.

High Mail Costs

On Tuesday, June 17, we received in our mail a pamphlet and change of address kit from the Post Office. The pamphlet gave information regarding the use of the change of address cards. I was under the impression that the upcoming postal increases were due to the fact that the Postal Service was not making any money. Now we receive, and must assume that everyone else did also, a packet of cards that couldn't be cheap to print and that we will probably lose before we move again. It would seem a greater service to the public to send the pamphlet advising of the cards and the fact that the cards are available at the local Post Office in the event of a move. On one hand the government is again crying broke, and throwing away money with the other.

Fishing?

To the stores who sold them, the parents who let their sons have them and the young boys who were using them in the channel–I can't believe snagging fish, ripping out the snags and throwing the torn and bleeding fish back in the channel is what the term "fishing" is all about.

Candidate for Senator

I think Secretary of State Richard Austin should eonsider being a candidate for Senator Hart's seat. He has demonstrated that he can handle the job and would be a good representative of our state in Washington.

Backs Ruppe

Phil Hart has been a good senator and I think we need someone like Phil Ruppe to continue on with the job. He has done well as our congressman and could continue to even be better as a United States Senator. I support Phil Ruppe.

Government Ego

Government by ego seems to be a more apt phrase than government by people. Everyone loses including those who cannot rise above their own concern to make decisions based on the common good.

But its human nature and there's only one way to make democracy work and that's for each of us to be constantly aware and vigilant about what's going on in local government.

Attend your public meetings regularly–you'll find it's like going to a play. Each legislator is a character study and in time it becomes apparent who are the good guys and the bad guys.

Meanwhile, it's a sad day for Charlevoix that the Regional Planning Commission, a sensible idea with sensible goal, has been scuttled.

Sincerely,
Barbara MacArthur

P.S. Appreciate very much the Courier taking stands on local issues, particularly where land use is concerned. I have seen this sort of thing happen in two other places where we've lived and it seriously affects the quality of life.

JEWELRY and SKIN ALLERGIES?

(part 2 of 3 part series)

John Reusch

"Rarely, very rarely, is there an allergic reaction to pure gold," Dr. Bystryn says.

The problem of Contact Dermatitis is most prevalent in the summer due to the perspiration which dissolves nickel, enabling it to penetrate the skin." According to the doctor, the dissolved metal can be picked up by the fingers and spread throughout the body. Once the allergy develops, it never goes away. In addition, it spreads on contact with such common subjects as doorknobs, pocketbook handles, metal chains, and plated silverware.

Some areas of skin are more sensitive to cheap metal and others because the skin is thinner in these areas. Such areas happen to be where jewelry is most commonly worn – the wrist, ears, and neck.

What treatment are there? (Conl. next week)

The 'Fudgie' Story

Hundreds Watch Fudge Being Made

By PEG OHLE

If you've never pressed your nose against the large glass window in front of Murdick's Famous Fudge shop on Bridge Street you've probably seen hundreds of other people do it.

What's the big attraction? Well, there's something fascinating about watching those big globs of chocolate or vanilla being creamed into cutting shape with large paddles that look like modified ice cutters – which they really are.

And the marble-topped tables. They're important to the process because marble absorbs the heat from the hot fudge and hastens the cooling process.

All of this was explained to us by Jeryl Murdiek, who with her brother, Gary, manages Murdick's Famous Fudge.

The local Murdick's is not part of any chain. The family goes back to the first fudge-maker, F. Jerold Murdick, who went to Mackinac Island in 1887 to work on building the Grand Hotel then later started a bakery which turned into a fudge emporium. The Murdicks later sold their interests on the island to the May's, who still operate several fudge shops.

F. Jerold Murdick's son, Newton Jerome Murdick, later opened the shop in Charlevoix, which is now operated by the third generation of Murdicks.

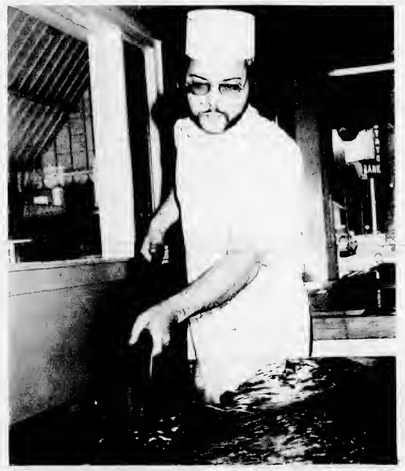
Before the fudge comes into sight on the large marble slabs it is carefully prepared in copper kettles in batches up to 30 pounds. Jeryl told us that no artificial flavorings are used and the basis for the richness is the 25 per cent butterfat cream that is supplied by a local dairy.

The most popular variety of fudge sold locally is chocolate pecan, although seven other varieties are available: vanilla pecan, plain chocolate, peanut butter, plain vanilla, maple walnut, chocolate black walnut and chocolate mint.

While the odor of cooking and cooling fudge is great from the outside, one must go inside to get the full benefit of it, and people do just that, which undoubtedly helps with sales.

There's a railing in the shop to separate customers from the cooling fudge but Jeryl says they will probably have to put up a glass partition next year because so many people want to reach out to touch the fudge (and maybe get a free sample?).

"We never used to have that trouble," she adds.



GARY MURDICK is probably one of the most watched people in town. He's the one who makes all the fudge that attracts many tourists to the area.

Here's What Those Who Eat Fudge Say

They invade the North every summer.

In Charlevoix alone, some 9,000 tramp up and down the streets searching for that magical box.

No one can really explain the phenomenon, but thousands of tourists from across the world hit Northern Michigan for its fudge.

Local residents even give then a nickname–"fudgie."

And if yoo happen to be called one, don't take offense. It simply means that you're more than the everyday type of tourist.

In fact, its even hard to explain who you are to anyone. Your only trademark is the white box of fudge gripped tightly in your hands as you walk through town.

We tried to come up with an explanation of the mystery of why people come here and buy fudge, but we're really at a loss.

A Dayton, Ohio couple came up with the best answer–it's the smell

Having just come from the home of fudge, Mackinac Island, they said its hard to resist buying it

"It smells good," says Bob Giarratano

Giarratano and his wife, Faye, had just spent the day on the island and couldn't resist stopping in a fudge shop to load up on $9 worth of the stuff.

Giarratano couldn't understand why there were so many fudge stores there. He said the same company had four shops on the same side of the street.

Even so, he said they would be buying more fudge before they leave the area

Their only hope now was for the rain to quit so they could continue with their camping trip along the Michigan coast.

Several others say they just like the taste of it, and Northern Michigan is the only place where they can load up on it.

Believe it or not, there are other reasons why people stop into Charlevoix for all or part of their summer vacations. Not all tourists are "fudgies."

Some come to see old friends, like a group of eight women from Lansing up for their annual summer bridge game with Mrs Robert Riggle, a former Lansingite.

The group has been together for 14 years and not even Mrs. Riggle's move to Charlevoix was going to stop them from playing.

Some time, the Kipling Keys Club were all neighbors on the same street. Even though some have moved, they still get together for bridge.

Besides the bridge, the Lansing group of women say they like Charlevoix for its architecture and shoppoue. No word of fudge was mentioned.

But after the interview in the Courier office, several members of the group were seen down the street eyeing the corner fudge store.

Included in the group were Kay Jacobs, Gladys Horning, Millie Curtis, Eileen Manse, Glen Aldricht, Gladys Aldridge, Eileen Crawford and Hazel Kowalski

"We sail and like boats," Vincent said

The newlyweds were making this a honeymoon trip.

Claire, who is originally from New Mexico, said this was the first time she had been to Michigan and couldn't believe all the water.

Even after talking with several others, the Courier was unable to find a cloe to the mystery of fudge.

The secret has to be lodged some place in that white cardboard box. But exactly where, no one seems to know.

THIS OHIO couple thinks Charlevoix fudge is one of the greatest things around. In fact, they plan on loading up on it before heading home

Northern Michigan Rail Users Back State Planning Move

CADILLAC -- A Northern Michigan rail users group said Friday that it wanted no state rail abandonment until adequate planning can be done.

The position of the Northern Michigan Rail Users Association was revealed after some 25 members hammered a consensus stand while meeting all day at Caberfae Motor Lodge.

The regional group, which organized early this year, represents area business and industry and has been attempting to block proposed railroad abandonment in Northern Michigan.

Under plans now being considered by Congress, the North stands to lose virtually all rail service by next year.

Robert Jones, a member of the group, had called the special meeting to urge the association to adopt a rail service plan that could be presented to the state.

Consider Maps

However after considering four maps presented by Paul Treskn, state representative of the United Transportation Union, the group decided not to endorse specific rail lines at this time.

The decision came after the rail users learned from Bill Bailey of the Michigan Department of Highways and Transportation Department that there has been no change in proposed rail abandonment for Michigan at the federal level.

Bailey said he and several other state officials learned two weeks ago that the United States Railroad Association (USRA) is still basing its abandonment decisions on line profitability.

"We felt they were much too narrow on their version," Bailey said about the USRA stand.

"But, they've stuck to their guns."

Bailey said the federal position was disappointing and that he completely disagrees, with the profitability criteria.

State Concerns

At present, Bailey said the state is concerned with the following areas:

–upgrading bankrupt rails in the southern part of the state going onder Conrail –bankrupt lines that may go to solvent carriers.

–the remaining bankrupt lines.

"The State will be supporting and extending concerns for passenger service," the state transportation planner added.

Bailey said the state also is concerned abnot the continuance of ferry service and line traffic in the Saline and Dundee area because it will have a direct bearing on profitability of lines in the North.

He said that a new legislative committee was meeting Monday to discuss rail service.

New Group

The new group, known as the Quadrant Committee, is composed of an equal number of Senate and House Republicans and Democrats who will act as a clearing house for legislative proposals.

In other reports made doring the day, the group heard Richard Beagle of the Northwest Michigan Regional Planning and Development Commission tell that it is against any rail abandonment in the area.

He said the commission is presently securing a consultant to help fight data osed by the U.S. Department of Transportation to project potential abandonments.

He said the group also is attempting to determine potential economic impact, market potential and alternative solutions to transportation problems in the area.

Back Governor

William Ohle of Horton Bay was one of many who argued throughout the day that Northern Michigan Rail Users shouldn't be involved in recommending particular lines to serve the North at this time.

"If we pick one now, it will weaken our case," he said.

Ohle recommended that the group support Gov. William Milliken's recommendation for a two-year moritorium on all rail abandonment until the state has a chance to study the problem.

Other local residents at the meeting were Mayor Edward Hansen and an employe of Freedman Artcraft.

Representatives of the state attorney general's office at the meeting included Robert J. Taube, assistant attorney general; and Albert G. Isaac, deputy attorney general.

It was also announced that the following three members would serve on a new advisory committee to the Department of Transportation on railroads. They are David Harnum, president of the Michigan Rail Users; James F. Schouman, attorney for several area industries; and Paul Treska, state representative of the United Transportation Union.

Editorials/Opinions

Charlevoix Should Consider Shuttle

A push for local shuttle bus service by the Charlevoix Chamber of Commerce shed some light against recent gloomy energy forecasts.

It was only a week ago, we were able to pick up our daily newspapers and read that gasoline could be up to $1.25 a gallon by the end of the summer.

The gasoline price prediction, coupled with projected shortages of almost all fossil fuels, has left us in a quandry.

The term "mass transit" hasn't been settling too well with the automotive appetite of Miehigan either. But, If only half of the recent economic forecasts come true, we will need to consider other transportation modes.

It's already apparent in Northern Michigan that we can no longer afford the higher gasoline prices. It will only be a matter of time before higher prices cripple our area.

With those realities hitting hard in the pocketbook, what are our alternatives?

When we've talked about mass transportation, we've generally been talking about large metropolitan areas like Detroit and Flint. And then, Northern Michiganders have complained bitterly about how unfair it is for them to finance downstate mass transportation.

Our only taste of anything coming close to mass transportation in the North has been rail transportation service, and even that type of service hasn't been around for some time.

Without passenger service in the north, we have had to rely on the automobile.

The unfortunate situation, as the Chamber of Commeree quickly points out, is that there are many people in this community who can't use a ear.

So, they have had to rely on local taxi service. However, many can't really afford the luxury or the price of a eab everytime they need to go downtown.

The Chamber's solution to the problem is to ereate a shuttle bus service for the immediate area.

They elaim that it might eurb some of the city's parking problems, in addition to eliminating part of the city's traffic conjestion.

Even more important, a bus going through town would give our youngsters an alternative of erossing main thoroughfares on foot and on bicycle.

A local transportation system to shuttle people from motels down to the beach and business district doesn't sound all that bad either.

Supports Road Status

Dear Sir:

HURRAH for the Warners!

One only has to drive from Charlevoix to Petoskey to see an example of how highway builders cut when given the opportunity. Surely the traffic on Stolt Road will never, in the foreseeable future, require much more width than is presently provided so that cutting of the huge trees along the road for purposes of widening it would amount to wanton destruction and a waste of taxpayers money.

I hope the Warners and their supporters will be able to keep Stolt Road the beautiful country lane it now is.

Sincerely,
Gail B. Stebbins.

I would like to predict that the Michigan Legislature will never pass legislation forcing the poor benighted taxpayers to finance teacher strikes of up to three weeks duration.

Oddly enough, that is the gist of a bill which did pass the Michigan House last week without too much difficulty.

Charlevoix's Rep. Ralph Ostling, a retired school teacher, voted in favor of the bill, crossing GOP party lines to do so.

Fortunately, the Senate doesn't look so favorably upon a public subsidy for teachers who strike. And Gov. Milliken stands ready with the veto if the Senate should prove as insensitive in this matter as the House.

Don't get me wrong. Teachers should have the right to strike whenever they find pay or working conditions intolerable. But the suffering taxpayer who pays their salaries in the first place should not be required to support striking teachers for one minute.

Look at it this way: The taxpayer would be charged for a service he is not getting in hopes that he will be charged more for the same servlee in the future, should the strike prove successful.

Teachers who feel compelled to strikc for whatever reason must never be offered the protection of the public till. In fact, paying strikers could well abort the entire negotiations procedure, giving teachers unfair clout at the bargaining table.

Finally, to be brutally frank, what teacher in his right mind would not prefer a three-week strike in September rather than go back to the classroom to tangle with little devils?

The Michigan House may not believe it, but teachers are — after all — quite human.

MEMBERS of the Charlevoix City Charter Commission are dismayed that so little attention is being given to their deliberations the second and fourth Tuesdays of every month.

Aslde from the commissioners themselves, the only two regulars at meetings are Alderman and Mrs. Ivan Whitley who serve as a sounding board for the ideas of the nine commissioners. They also have made some valuable contributions to the general discussinn.

With summer upon us, the mere thought of spending two hours in the city hall listening to learned discussions on the practicality of the ward system in a eommunity of 3,500 souls is enough to turn even the bravest away.

Come fall, however, the commission expects a little more attention from the old home town. Hear?

ONE DAY the ice lies unbroken from Charlevoix to Boyne City.

The next day it's summer.

That's one of the biggest complaints about life in northern Michigan — we have no season called spring.

But no one was complaining over the weekend as hundreds of townspeople and their visitors flocked to Depot Beach to seek respite from unseasonable 90 degree temperatures.

The dock wasn't up yet. The diving platform was still on dry land. The grass hadn't been cut. But no one seemed to mind. The water was as warm as it usually is the end of August and that's all that mattered. That – and the aroma of hot dogs and hamburgers sizzling over charcoal fires.

Summer: It's a good time to be alive.

IF YOU have a strong stomach and like adventure, pick up a copy of "Alive," the story of the Andes survivors now out in paperback. Thirty-two persons, most of them young men, survive the crash of an airliner in the Andes. During the next 70 days, 16 of them die. But I'd like to tell about their adventure thanks to the universally repugnant practice of cannabalism. It's a true story, but you'll wish it were fiction before you're through.

Dr. John Tanton Takes Ruppe to Task on Land Use

I would like to respond to Congressman Philip Ruppe's press release explaining his opposition to proposed federal land use legislation in its current form, reviewing both the history and substance of the proposal. In the last Congress, Mr. Ruppe was the major Republican co-sponsor of federal land use legislation, which the President had labelled his "number one environmental priority." Last year's bill and this year's are nearly identical.

Mr. Ruppe uses three grounds to justify his current opposition: 1) the funding level is too high; 2) state governments are assigned the "right to arbitrarily identify so-called "areas of state concern;" and 3) state governments are given the power to exclude local governments from the planning process."

The bill currently before the House Interior Committee, on which Mr. Ruppe sits, calls for $500 million in federal aid to states, to assist their planning efforts. This is to be spread over a period of six years. Last year's legislation called for the expenditure of only $800 million. Compared with many of the things on which Congress spends our tax dollars, this expenditure promises to be returned with interest, in savings to local communities of costs spawned by poorly planned developments. Further, this is an authorization bill, not an appropriations one. If passed, this program will have to compete with all other federal ones for funding, which will doubtless further reduce the funds actually spent. I believe these funds would be well spent in helping us to put our land use house in order.

Mr. Ruppe objects because the bill as reported to the full Interior Committee "assigns" the "right" to identify critical areas to the state. The "right to identify or regulate use of land area is already an inherent state power, provided for in the Constitution. Michigan, as most states, has delegated much of this power to local and county governments. The bill encourages participating states to begin exercising some of this authority with regard to critical areas that are vital to our future, and are of greater than local significance. Any legislation which did not provide for states to make their own determinations of "areas of state concern" would place the federal government in the business of controlling land use -- something Mr. Ruppe commendably worked very hard to keep out of last year's legislation.

On the third point– that states will exclude local governments from the planning process – Mr. Ruppe's concern is confusing. Last year Mr. Ruppe led a coablion of Republican Congressmen in a letter to their colleagues commenting on the virtually identical provisions in last year's bill for local government, which stated:

"We believe that such stated involvement in these kinds of decision is necessary to assure that all people with a legitimate interest in how these decisions are made should be represented in the decision-making process. Such state involvement is not violative but supportive of the principles of Home-Rule. The great majority of land use decisions, (all those with no regional or statewide significance) will continue to be made where they should be made, at the local level, closest to the land, by officials answerable to those affected. However, even in those cases in which the state may become involved in land use planning decisions, H.R. 10294 contains protective language for local government." (Dear Colleague letter, May 21, 1974.)

He later wrote his colleagues that:

"H.R. 10294 assures that local governments are protected in all phases of the planning process and that the public, including private property owners, are involved throughout the process," and further that: "H.R. 10294 does not undercut the powers of local government." (Dear Colleague letter, June 5, 1975. Emphasis in the original.)

Fortunately, the situation is not lost, for the land use bill has yet to be taken up by the full Interior Committee for study and amendment, and possible passage by the House. This provides Mr. Ruppe with an opportunity to modify the bill and address his concerns. I hope he will be successful in doing so, and then will support a bill that will help do a better job of taking care of the land than we have in the past.

It is also not too late for concerned citizens to write Mr. Ruppe urging his support of an appropriately amended land use bill. His address: The Honorable Philip E. Ruppe, House Office Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

Sincerely yours,
John H. Tanton, M.D.

John Tanton

OK, Relatives, Here It Is

The assignment was to sing "Florence McCool is Seventy" to the tune of "Old McDonald Had a Farm." I'll tell you, sometimes it is not easy being Irish.

It is also not easy to write columns on order. This was an Irish birthday party and funny things kept happening. After every laugh, someone would elbow me in the gut and say: "You'd better write something about that!" So here I am, with a sore stomach, writing under threat of being cut out of wills and off at parties. Please bear with me...

The event was a surprise party for Florence, my other aunt. Through the years I have written much about my Aunt Madeline, but not very much about Aunt Florence. Several years ago I did write that she and her husband were responsible for getting me into the newspaper business. Since then Florence has changed her name and address several times, but she still receives occasional rocks through her window. The only consolation I can offer her is that someday her name may be a household word, such as Frankenstein.

The party was hosted by Aunt Flo's daughter and son-in-law, Ginny and Don from Chicago. The last time I spent time with them was in Canada in a town where the law said you had to buy a sandwich before you could buy a drink. Don bought a cheese sandwich which he still carries in his pocket, 7 years later, just in case.

The only non-relative at the party was Aunt Flo's stockbroker. That's class. He is so devoted to her he even provided lodging for Ginny and Don, and refrigerntion for the cheese sandwich.

The party was held in a private room at Oakland Hills Country Club. Arranged neatly on a wall were photographs of about 50 handsome, middle-aged men. They were identified as past boyfriends of the guest of honor. My job was to stand in front of the plaque which revealed the men were really past presidents of the country club.

As you can see, this was a posh party arranged by my wealthier relatives. I caused quite a stir by driving my economy car to my brother-in-law's home in a green velvet subdivision. When I parked in his driveway, his burglar alarm sounded automatically. Fortunately, my mother was there to vouch for me.

Which touched off a familiar argument. I made the mistake of calling my mother a great-voucher. "I know you think your mother can vouch better than I can," my wife said, "and I am sick of hearing about it."

"It is only because Mother has more experience," I explained. "She raised 5 natty kids and has always had more to vouch for than most people."

As always with there family parties, the final hours were spent singing. Terrible Jean and brother-in-law Jack are always asked to lead and I am always asked to go outside and guard the cars. But this time, in response to no demand, I insisted upon singing. I sacrificed my natural tenor and contributed a much-heeded bass, bringing "Down by the Old Millstream" booming gloriously up from my toes.

I thought It was magnificent. Out in the hallway, a passing stranger said he thought it was the plumbing.

Oh, it was a marvelous Irish party. Happy birthday, Aunt Flo, we all love you. E.I.E.I.O.

Meet Charlevoix

Meet Jon Mays

Jon Mays, a Charlevoix High School senior, was elected last week as Governor of the American Legion's Wolverine Boys' State held at Michigan State University in East Lansing.

The 16-year-old Bay Shore resident tells what it was like to be elected to the high offlee by some 11,000 high school boys.

COURIER: What activities have you been involved with in high school?

MAYS: During my freshman and sophomore years I was in both football and track, but had to drop football after injuring my back. I'm also almost a certified diver and have been active in forensics. This year I was Charlie Brown in the one-act play "You're A Good Man Charlie Brown." I also work part-time at Charlevoix Area Hospital.

COURIER: What did you think about Boys' State before you went?

MAYS: I really wasn't sure. I was sure it was going to be a learning experience, but I wasn't quite clear what was going to happen. I had no intentions of running for governor, hut when I do go for something I like to go for the highest. Even if I don't make it I feel satisfied that I tried.

COURIER: What experiences did you gain from Boys' State?

MAYS: The main thing I got out of Boys' State was meeting so many people. There were so many people with so many different backgrounds. I even met a classical guitarist. We all strived to get to know everyone and leave with a spirit or feeling of self-motivation, confidence, brotherhood and love.

COURIER: What type of things did you use in your campaign for governor?

MAYS: I talked mostly about brotherly love. I tried to emphasize that the youth of today have an opportunity to show people today that we have the capacity of loving. During my campaign, I used this Bible verse from John: "Little children let us stop just saying we love people; let us really love them and show it by your action."

COURIER: What did you learn from Boys' State?

MAYS: I learned how government is run and how to form an executive council. I also learned that deadlines don't always work in government.

COURIER: When you met with Governor Milliken, what did you ask him?

MAYS: I asked him what the hardest decision was that he ever had to make. The governor said he couldn't answer that question because he has to make hard decisions every day.

COURIER: What are people your age concerned with the most?

MAYS: I think the guys were most interested in meeting last year's governor of Girls' State. Actually, I think they are concerned most with a person not being judged by his color. They want everyone to be treated equal.

Erma Bombeck

I have always admired mothers who can reach out, give their kid a belt or a thump and that's it. The punishment for the misdeed is done.

I use visuals. Me.

When a child comes in late, I refuse to shout or scream about it. Instead, the next morning I will drag out to kitchen looking like an avocado that has gone bad and say, "Go ahead. Kill your mother. Do I ask a lot? Eighteen hours of sleep a day. That's all I ask. But you – Mr. Night Vision. You run around like a hamster."

"Mom! Why don't you go to bed?"

"Did you hear that?" I asked the refrigerator. "Go to bed, he says. Why, I'd just have to get up when the policeman came to tell me you're in a ditch somewhere."

"MOM..."

"Put me out of your mind," I said. "But when I fall asleep in the dentist's chair, just tell yourself, 'I did that to Mom!'"

Some parents say visuals don't work as disciplinary measures. They say they're too subtle and too dramatic, but I have a few grabbers that have been effective.

Once when my daughter gave a party and didn't clean up, I was doing dishes at four in the morning. I know she felt rotten, even as she slept through it.

Probably my finest hour came last week when one son dropped me off at the beauty shop with instructions to "Call when they're finished with the estimate."

I called several times and no one answered. "I'll just have to punish him" I said and began the three-mile trip home by foot in the hot, blazing sun.

Forty-five minutes later I stood before him, hair styled like a birdlo pad, face red as a beet, breathing irregular, white anklets dusty from the walk. He was connected to his stereo with a pair of earphones.

"I know this is more punishment than a child should bear but I had to do it to you," I said gasping for breath, to teach you a lesson."

He slid off the earphones. I can't hear you with these earphones on."

"You're just going to have to live with your own guilt," I said, "and remember me as I stand before you....weak...but brave on the brink of a coronary."

"Does that mean you won't get to the store?" he asked.

Did I tell you he'd feel rotten? .

Charlevoix Gets Funds

Charlevoix County's share of Motor Vehicle Highway funds for the first quarter of 1975 amounts to $258,727 and the City of Charlevoix's share, $24,438.

These figures were released last week by the Michigan Department of State Highways and Transportation.

The funds, which are now being distributed, are generated by the state's tax on motor fuels and license plate fees. They are the major source of revenue for construction and maintenance of the state highway system and provide financial assistance for roads and streets in the state's counties and municipalities.

According to a formula established by the Legislature, 44.5 percent of motor fuel taxes and license plate fees go to the Department of State Highways, 35.7 percent of the state's 83 counties and 19.8 percent of the state's 531 incorporated municipalities.

The balance of monies collected goes to the Waterways Commission, the General Transportation fund, for administration and collection costs, and to subsidize the reduction of fares to the Mackinac Bridge.

The last quarter's collections are down about one-tenth of one percent from the same quarter last year, whep Charlevoix County received $59,259 and the City, 24,313.

Officials Expected To Discuss Sewer

Charlevoix City officials hope to be meeting shortly with neighboring township officials over sewage needs for the area.

The proposed meeting comes after a letter sent to council from the Department of Natural Resources regarding the city's application for a $1 million sewer separation project grant.

The DNR told the council that since another governmental unit within the area has applied for funding the units will have to get together to determine who will the grant recipient will be.

Charlevoix Township has applied for a $750,000 grant to construct sewer lines in the township.

In both cases, the Environmental Protection Agency will be covering 75 percent of the costs with the state paying five percent and local units covering 20 percent of the costs.

Both units have received conditional approval for planning and engineering costs.

Veterans Return

Charlevoix will be host June 27-29 to the annual summer convention of the Michigan Chapter of the Submarine Veterans of World War II, Benjamin S. Gill, convention chairman, has announced.

The Lodge will be convention headquarters with the banquet on Saturday evening scheduled to be held at Bourke's Steak and Stein restaurant.

How Do You Buy A House?

Looking for a house to buy" There are quite a few available in the Charlevoix area right now, and local real estate people say it's a buyer's market.

A house is a big investment, probably the biggest one most people make in a lifetime, so it should be selected and bought with care, giving special thought to present and future needs and likes.

Each family's life-style differs from others and calls for different perogatives. Location is of utmost importance to most families, be it near school for those with small children, within walking distance to town for senior citizens, or farther out in the country for mini-farmers.

The age of a house is another important consideration for some people. There are those who want an older victorian-type on which they can put their mark of restoration and display their antiquess. And there are those who want a new house with all the latest conveniences and which does not require a hammer's worth of work.

The size of a house suitable for any given family depends not only upon the number of persons in the family, but how they live. Room for hobbies, studying, storage, musie or entertaining may be important to one family but of no consequence to another.

The same is true of the grounds on which a house stands. The inveterate gardener who finds working with the soil a pleasure rather than a chore will want more grounds than the person who hates to push a lawn mower on a postage-stamp lawn.

The length of time a family intends to live in a house is also an important consideration. Newly-weds might look for something small in which they can "make do" until their family increases in size. A middle-aged family may want a house in which to spend the rest of their years.

These are just a few of the things to think about when considering buying a house; according to realtors, but when it comes to action what do you do?

First, contact a real estate person you know and trust. Sit down with him and discuss your needs, likes and financial means. Let him get to know you well so he can envision the house that is just right for you. If he doesn't have it now perhaps he can find one tomorrow, next week or next month.

While some houses must be bought within a short period of time it is usually wise to give the purchase as much consideration as possible to ensure complete satisfaction.

So far the financial angle of buying a house has not been discussed. Few families have enough money to pay cash so arrangements must be made to secure a mortgage or arrange for a land contract deal.

Added to the contract sales price of a house are such items as settlement charges and adjustment or pro-rationed costs for taxes, utilities and fuel.

Last Friday, the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act of 1974 became effective. It requires use of a standard form for advance disclosure of settlement costs and to record actual charges incurred at settlement in all mortgage transactions involving federaly related loans.

In effect, this permits the home buyer to "shop around" for the best financing available on the home he wants to buy. Copies of a booklet explaining the Real Estate Settlement Procedures Act must be given by a lending institution to all persons applying for a loan so they will understand their rights under the law.

5 Get CMU Honors

Two Charlevoix students have been honored by Central Michigan University for achieving straight "A" averages for the winter semester.

Named are Lynn M. Eby, a junior and Mari J. Goss, a senior.

In addition, three other students have been named to the academic honors list: Tori L. Alger, a sophomore; Kay E. Fiedorek, a senior and Maureen K. Peltier, a senior.

To be eligible for the academic honors list a student must have a cumulative grade average of "B" or better for his or her entire college career.

The straight "A" list is based upon winter semester grades without regard to cumulative averages.

The overhead smash is the single most dramatic shot in tennis. The power and grace of the overhead excites even the casual observer.

In many ways, the overhead can be compared to the dunk shot in basketball or the home run in baseball. It is the "clincher".

Surprisingly, the overhead smash is not a difficult shot to hit. Once the tennis player learns to hit the basic strokes (i.e. forehand, backhand, and serve), it is an easy step to learn how to hit an overhead. If well hit, the overhead is the most satisfying shot in tennis.

Imagine the improving player charging the net. The opponent hits a short lob quite close to the net. Patiently waiting for the ball, our player smashes on overhead past his helpless opponent for an outright winner. Although it is really an easy shot, our player struts away feeling like Jimmy Connors, Rod Laver, and Arthur Ashe all rolled into one.

Naturally, it is much easier to hit an overhead on the short lobs. Deep lobs can cause a great deal of problems to the improving player. Actually, once the basics of the overhead have been completely learned, neither the short or deep lobs should create any problems.

Hitting the overhead smash is a motion quite similar to the serve. Like the serve, you should use the backhand (or Continental) grip. Also like the serve, you should cock the racquet behind your head as the lob goes up in the air.

As you wait for the ball to come down, the non-racquet hand should be up in the air (as though you have tossed the ball on the serve). This gives you a good deal more balance and makes you keep your head up.

Contact should be made directly above the head with your arm fully extended. The result is a nice fluid motion with a maximum of power. Follow through the shot, directing your racquet out to where you want the ball to go.

The main difference between the serve and the overhead is that you have to move into correct position with the overhead. You also have to wait patiently for the ball to come down. If too impatient, you will constantly miss-hit the ball.

Be sure your shoulders, body and head stay up until you are ready to make contact. Watch the racquet go directly through the ball. Patience and timing are the keys to an effective overhead.

Even on deep overheads, the principals remain the same. If the ball gets behind you, do not try to hit a hard shot. Unless in a comfortable position, you should sacrifice your power for an effective placement.

The overhead smash plays a much larger role in men's tennis than in women's. With notable exceptions (Evonne Goolagong, Billie Jean King, and Margaret Court), women lack the strength to put the overhead away unless the ball is close to the net. Even a great player like Chris Evert often sacrifices power for placement on her overhead.

It is fun to hit the overhead. Hit one good overhead a set and it does not matter how badly you have played. One good overhead and you will come back for more.

Custer Wins Tourney

Mike Custer, 13, an ardent golfer, placed first in his age group at the first annual Insurance Youth Classic golf tournament at Traverse City last week.

Mike, the son of Dr. and Mrs. Harry Custer, placed first in the second flight (13-14-15 year olds) with a final score of 83. The 18-hold round had ended with a three-way tie. Mike won on the second 'sudden death' hole.

The top three players in the tournament, regardless of catagory (flight), qualified for participation in the state meet to be held at Lansing in July. The winners there will advance to the national tournament at Colorado Springs.

The tournament was sponsored by independent insurance agencies. The Fawcett-Dopke Agency of Traverse City was prime promotor of the this years event held at the Traverse City Golf and Country Club.

In addition to a helmet every rider should wear gloves and boots.

Our hands and feet are complex systems of bones that can be easily damaged and are always vulnerable. It is instinctive to put out a hand or foot in the event of a possible mishap. Unless properly protected injury usually results.

Boots and gloves can't always prevent injury, but they can minimize it.

Something as stupid as falling over at a standstill can bury tremendous amounts of gravel in your palm if you stuck your hand out to catch yourself. Even the thinest leather gloves eliminate the gravel.

Gloves also provide a consistant feel for the controls. You have the same secure grasp even with sweaty or greasy hands.

All-weather cyclists will need more than one pair to fit the varying conditions. I have three, ventilated driving gloves for summer, lined gnuntlets for spring and fall, and snowmobile mittens for winter. Keeping your hands warm is the biggest difficulty in cold weather riding. It's worth any expense to prevent coming down an exit ramp at 70 and realizing that you can't unclasp your hands from the grips to reach the levers.

Boots are pretty much a matter of taste as long as they have sturdy soles and heavy uppers. I prefer a simple and reasonably priced steel-toed work boot. If bought large enough, they can be made comfortable for cold weather with the addition of bulky wool socks. Don't add extra soeks if they make the boot tight. A tight fit restricts circulation and makes your feet colder than ever.

I'm dead against leather soles. They're just too darn slippery and wear-out in no time if you drag your feet on starts and stops.

Boots and gloves then, serve dual roles. Protection and comfort.

You're more alert and a safer rider when comfortable.

If properly protected you minimize injury should you make a mistake.

Dressing right helps you ride right.

Wiemer Beats Olson In Tennis Tourney

The finals in the annual local tournament open to players with a Charlevoix mailing address were played off during the weekend after being held up because of inclement weather earlier in the week, Drew Wachler, tennis instructor, has announced.

Lisa Wiemer defeated the defending champion, Gretchen Olsen, 6-4; 6-4 to take the women's singles in the meet.

The women's doubles were won by Laurie Lesser and Cricket Uhrick who team up to defeat Alice Lesser and Jackie Carey 6-5; 6-3.

Erik Lundteigen won over Gale Sheldon 6-2; 6-4 to take the men's singles.

Bill Dietrick and Tim Elenbaas joined forces to defeat Topper Carey and Dave Strawbridge 6-0; 6-3 in the men's doubles.

Wachler said a mixed doubles and an open tournament would be scheduled later this summer.

Workshop Gets New Lift

By FRAN MARTIN

To the clients at Bergmann Center who are confined to wheelchairs the new lift now in operation is "Great"; to the adults who work with these physically handicapped people, it's a godsend.

Those are the comments made to Robert P. Mayberry of the Cerebral Palsy Association of Michigan which helped finance the recently-installed lift at the Work Activity Center at 201 E. Garfield ave.

The lift is located off the workroom so the clients can be lifted from the ground-level to the building level. It is also utilized as a freight elevator.

Mayberry, associate director of the Cerebral Palsy Association, said it was possible to appropriate funds for this purpose when it became known that cerebral palsied persons who were also orthopedically handicupped were involved in an organized program such as the one available at Bergmann Center.

"It is our olm to get the money into the community where the most people will benefit from it" Mayberry said, in explaining how his orgonization could appropriate $1500 of its funds toward the project.

The remainder of project which costs $2218 was financed by the Charlevoix-Emmet Association for Retarded Children which operates the Center for clients from the southern section of Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix counties.

The United Palsy Association is an agency of the Michigan United Fund whose northern Michigan representative, Charles A. Duerr, was on hand for the initiation of the lift.

Ms. Janice Raecke, executive director, and Ms. Jessie Cunningham, supervisor, head the program which presently has 22 clients.

Its sponsor, the Char-Em Association for Retarded Children came into being more than 20 years ago when a group of parents and others were organized under the guidance of Mrs. Selden Barris of Oak Pork, Mich., a summer visitor here who was a member of the state organization. First located in the former Washington school which has since been razed, the day center program was housed at various sites until the first section of the present building was constructed in 1959. As the program was expanded to include a sheltered workshop, the building was enlarged to its present size.

When the stute required mandatory education for the retarded in 1965, the Char-Em Intermediate School District assumed the duties formerly served by the Day Center, leaving the Center with those people past the age where they would be eligiblefor the new program.

It was at this time that the work program was confined to a Work Activity Center which, in 1974, wos renomed Hergmann Center in recognition of the years Ms. Lillian Bergmonn had devoted to developing the program.

Six of the 22 clients now live at Charlevoix House, a home whose prime goal is to encourage the mentally handicapped to lead more independent lives.

Bergmann Center offers a work experience to these people not available anywhere else. "These people want to be like everyone else...they want a job, they want to bring home a paycheck, they want dignity. We attempt to meet these needs though they be on a modified scale" Mr. Raecke explained.

At Bergmann Center clients, some of whom are transported by the Center's own van, come to work every day to work on items the Center has contracts for with industries that offer something these people can do. They carry their lunches, gather around tables at noon, talk and socialize and, at the end of the day, return to their respective homes. For many, this is the only social life they have.

Ms. Raecke said that from 20 to 25 percent of the clients will eventually be able to enter the competitive field of employment. "This is our goal...to make independent, self-supporting citizens of these people. For those who will not reach this point, we are giving them a purposeful life" she added.

The Center receives funds through the Community Chests of East Jordan and Charlevoix and the United Fund of Emmet county and through the Boards of Commissioners of the three counties, Emmet, Antrim and Charlevoix. This gives the board of the Center monies to use as a basis for matching funds through the Act 54 board. Twenty-five percent of the funds must come from local sources and the remaining 75 percent from state sources. In this cause it is the Department of Mental Health.

Library notes

The Library has some entertaining new books for your summer reading–in a hammock, the porch swing, the patio or the sunny deck of a boat. The authors are all familiar dependables, and all of the books are recommended.

The first, "The Great Train Robbery" is by Michael Crichton who gave us The Terminal Man and The Andromeda Strain. He always has an interesting documentary approach to all of his novels of suspense. This novel takes place in 1855. Victoria is firm on her throne and war is raging in the Crimea. In London, the most daring train robbery of the century takes place. The Train, loaded with gold bullion for the British Army, left London for Paris. The carriage was guarded. The two safes are invulnerable. There is no way to break into them. Every possible precaution has been taken. One month later, the safes arrive in Paris, but the gold is gone, and there, dear reader, we will leave you to find out for yourself what happened.

If you read The Devil of Aske and the Malvle Inheritance, then you will want to read Pamela Hill's new book "Whitton's Folly." This is another classic story of love and madness and witchcraft and tragedy. Edmund Whitton, the hero, arrives back from India to claim the estate of Steen following his cousin's death. Before he arrives at Steen, he learns that his cousin's wife, whom Edmund also had loved, is dead. And so this tale of mystery and death begins, ending with the most explosive ending yet by that marvelous master of endings, Pamela Hill.

There are two new books by Catherine Cookson which should please just about everyone. "The Lord and Mary Ann"–the second novel of the Shaughnessy saga. "The Invisible Cord" is a novel of today about a strong, ambitious woman whose unwise attachment to her oldest son spells tragedy. It is a rich and engrossing narrative, the kind of book we have come to expect from Catherine Cookson. It is hard to believe that she has written over thirty successful novels, but not hard to understand why she has so many devoted readers.

Horton Bay Plans Fourth of July

HORTON BAY–It's been over 50 years since Horton Bay and Bay Township have celebrated the Fourth of July.

This year big things are planned, not only to celebrate the nation's Bicentennial, but the community's centennial.

There will be a parade with prizes awarded to winners in various categories, a five-minute "oration" by former District Judge Richard Wayne Smith who is a great grandson of Samuel Horton, founder of Horton Bay, and a family picnic in the Red Fox Inn grove complete with games for the children.

Of a more permanent nature, a flag pole is being erected in front of the Bay Township Hall and it will be dedicated on the fourth.

The flag pole is made from a red pine tree cut by local resident "Bucky" Harris on his property. Harris has also peeled and painted the pole as his contribution to the celebration.

Another local resident is donating a large flag to fly on the pole. William H. Ohle, whose grandfather homesteaded in Bay Township in the 1870's, has written a history of the community which will be available.

Jon and Margaret Hartwell are in charge of parade arrangements. Jon is a fourth generation florton Bayite. The Horton Bay Store, which was built about 100 years ago, is already decorated with a large banner and bunting. Many local residents will appear in costumes of by-gone days.

The Boyne City-Charlevoix Road will be closed between Horton Bay Road North and Sumner Road to all but Horton Bay local traffic from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. on the holiday.

Cherry Playhouse Gets New Director

John Hagan as the resident director of the Cherry County Playhouse for its 21st season of star summer entertainment.

Hagan returns to the Traverse City theatre for his third season, where he has formerly been engaged as a director, designer, and assistant business manager from 1971 to 1974.

Over the past twenty years he has directed and designed for dozens of theatres, a variety of hotel-ballrooms and summer stock barns, and other theatrical outposts in most of the fifty states.

In regional, dinner and industrial theatres, he has directed or designed for such personalities as Myrna Loy, Michael Moriarty, Marvin Kaplan, Dick Gautier, and Pat Paulsen.

Hagan holds a masters degree in theatre from St. Louis University, and a Doctorate from Indiana University. He is a member of United Scenic Artists and Illuminating Engineering Society, and claims to be an unfrequently published poet and scriptor. His wife will be the resident stage manager for the Playhouse this summer.

Kenneth and Dorothy Mannes and son Jimmy of Denver spent a few days with her mother, Anne Osterbaan. Before returning to Denver, they left Thursday evening to visit Dorothy's brothers and sister in Grand Rapids and Holland and Kenneth's aunt in Kalamazoo. Denver weather had been cloudy and rainy so they were happy to arrive in Michigan on a sunny Tuesday (next day it rained here again).

Charlevoix Senior Relates Boys' State Experience

Editor's Note: Jim Berlage, Charlevoix High School Senior, was one of nine Charlevoix youngsters who spent a week at Wolverine Boys State. During the session, Berlage was editor of the Boy's State newspaper, Whirligig News. He relates his experiences in the following story.

By JIM BERLAGE

The 51st state of the Union? In recent months, there has been considerable discussion concerning the creation of the 51st state by dividing the state of Michigan. Did you know however that there has been a 51st state every year for the past 38 years? Yes there has and its official name has been the American Legion's Wolverine Boys' State.

Although a mythical 51st state, this year's 38th Wolverine Boys' State 1975 was very much alive and kicking on the beautiful campus of Michigan State University between June 11th and June 18th.

There was rain six out of the eight days, bot it did nothing to dampen the spirit, enthusiasm and sometimes unqualified rowdiness of the 1050 boys in attendance.

Upon arrival at Boys' State, each person had been assigned to a city, county and political party. Boys' State is divided into ten counties, named after former Michigan governors, while a county is further divided into two cities of approximately 50 citizens. Each city is named after a former United States president, and is divided into two political parties, purely nuthical. They are the Federalist and Nationalist parties which are in no way related or reflect the ideas or principles of existing parties.

Form Cities

Once settled into cities housed throughout the various dorms of MSU's Brody Hall Complex, Boys' Staters began the task of becoming oriented with the campus and also with sliding into the groove of the Boys' State's governmental processes.

Possibly knowing in advance of what elected office they wished to hold, Boys' Staters began active campaigning, first on the state level and then working down to the city and county levels.

Three days into the program, the long and drawnout process of two separate state party conventions convened. In session for approximately 14 hours, the Nationalist party, of which this reporter was a member, began by nominating a party convention chairman.

Once this was accomplished, the party chairman presided over the convention, regulating the votes from each of the 20 cities, as well as the speeches from each of the moninees.

Nominated by each of the two parties to run in a statewide election were: members for the Wayne State University Board of Governors, eight members to the University of Michigan Board of Regents, and an eight member panel to represent the Michigan State University Board of Trustees. Nominated also were State Board of Education members, State Supreme Court Justices and nine justices to the State Court of Appeals. Closing out the conventions were nomiuations for Attorney General, Secretary of State, Lieutenant Governor and Governor.

Learning Experience

It was a learning experience for this reporter as he sat through an orderly (for the most part) and well organized and democratic political process in which hopeful politicians were nominated by each of the 20 cities and finally by each party. Although the 14 hour convention this year seemed long, it was relatively short as compared to the 37th Boys' State where one party's convention lasted until 5 A.M. the next morning.

With the first major step, the state nominations out of the way, let's now take a look at some of the sideline activities available at Boys' State.

A number of athletic clinics were taught by various coaches. MSU Head Wrestling Coach Grady Penninger held a 90 minute clinic after which some boys commented that they had "learned more that night than in four years of varsity wrestling." Penninger discussed a positive attitude and basic wrestling fundamentals.

MSU Coach Andy McDonald stressed conditioning and training at the MSU Boys' State football clinic. McDonald stated that the important factors of a good high school football player were: educational background, character quotion, a player's size, speed, strength, agility and intensity.

Fran Dittrich, Head MSU Track Coach, hosted a question and answer session concerning injuries, conditioning workouts and "psyching up", which Dittrich says was 95 percent of the race.

Recreation Offered

Aside from the specialized clinics, there was also swimming, basketball, handball, baseball, and volleyball organized by city teams, for all to participate in.

Focusing more on the academic scene, Boys' Staters were involved in a number of various activities. All Boys' Staters were able to enter a Speech contest, participate in a radio and TV clinic, or take part in radio broadcasts. The broadcasts were aired over MSU's WFAR and WFAR-FM, and involved Boys' State citizens or staff.

The Whirligig, the official newspaper published five out of the eight days and was quite a learning experience for all 35 members of the staff, including this small-town journalist who was editor-in-chief.

A Boys' State band was formed and members performed in concert and as a marching unit as well, during the lowering of the flag each night and during the four mile march to the Michigan Capitol by all Boys' Staters to hear Governor Milliken's Speech, addressed to Boys' State 1975.

Boys' Staters also spent considerable free time preparing for a talent show, held on the last night which proved to be quite entertaining, featuring instrumentalists, song and dance, and two unofficial B.S. City choirs.

Flue Job

The American Legion did a fine job of selecting and organizing tours that would interest most anyone. To get acquainted with MSU, two campus tours were sponsored and everything from Spartan Stadium to 12-story Hubbard Hall was seen. Perhaps the unique part of the tour was the mode of transportation which consisted of a truck-trailer of the type used to haul cattle in.

Two very interesting tours were also hosted by the Michigan State Police at the MSP Training Academy in Lansing. The academy deals with stress, pressures and reactions of the recruits throughout the 17 week training course.

There are nine female troopers scattered throughout the 64 MSP Posts, and two of the nine hold the rank of detective-sergeant.

When nsked about the effect of TV crime shows on actual law enforcement, our guide, Trooper T.J. Yungfer stated that, "TV screws thing up beyond belief."

Another well-appreciated tour was that of the MSU Planetarium. Spinning through the stars, planets and galaxies, the night sky complete with all of the major constellations, those in ntteudance really took a trip in a farout world!

Tour T.V.

The final tour, quite technical in nature, took place at MSU's WKAR TV station.

Rounding out a well-balanced program were many speakers brought in throughout the week by the American Legion. Many speakers were local attorneys, politicians, Representatives and Senators, as well as a very interesting Grand Rapids FBI agent. Familiarizing interested potential lawyers with the Judicial system and the rontines of the prosecutor's office was Ingham County Assistant Prosecutor Ken Williams. Closing out Boys' State 1975, the American Legion brought in a former Miss Michigan and Miss America runner-up who spoke to 1050 boys on the 'ill' topic of women's libcration.

Now we return to the blood and life of Boys' State - government. With all party nominations finalized, candidates on all levels began massive campaigns for the elections, which they hoped to win.

After punch card voting, Charlevoix's Jon Mays was elected 38th Governor of the Americnn Legion's Wolverine Boys' State, by an overwhelming margin. Holding the highest office of Boys' State, Jon had the pleasure of visiting Girls' State as well as meeting Michigan's Governor Milliken, in nddition to performing his other duties.

Jon closed by saying, "I only pray that every man here will leave Boys' State with a spirit of self-confidence, self-motivation, self-determination and love and get as much out of this experience as I have."

Other Boys' State elected officials from Charlevoix were Ken Paul, city councilman; Joe Seidel, county sheriff; John Cinnamon, State Representative; Jim Berlage, District Court Judge; and Jeff Muha from Ellsworth, State Senator. Most other Charlevoixans were appointed to either State, County or City positions.
